RUSSIA WARNED ON RED ACTIVITY IN SECOND NOTE

New Protest Lodged with Soviets.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—After four days of conferences in which officials studied the next move in disagreement with soviet Russia over interference with this country's internal affairs, the Roosevelt administration tonight decided to let the matter drop with a warning that Russia had better not do it again.

The American protest lodged at Moscow last Sunday warned of "serious consequences" unless the soviets made good their pledge of noninterference, but the warning tonight was toned down to:

"If the soviet government pursues a policy of permitting activities on its territory involving interference with the internal affairs of the United States, instead of 'preventing' such activities, as its written pledge provides, the friendly and official relations between the two countries cannot but be seriously impaired."

Russian Action May Decide.

The communique further stated that whether such relations are thus to be impaired, "and coöperative opportunities for vast good to be destroyed," would depend upon the attitude and action of the soviet government.

The first protest of this government, lodged at Moscow last Sunday, startled the diplomatic world and inspired a belief in some quarters that diplomatic relations would be broken, or at least that Ambassador William C. Bullitt would be recalled. The administration, however, failed even to employ the third possible alternative of sending another emphatic note to Moscow.

Tonight's announcement refers to the blunt rejection by the soviets of this government's protest, in which they disavowed any obligations for the activities of the recent world convention of the comintern [communist internationale], and says it "indicated an intention entirely to disregard its promise to prevent such activities as those complained of."

Issue Is Raised.

"The recent note of this government to the government of the soviet union," the Hull note said, "and the reply of that government raises the issue whether that government, in disregard of an express agreement entered into at the time of recognition in 1933, will permit organizations or groups operating on its territory to plan and direct movements contemplating the overthrow of the political or social order of the United States.

"For 16 years this government withheld recognition—as did many other governments—mainly for the reason that the soviet government had failed to respect the right of this nation to maintain its own political and social order without interference by organizations conducting in or from soviet territory activities directed against our institutions.

Question Renewed in 1933.

"In 1933 this government, observing the serious effects upon peace and prosperity of the many partial or dislocated international relationships throughout the world, took up anew the question whether the United States and the soviet union, two of the largest nations, could not find a way to establish more natural and normal relations, which would afford a basis for genuine friendship and collaborations to promote peace and improve conditions both at home and abroad.

"After various stipulations in writing had first been carefully drafted and agreed upon by representatives of the two governments, recognition was accorded to the government of the soviet union by this government in November, 1933.

"One of the most important provisions of the agreement thus reached was the pledge of the soviet government to respect the right of the United States 'to order its own life within its own jurisdiction in its own way and to refrain from interfering in any manner in the internal affairs of the United States, its territories, or its possessions.'

"The essence of this pledge was the obligation assumed by the soviet government not to permit persons or groups on its territory to engage in

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Great Britain intervened energetically today in the Ethiopian situation. The British government advised Emperor Haile Selassie of the African empire to "withhold" oil and mineral concessions granted yesterday to American and British interests under a 75 year charter. The British minister to Ethiopia was instructed to inform the emperor of the British government's wishes in the matter. The British government's action was taken under the three power treaty of 1906 between Britain, France, and Italy, which divided Ethiopia into "spheres of influence."

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's government issued a communique after news of the granting of the concessions had excited not only Italy but the rest of the capitals of Europe.

Text of Communique.

The communique said:

"His majesty's government have as yet received no confirmation of reports in today's press of a grant of concessions for oil and mineral rights in Ethiopia, but have felt it necessary to inform his majesty's minister to Addis Ababa that such concessions would undoubtedly be a matter for preliminary consultations by his majesty's government with the French and Italian governments under article 2 of the tri-partite treaty of 1906.

"In these circumstances Sir Sydney Barton has been authorized, if the report is true, to inform the emperor that his majesty's government must on their part advise him to withhold the concessions."

What Treaty Provides.

The text of article two of the 1906 treaty which has never been recognized by Ethiopia, follows:

"As regards demands for agricultural, commercial and industrial concessions in Ethiopia, the three powers undertake to instruct their representatives to act in such a way that concessions which may be accorded in the interests of one of the three states may not be injurious to the interests of the two others."

It was admitted here that news of the concession negotiated by F. M. Rickett, as a representative of the African Exploration and Development corporation, came as a surprise to the British government. On all sides it was declared that if Rickett had been employed by Premier Mussolini of Italy instead of being an Englishman with American connections he could not have done a better job for his employer.

It was declared that the British government not only did not assist Rickett either directly or indirectly, but had no knowledge of his negotiations nor of his presence in Addis Ababa. His name was not mentioned in reports by the British minister to Ethiopia.

Predict Similar U. S. Action.

It was also declared that while it is too soon to define the British policy in view of the fact that the story has not been confirmed, yet it is safe to assume that Downing street's attitude will be the same as that of the American government, namely, that Rickett has taken his own risks and can expect no support.

British officials feel particularly keenly about the situation because they believe it will weaken, if not destroy, their efforts at the league of nations' council meeting on Sept. 4 to bring about a settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

It is felt that the incident will be

Holiday Rains Forecast; Cool Spell to Stay

Chicagoans preparing for outing trips today and tomorrow for the Labor day holiday will have to reckon with showers, Forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted last night. He added that there will be little change in the cool temperatures which prevailed yesterday, except in the north-central portion of the state, where slightly warmer weather is expected.

As August came to an end Chief Forecaster C. A. Donnel issued a report on the summer's weather antics, revealing a warmer and wetter season than normal. Precipitation for the last three months was nearly two inches above normal and the mean temperature was 1.3 degrees above normal. The report showed an unusually high humidity during July and August.

In July, the relative humidity was 15 per cent above normal. The highest temperature was 95 degrees on July 19. The number of days on which the temperature reached 90 degrees or exceeded that mark during the three months was nine, of which five were in July and four in August. Normally there are eight such days.

Rainfall Well Distributed.

The rainfall, according to Mr. Donnel, was unusually well distributed. In June there were 12 rainy days; 10 in July; and 12 in August. The longest dry period was 14 days in July when no measurable rainfall occurred. The heaviest rainfalls in any 24 hour period were 1.57 inches on June 18 and 19, and 1.19 inches on Aug. 2.

The wind movement and percentage of possible sunshine were less than usual. In June the sunshine was deficient by 13 per cent, while in July and August it was practically normal. The clear days numbered 25; partly cloudy, 30, and cloudy, 37, as contrasted with normals, respectively of 36, 38, and 18 days.

Coolest June Since 1929.

June was cool and wet, the coolest since 1929 and the wettest since 1928. The lowest maximum temperature was 84 degrees, and the large difference in temperatures reported at the official thermometer at the University of Chicago and at the municipal airport—eight and one-half miles away—was noted particularly at 4:45 p. m. on June 13 when the official temperature was 68 degrees and the airport temperature 91.

July was very warm and humid with a slight deficiency in rainfall. It was the fourth warmest July on record. August was wetter and warmer than usual.

CHICAGO COUPLE FIND DAUGHTER AFTER 38 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jerone, 727 West 25th place, will hold a family gathering in their home today to celebrate their reunion with their daughter, Mrs. John Regnier, 760 Ninth street, Aurora, whom they had not heard from in 38 years.

Mr. Jerone, 84 years old, a retired farmer, who has been an invalid for the last three years, was informed yesterday that his daughter had been found at the Aurora address. She had left the family farm at Champion, Mich., when she was 14 years old and had not communicated with her parents.

Several weeks ago she wrote to acquaintances of her parents in Michigan and obtained her father's address. She is the mother of seven children and has 10 grandchildren. She is 52 years old.

Five generations will be represented at today's reunion. Mrs. Jerone is 83 years old.

RACING PIGEON DIES CARRYING SAFETY MESSAGE

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 31.—(AP)—A racing pigeon, flying until it fell exhausted and died, brought the first direct news today from the northern British Columbia mountains of the safety of the expedition of Mrs. J. Norman Henry of Philadelphia.

"Everybody well," read the message written on flimsy paper and attached to the pigeons' leg at Muskwa river about 600 miles from Edmonton. The pigeon fell exhausted at Chisholm, Alta.

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—William Archambeault, 43, was found dead with a broken back in his back yard today. His son Arthur recalled that he felt the family car go over a "bump" as he backed it out of the yard last night to search the streets for his father. Police believe the elder Archambeault had fallen asleep while working under the car.

Hitler's Book Replaces Bible as Star Pupil Prize

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's "My Battle" has replaced the Bible as the prize for star pupils of the Bavarian state forestry school at Melchausen, it was learned today. The second prize this year is a "Guide to Race," by Prof. Hans Guenther.

Chicago Milk Price Cut to 10c a Quart

Chicago's retail milk dealers announced at midnight that, effective today, the price of milk in quart bottles would be reduced from 11 to 10 cents.

The announcement came at the end of a conference of the dealers and representatives of the Pure Milk association, composed of farmers who furnish the bulk of the Chicago milk supply. At this conference, held in the Union League club, a new basis for the payment of the farmers for their product was adopted, under which their total compensation will be lowered—according to estimates—more than 10 per cent.

No Reduction in Pint Price.

Standard milk, Vitamin D milk and buttermilk, as well as special type milks, all will be reduced to 10 cents a quart. There will be no reduction in the price of pints, nor of cream sold at retail.

Farmers hitherto have sold their milk in four classifications. The highest price, $2.20 a hundred pounds [4.73 cents a quart], was paid for whole milk, and lower prices for the other three classifications. As the scale worked out the farmers received in July an average of $1.73 a hundred pounds [3.72 cents a quart] for all their milk.

Under the new arrangement the whole milk [that distributed to retail customers in bottles] will be paid for at $1.75 a hundred pounds [3.76 cents a quart. There will be only one other classification, the condensory price, which will be paid for all milk up to 90 per cent of the quota assigned each member by the Pure Milk association.

Hope to Increase Sales.

A representative of the dealers said that actually the farmers would receive on the average $1.55 a hundred pounds [3.3 cents a quart] for what they sell, 18 cents a hundred less than they have received.

The new arrangement was adopted, according to the conferees, in an effort to increase the consumption of milk and to level up the differences now existing between the prices for whole milk and that sold in other classifications. The hope was expressed, also, that a lowered retail price would increase consumption in the city.

TRIBUNE STARTS SUNDAY REVIEW OF NEWS WEEK

Today The Chicago Sunday Tribune extends to all editions a development of its review of the week's news. It offers to Tribune readers three distinct advances:

1. A review of the WHOLE WEEK up to the moment of going to press of the final city editions Saturday night.
2. Simple language.
3. Brevity.

The section is described as a development as well as a new feature since it springs from the general news section of the first edition of The Chicago Sunday Tribune which was established one year ago. Each week it has presented a digest of national, foreign and Chicago news to readers who live at a distance from Chicago. Therefore, while the review is an addition to the city editions of The Sunday Tribune, it also is an advance in the sense that Tribune writers have been trained for one year in this kind of research and writing.

Skips Mystifying Terms.

Simple language is used because it interests more readers. Fancy writing is for brainy folks. But brainy folks can understand simple writing, too. So the review will always be simple. The review will skip such words as repercussion and unilateral and other mystifying high political terms. If they are used they will be explained.

Too, the weekly review will avoid the smart aleck style of drawing conclusions from unrelated facts set together in suspicious nearness. It is simple to say in one sentence that Miss Vera Loos lives at 2 Easy street and in the next sentence that Senator Trombone was seen to pause to mop his brow in front of 2 Easy street.

The old Town Topics style of reporting is useful to hide evidence of an ancient news item. Since The Tribune will publish its weekly review with the regular news sections on Saturday night there will be no need for ornamenting items of the previous fortnight.

Speed Keeps Review Fresh.

Some of the so-called news digests and reviews are compelled to go to press on the Monday which begins the week they pretend to review. Of course it is not possible to present on Monday a review of news which is going to happen on the five ensuing days. But this becomes a necessity when it is seen that magazines must be sent by express or freight to the points from which they are to be distributed.

The Chicago Sunday Tribune of around a million copies is distributed in a few hours. Some of the specialized weekly review magazines which are printed on Monday need the remainder of the week for distribution. This is another explanation of why The Tribune review can be made complete up to closing time on Saturday night.

Important to Three Classes.

The weekly review will be important to three classes of readers:

1. The busy person who gives only a few moments a day to glancing through the news.

2. The more attentive who have

MACHINE SKIDS FROM HIGHWAY IN NEW MEXICO

Genevieve F. Herrick Injured Seriously.

Santa Fe, N. M., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes of Winnetka, Ill., wife of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, was killed late this afternoon when an automobile in which she was riding overturned in a ditch beside route 64 at Velarde, N. M. Velarde is 40 miles north of Santa Fe. Mrs. Ickes was 62 years old.

Three companions with Mrs. Ickes in the car were injured. They are: Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, former member of The Chicago Tribune staf; Ibrahim Seyfullah, secretary of the Turkish embassy at Washington, and Frank Allen of Gallup, N. M., who was driving. All are expected to recover, although the injuries of Mrs. Herrick and Allen are regarded as serious.

Had Visited Indians in Taos.

The party had left Santa Fe this morning and had spent most of the day inspecting the Indian settlement at Taos. Mrs. Ickes had been for years deeply interested in Indian life. She had invited Mrs. Herrick and Mr. Seyfullah, two of her friends, to make the trip. Allen is a garage dealer at Gallup.

The party was southbound, returning to Santa Fe, and was passing through the canyon of the Rio Grande, one of the most picturesque spots on their trip, when the fatal accident occurred.

It was at first reported that a collision with a second car was the actual cause of Allen's Ford going into the ditch and turning over. A statement of Mr. Seyfullah after he had been brought to St. Vincent's hospital here tended to overthrow this belief.

Diplomat's Story of Accident.

"As I remember it," he said, "we were passing another car when ours skidded on the gravel and went into the ditch. Of course, I cannot be sure; we might have scraped against the other car."

This second car, whether there was a collision or not, did not stop, and deputy sherifs were searching for the driver tonight.

When Allen's car overturned all the passengers were hurled against the top. Mrs. Ickes' skull was fractured and apparently she died within a few minutes.

Chicago Attorney on Scene.

Residents of Velarde, a small settlement which has only a few houses, hurried to the scene, and other motorists also lent assistance in removing the victims from the wreckage. Among the first to arrive were Attorney John Irving Pearce, a Chicagoan, and J. R. Modrall, assistant attorney general of New Mexico.

The four persons were hastily put into improvised ambulances and were hurried first a few miles south to the village of Espanola, where Dr. Cobias Espanosa pronounced Mrs. Ickes dead and gave emergency treatment to the others.

Injured Taken to Santa Fe.

Mrs. Herrick and the Turkish diplomat were brought here a little later and placed in St. Vincent's hospital. Mrs. Herrick, it was said, had suffered a fractured pelvis. Mr. Seyfullah's injuries, involving his legs, were not regarded as quite so serious. When Allen was brought in from Espanola late in the evening he was still unconscious and apparently had a fractured skull.

The body of Mrs. Ickes was brought into Santa Fe tonight. Secretary Ickes requested from Washington that it be prepared for burial and sent to Winnetka, where funeral services will be held, probably on Tuesday. Representative Dempsey of New Mexico was asked to transmit the secretary's orders.

Mrs. Ickes, Mrs. Herrick and Mr. Seyfullah had attended the intertribal Indian ceremonial at Gallup on Wednesday, Thursday and yesterday. Last night they arrived in Santa Fe and spent the night at the guest ranch Los Cerros.

Expected to Attend Fiesta.

After their trip to Taos they expected to attend the fiesta here tonight in celebration of the reconquest of New Mexico by Devargas in 1692. This celebration has been held annually on Aug. 31 since that year, and is the gayest of the year. One of its principal features is the masked Conquistadors' ball.

Mrs. Ickes had been [illegible] on her historical study of the [illegible] ern Indians for several years. She is the author of a work, "Mesa Land the History and Romance of the Southwest," that was published in 1933. Her interest was shared by Mrs. Herrick, who is one of the foremost of American newspaper women and had long been a close friend of the secretary's wife. Mrs. Herrick is the wife of John Herrick of Washington, who is also a former member of THE TRIBUNE staff. She is a graduate of Northwestern university. Mr. Herrick's father is Dr. James B. Herrick, Chicago heart specialist.

Mrs. Ickes had been in New Mexico for the last three weeks attending Indian ceremonials and carrying on further studies of the race. She spoke the Navajo language fluently and was, as she expressed it, "a fan for snake dances." She had been credited with doing much to aid the Indians on the reservations.

NOTIFY ICKES AT CAPITAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Secretary Ickes was working in his office in the interior department building this evening when notified of the accident in which Mrs. Ickes was killed. He immediately communicated with the hospital in Santa Fe, N. M., by telephone.

The secretary plans to leave by train tomorrow for Chicago. The body of Mrs. Ickes is to be taken to Chicago for funeral services.

Secretary Ickes talked by telephone with United State Attorney Michael Igoe of Chicago and with Representative John J. Dempsey [Dem., N. M.], who were in Santa Fe. They told Mr. Ickes they were taking charge of arrangements to ship the body of Mrs. Ickes to Chicago.

Mrs. Ickes left three weeks ago for her annual visit to the Indian reservations in New Mexico, accompanied by Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, who was injured in the crash.

Mrs. Ickes gave no elaborate entertainments in Washington, but maintained the Wednesday afternoon "at home" custom among cabinet wives. She and her husband recently moved from a relatively modest house in Wesley Heights to a more commodious one in Chevy Chase, Md., a Washington suburb, and her friends say she had planned to do more entertaining.

Mrs. Herrick's husband, John Herrick, announced he was leaving for Santa Fe on a midnight plane.

THREE SONS OUT OF CITY

None of the three sons of Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, who was killed in an automobile crash near Santa Fe, N. M., yesterday, was in Chicago last night.

Wilmarth Ickes was at Mackinac Island, Mich., where he received a message telling of the tragedy. A similar message was delivered to Raymond Ickes at Peoria, where he had gone to attend a statewide skeet shoot. The third son, Robert, a ranger in Yellowstone Park, was informed of the tragedy at a park ranger station and immediately made arrangements to go to Chicago. Mrs. Requa W. Bryant of Evanston, a daughter of Mrs. Ickes, was visiting friends in Glencoe when she heard of the accident by radio. She hurried to her home to await information from Mr. Ickes.

ICKES RECEIVES CONDOLENCES OF ROOSEVELT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, before departing by special train for Hyde Park, N. Y., tonight telephoned Secretary Ickes to express his own and Mrs. Roosevelt's sympathy over the tragic death of Mrs. Ickes in an automobile crash. Later he wrote a personal note of condolence.

The President also telephoned Mrs. Roosevelt at their Hyde Park home, where she had preceded him for a week-end vacation. Announcement was then made that Mrs. Roosevelt will attend the funeral services for Mrs. Ickes in Chicago.

TWO OF BRITISH TOBACCO FAMILY KILLED IN CRASH

LONDON, Aug. 31.—[U. P.]—A son and a daughter of Bernard Wills, multi-millionaire member of the Imperial Tobacco company family, were killed today in a motor crash at Roxton. Another son and another daughter were injured seriously.

Gerald Beverley Wills, 16, and Joan Beverley Wills, 18, were killed. Christopher Beverley Wills, 20, who was driving, and Sylvia Beverley Wills, 14, were injured. The father is a cousin of Lord Dulverston, chairman of the Great Imperial Tobacco family.

The Wills family is equaled only by the Coats family in England in industrially acquired wealth. Eleven members of it who have died in recent years left altogether more than $188,000,000.

NEW GOVERNOR OF VIRGIN ISLANDS TAKES HIS OFFICE

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Amid colorful ceremonies, Gov. Lawrence Cramer was inducted into office today before a crowd in Emancipation park. For the first time in local history a native judge administered the oath of office.

In a brief speech the new governor asked for coöperation from all factions and announced a new organic act for the island would be presented at the next session of congress in Washington.

Marines from two coast guard cutters and sailors from special service squadrons served as a guard of honor. Consular officials, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Sea Scouts witnessed the induction. Gov. Blanton Winship of Porto Rico and Ernest Gruening, chief of the division of territories, attended the ceremony.

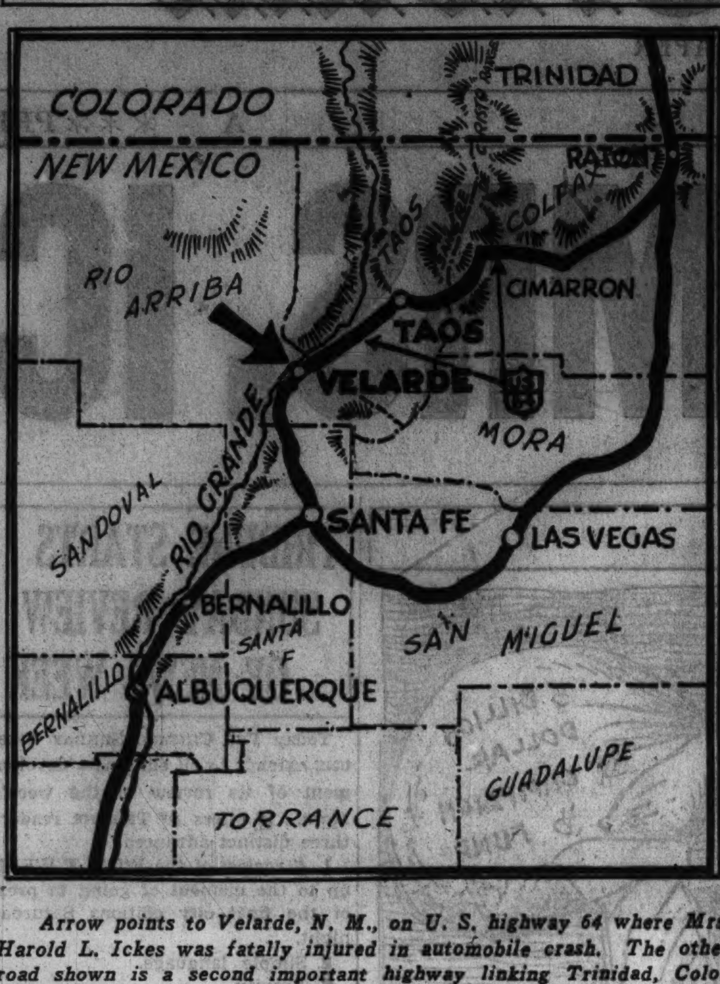
Greenburg, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP)—A jury decided today after deliberating for 22 hours that Henry J. Ralston, 75, drove a nail into the head of his friend, William Coulson, 83, causing his death. They set the penalty at life imprisonment.

LOCATION OF MRS. ICKES' CRASH



Arrow points to Velarde, N. M., on U. S. highway 64 where Mrs. Harold L. Ickes was fatally injured in automobile crash. The other road shown is a second important highway linking Trinidad, Colo., and Raton, N. M., with Santa Fe. The car in which Mrs. Ickes was riding southward from Taos skidded into a ditch and overturned.

REPUTATION WON BY MRS. ICKES IN STATE ASSEMBLY

Re-elected Twice; Club Leader Here.

Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes attained prominence in Chicago life long before she went to Washington in 1933 as the wife of a cabinet member.

After several years of activity in club work, during which she served as president of the Chicago Woman's club, she was appointed by Gov. Len Small in 1924 as a trustee of the University of Illinois to fill a vacancy. Later in that same year she was elected to a four year term on the university board.

Before that term had expired she became a candidate for the state legislature. Howard P. Castle, a veteran representative from the Seventh senatorial district, announced that he would not run for renomination in 1928. Mrs. Ickes was backed by club women of the north shore suburbs.

Reëlected to Post Twice.

She led a large field in the Republican primary and also headed the list of contenders in the election which followed. The Seventh district includes north and west suburbs in Cook county. She was reëlected in 1930 and again in 1932.

Politicians said that Mrs. Ickes could have won a fourth time in 1934, but in 1933 her husband was appointed secretary of the interior and she announced she would not be a candidate. It was said her husband considered it undesirable for her to seek office as a Republican while he held an important Democratic appointment. Mrs. Ickes' successor is Mrs. Bernice Van der Vries.

Commuted Between Capitals.

Following the Roosevelt inaugural ceremonies and the announcement of the principal cabinet appointments, including that of Mr. Ickes, Representative Ickes returned to her seat in the regular session at Springfield. For some time she continued to "commute," as she called it, between the national and state capitals, even flying to Springfield once for an important roll call.

The strain of maintaining a Washington establishment, combined with long distance travel, however, proved too much and for the last two years and a half Mrs. Ickes had spent little time in Illinois.

Mrs. Ickes' interest in public affairs did not cease with her removal to Washington but there it turned to the jurisdiction of her husband's department and centered largely in the Indians of the southwest.

She had spent considerable time studying the Navajo and Pueblo tribes on their reservation, some of which are near the scene of the fatal automobile accident.

Four Children Survive.

Before she became known in club life and politics, Mrs. Ickes devoted nearly all of her time to the rearing of four children, Mrs. Requa Bryant, Wilmarth, Raymond and Robert. The family residence at 900 Private road, Winnetka, is in that section known as Hubbard Woods and is a handsome English structure.

Mrs. Ickes was born in Chicago on Jan. 27, 1873, the daughter of Henry M. and Mary Jane Hawes Wilmarth. She attended the old South Division High school, long ago torn down, and Miss Hersey's school at Boston.

Her mother who had large real estate holdings and who was prominent in early woman's club. Society life in Chicago, was one of the earliest friends of the University of Chicago in the late nineties, and Miss Anna Wilmarth became one of the first women students at the then rapidly growing school.

Wed in Campus Romance.

James Westfall Thompson was a young instructor in the department of history. He and Miss Wilmarth met in the classroom, and, in 1897, before Miss Wilmarth had completed her course, they were married. After six years, during which the husband rose to the position of associate professor of history, the couple separated quietly, a fact that did not become known until Mrs. Thompson obtained a divorce in 1909.

In 1897, the year Miss Wilmarth married, Harold L. Ickes, received his bachelor's degree at the university. Later he continued his studies there as a graduate student. In 1911 Mrs. Thompson and Mr. Ickes were married at the Wilmarth summer home on Lake Geneva.

WHEN 15 WARNINGS FAIL POLICE BRING IN DRIVER OF AUTO

About six months ago Marvin Hofstetter, 23 years old, parked his car without lights in front of his home at 817 Forest avenue, Evanston.

Police sent him a warning. A few nights later he did the same thing and got another warning. In all he got five warnings for five separate offenses.

He continued to park without lights. A little exasperated, police began sending him notices that he was arrested and must appear in court. Hofstetter ignored them all. Warants began to issue.

By this time there were eight different warants, not counting the five warnings. Yesterday Policeman Robert Labbe was dispatched to Hofstetter's home and personally took him into custody.

Hofstetter posted a bond of $40 and on Sept. 9 will have a chance to explain himself before Municipal Judge Harry H. Porter. He is a nephew of A. N. Hofstetter, Evanston fire chief.

BURGLAR DENIED WRIT; MUST GO BACK TO JOLIET

Acting Chief Justice Donald S. McKinlay of the Criminal court yesterday denied a writ of habeas corpus sought in behalf of Francis Drury, 32 years old, enterprising burglar, and ordered him turned over to parole officers. Drury, who has confessed looting 78 offices in the loop within the last few months, has been convicted twice on charges of burglary and is wanted for return to Joliet penitentiary because of failure to report to parole officers after his release from prison.

To insure that Drury will remain in prison, Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan said that steps would be taken this week to indict Drury under the habitual criminal act, which carries a mandatory life sentence upon conviction. Should he be convicted, Moynihan said, Drury would be returned to prison to complete a 1 to 20 year sentence for violation of his parole before starting his term for the new violation.

George Kane, 113 West Ontario street, arrested when he attempted to dispose of stolen bonds given him by Drury, faces a charge of receiving stolen property. Drury and Kane were arrested after Kane attempted to sell back to Andrew McAnsh $120,000 of bonds taken by Drury in a burglary of McAnsh's loop office at 130 North Wells street.

NAVY SHELVES MOTHER OF U. S. FLEET, CHICAGO

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The navy has stricken from its list of commissioned ships the old three-masted schooner-cruiser Chicago, which naval experts regard as the mother vessel of the present American fleet, although she never fired a gun at an enemy.

Secretary Swanson, who was a young man in Virginia when the Chicago first became famous, has issued an order directing the vessel, moored now to the submarine dock at Hawaii's Pearl Harbor bay, to be sold for scrap.

The ship's claim to immortality is that she is the first steel warship the United States ever built and it was on her record that this country—not without anguish and some misgiving—decided to scrap the old wood and iron type of vessel and to build an entire new navy.

The whole theory of shipbuilding, navy officers said today, was revolutionized by the launching of the 4,500 ton Chicago. Naval experts from all over the world came to inspect her.

Dancing Masters Adjourn Record Breaking Session

The annual convention of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters at the Congress hotel closed yesterday with a record attendance for its one week normal course. According to Thomas Birchler of Chicago, editor of the Dancing Master magazine, 365 dancing teachers from 42 states, Mexico and Canada attended the convention and 88 new members were admitted by examination. Pearl M Allen, dancing instructor at Culver Military academy, was installed as president of the association for the coming year.

G. O. P. TO DEPICT PARTY ISSUES AT LABOR DAY RALLY

Union Groups Expected to Join in Celebration.

Three huge, open books on a large float will be the keynote of the principal Labor day celebration in Chicago tomorrow—the annual Republican rally at Riverview park.

The first of the volumes will be "The Constitution," the second will be the book of "Forgotten Men," with the names of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt below the title, and the third will be "The Record of Taxation."

"We hope that 100,000 will gather at the park," said Chairman Arthur F. Albert," and that this float will serve as a reminder of the issues before us today. Those issues will be discussed by our speakers and the whole program will be one stressing patriotism. That is our message in these times of dissatisfaction and unrest."

Union Delegations Expected.

Labor's cause, he said, would receive full attention on the working man's own day because it is believed that the crowd will include large delegations from some of the principal unions. The Chicago Federation of Labor, for the first time in many years, will have no celebration of its own.

Albert, who originated the Riverview rallies several years ago, will preside. The program will be opened with the playing of the national anthem by a naval reserve band, which will play other patriotic music at intervals between the speeches. Before the talks begin, Chairman Albert will ask the throng to repeat after him the preamble to the constitution and an oath of allegiance to the constitution.

Knox and Bricker to Speak.

The principal speakers are to be Col. Frank Knox, Chicago newspaper publisher, who is frequently mentioned as a Republican presidential candidate, and John W. Bricker, attorney general of Ohio, who in his own state is discussed as a possible candidate for governor.

The only demonstration of the day sponsored entirely by organized labor will be a parade in the morning in the stockyards district arranged by the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen. The parade will assemble at Halsted and 42d streets and is intended to include units other than those from the stockyards.

Transportation Lines Busy.

Hotels, railroads, and steamship lines yesterday reported that their business for this week-end was the best that they have experienced since the close of A Century of Progress Exposition last year. Many Chicagoans were outward bound for the two days of freedom—which many stretched into three days—but there were as many visitors coming into the city.

Roads in all directions continued to show the inbound crowd continuing even after the number of the departing cars had begun to fall off. The exodus began Friday night and was thought to have reached its peak yesterday afternoon, but cars for the more distant points continued to pour into the city all evening.

MIND'S MADE UP; SHE STILL WANTS HUSBAND OUSTED

The Wursters went down to court in the county building yesterday from their home at 3836 Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn—but this time separately. And John J. Linder, counsel for Estelle Wurster, 28, renewed his petition for a writ to bar Estelle's husband, George, 49, a printer, from sharing their bungalow as of yore, pending settlement of a divorce suit filed many months ago.

When Circuit Judge Walter LaBuy heard the first petition last week he denied the writ after learning that the Wursters rode to court together and that they had been eating their meals together. Mrs. Wurster testified then that she locked herself in her bedroom each night and that George made life miserable for her by reading about torso murders and hinting she was lucky to be in good health. The judge sent them home to talk things over.

Yesterday it was a different story. "He kicked her in the stomach because she would not cook his breakfast," Attorney Linder told the judge, "although he does not read murder stories any more."

"Well there haven't been many good murders lately," observed Judge LaBuy, who continued the hearing on the petition until Tuesday because George's lawyer is out of town.

HERBERT V. WILEY OF MACON FAME ENGAGED TO WED

Palo Alto, Cal., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The engagement of Mrs. Charlotte Mayfield Weeden, socially prominent on the San Francisco peninsula, to Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley, who was commanding officer of the naval dirigible Macon when it was wrecked early this year, was announced tonight at a dinner given in honor of the two by Mrs. Frederick Koster of Palo Alto.

The wedding will take place, friends said, within a month.

Commander Wiley is assigned to the U. S. S. Pensacola. While with the U. S. S. Macon he made his home here with his three motherless children, and the romance with Mrs. Weeden began at that time. He is an Annapolis graduate.

Mrs. Weeden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mayfield of Suisun, Cal. She was graduated from Stanford university in 1925 and is a member of Gamma Phi Beta. Her first husband was Dr. Joseph Weeden, the marriage ending in divorce.

COL. LINDBERGH'S HEART OF GLASS MECHANICS TOLD

Invention Consists of Three 'Stories.'

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The mechanical secrets of the robot glass heart which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh built to maintain life outside the body were revealed officially today for the first time by a Rockefeller institute publication.

The success of this heart, announced last June without explanation of its mechanism, was hailed by scientists as one of the great achievements in medicine.

The heart is a single piece of glass, roughly resembling an old-fashioned pump, in which an entire kidney, liver, spleen, or other organs of the human body can be kept alive indefinitly.

All in Plain View.

It is the first robot in which artificial life can be kept going as long as the medical scientists wish, in plain view of their eyes, where they can study the otherwise hidden progress of disease.

The Lindbergh device—its proper scientific name a perfusion pump—supplies not only the heart beats of human pressure and rhythm but artificial blood and air to maintain life.

Yet it is a device of marvelous simplicity. As diagrammed by Lindbergh himself it is three glass chambers, connected, one above the other, in vertical position.

Uses Artificial Blood.

The bottom floor chamber is filled with the artificial blood which medical scientists have long known how to create, but which they previously lacked the means of using readily.

The second floor bulb, lying between the artificial living organ above and the blood chamber below, serves to regulate to human-like rhythm the flow of artificial blood.

This artificial life stream is driven through a glass artery directly from the bottom floor reservoir into the top one containing the living organ. After running through the organ, the artificial blood passes by a different route down into the lower floor reservoir, to be used over again.

From an outside connection the watching scientists are able to keep this lower floor chamber filled with purified artificial blood whenever change is needed.

Flow Is Automatic.

The flow up and down this three story device is automatic. It is caused by gas piped under pressure into the two lower floor chambers.

The pressure in the bottom floor chamber at times is greater than in the second floor, so that the life blood flows upward in beats. The pressures available range from zero to 120 millimeters of mercury, on the standard gauges for blood pressures.

There are no moving mechanical parts. The gas pressure, which pumps the artificial life stream, is varied by a piston of oil. The oil moves to and fro in a glass tube to compress the gas in regular beats.

The power driving the oil piston is compressed air at the outer end of the oil column. The air does not penetrate the oil.

The biological part of this work is done by Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller institute, who made the June announcement jointly with Col. Lindbergh.

Seize Race Track Worker and Car; Rob Him of $800

John Stockley of Hammond reported yesterday to Grand Crossing police that he had been robbed of $800 by three armed men who halted him shortly after he left the Lincoln Fields race track near Crete, where he is employed as a clocker. Stockley said that the gunmen, riding in a sedan, forced his automobile to the side of the road, then dragged him into their car. One of the robbers drove Stockley's machine to 75th street and Dorchester avenue, following the outlaw car. At that corner the gunmen pushed Stockley out and left him with his own automobile.

Senator Couzens Shows "Distinct Improvement"

Rochester, Minn., Aug. 31.—(AP)—A "distinct improvement" in Senator James Couzens' condition was noted by his Mayo clinic physicians today. They planned to have him sit up in bed for a brief time, they said. The Michigan senator's diabetes, a complicating factor in the ailment which necessitated four operations and two blood transfusions, is under control, physicians said after making tests today.

THOUSANDS POUR INTO WISCONSIN FOR LABOR DAY

Find Right of Way Dispute Mars Journey.

BY HAL FOUST.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Pouring from Chicago over all its important highways this morning and this afternoon were streams of holiday motorists. Unless the weather stems the tide there will be a million such excursionists in 300,000 automobiles on the roads of the metropolitan area during this three day week-end.

Highway police anticipate such a record touring volume. If this anticipation is realized, it will be a fitting climax to a season of record travel. Labor day, closely followed by the opening of city schools, ends the busy season at summer resorts.

Banner Tourist Year.

THE TRIBUNE roadster, leaving Chicago at noon, was in the movement over the pavements toward the lakes and woods of Wisconsin. This state is closing a banner tourist year that brought approximately a quarter of a billion dollars into its boundaries. Catering to the recreational traveler and vacationists ranks second only to agriculture in the economics of Wisconsin.

Most of the holiday travel northward from Chicago was on highways more to the west, leaving the metropolis on the Northwest highway, Rand road, or Milwaukee road, but there was a goodly number of automobiles with suitcases, picnic baskets, and fishing or camping paraphernalia in the trafic on United States 41 followed by THE TRIBUNE roadster.

Skokie Road Preferred.

The Skokie road was preferred to the Waukegan road in leaving the city because of a detour in the Waukegan road for the construction of a railroad grade separation in Glenview. This should be a tip to those who will be returning to Chicago in the congestion of late Monday afternoon and evening.

U. S. 41 was far from being as desirable as it might be were it not that some Lake Forest millionaires are giving the Illinois highway department difficulty in acquiring right of way for the extension northward of the broad Skokie road. The superhighway is finished south of Lake Forest to Oakton street and work is in progress, with much pavement already finished, north of the suburb, but there's a gap at Lake Forest that is still not under contract.

Pavement Is Inadequate.

If Illinois can settle this right of way problem, the four lane pavement should be finished north to the Wisconsin line by late next summer. The broken and tortuous old pavement now carrying the U. S. 41 markers north from Waukegan's Grand avenue is not only inadequate for a comfortable and convenient movement of its large volume of trafic, but it is also so rough as to constitute a serious hazard. This section will be abandoned by through travel when the new route is completed.

Wisconsin likewise has an improvement program for U. S. 41 that will carry a four lane pavement to the Illinois line by the end of 1936 so that the worst slab now in use can be abandoned by through trafic.

Racine County Busy.

The superhighway is complete at present from Milwaukee south to the Racine county line with two one way slabs separated by a 50 foot parkway. Racine county this summer has been grading and paving a two lane road from the Milwaukee county line 4½ miles south to Thompsonville. It is parallel to the present 41, separated from it by a 20 foot parkway, and will carry north bound trafic as soon as it is opened. Or all the trafic can be put on the new slab while the old two lane road is replaced.

This road will be continued next year from Thompsonville to the Kenosha county line, about 7½ miles farther.

In Kenosha county there is a four mile stretch south of the Racine county line which is to be improved next year. South of that grading is being finished from Wisconsin 43 to the Illinois line, about two miles west of the old 41. It will be paved next year. This road when completed will have two 20 foot lanes separated by a 20 foot parkway.

WILL GIVE $1,000 TO EACH OF HIS 40 NIECES, NEPHEWS

Frank's birthday will be Sept. 8 and the neighbors think he'll be 80 years old.

It wasn't Frank who found out about the surprise, though. It was the neighbors.

They learned Orr who works in the cemetery here was planning to turn custom around and give a present to each of his 40 nephews and nieces—$1,000 apiece.

Frank wouldn't talk about it but it was understood he planned to give the money to his only heirs at a big party to which they were all invited.

And the reason, the neighbors said, was that several of Mr. Orr's nieces are nearly 70 years old and he wants them to enjoy their declining years.

Orr once was prominent in Democratic politics and was understood to own more than 1,000 acres of rich Illinois farm land.

PLAINTIFS IN TWO SUITS DIVORCED AND WED IN DAY

County building records disclosed yesterday the principals in two divorce suits married on Friday within a few hours after their two decrees of divorce were signed by Superior Judge Walter T. Stanton. The persons who made the trip from the court to the marriage bureau are Mrs. Carmen M. Pendleton and Allen H. Fagan, brother of Ina Claire, motion picture actress, whose real name is Ina Fagan.

Last March 16 Attorney David Katz filed divorce suits on behalf of Fagan and Mrs. Pendleton. Both charged desertion, and service on the defendants was by publication. They are Mrs. Helen T. Fagan and George Gaylord Pendleton. Both were reported to be in California.

Fagan, who is 42 years old and lives at 437 North St. Louis avenue, testified at the hearing on Thursday that he and Mrs. Fagan were married in 1918 in Boston and that there were no children. He said that Mrs. Fagan left him seven years ago.

Mrs. Pendleton, who is 24 years old and lives at 4428 Kenmore avenue, testified that she married Pendleton in New York City in 1929 and they separated in January, 1934. They have one child, Elizabeth Lou, 4 years old.

LINDBERGH BACK WITH KIN AFTER FISHING JAUNT

He immediately went to the home of his half-sister, Mrs. George W. Christie, and there rejoined his wife, who had spent a quiet day visiting and resting.

The couple's future plans were not revealed, although it was indicated yesterday they might leave tomorrow.

Lindbergh yesterday flew to Little Falls alone, borrowing the automobile of an old friend, Martin Engstrom. He returned to Little Falls today, and after returning the car, went to the Camp Ripley airport and took off in his plane.

Lindbergh's whereabouts on his automobile trip were unrevealed, but Engstrom volunteered the opinion the filer "probably had been fishing."

TUNNEL CAVES IN ON 2 SISTERS AT PLAY; KILLS ONE

Betty Van Brussel, 12 years old, 11206 Vernon avenue, was suffocated yesterday at Beverly Shores, Ind., when the roof of a cave which she and her sister Amelia, 10 years old, had tunneled into the side of a sand hill collapsed. The girl was buried under four feet of sand.

The two sisters had been digging into the sand hill for several days while staying at a cottage with their mother, Mrs. Norma Van Brussel. When the cave roof fell on Betty, Amelia ran to the cottage some 200 yards away and informed Mrs. Van Brussel. The mother and two men recovered the girl's body, and an inhalator from Michigan City was used, but Betty could not be revived.

FLAT TENANT ROBS MANAGER.

Philip Stevens, manager of an apartment building at 1048 Byron street, was robbed of $20 yesterday by two gunmen who invaded his office at that address. Stevens said one of the men rented a room in the building on Friday.

MOLINE AIRMAN IN RACE CRASH; THEN WINS CUP

Harold Neuman Unhurt at Cleveland.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland Air Port, O., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Harold Neuman of Moline, Ill., brought the deepest gasp from the 60,000 persons watching the National Air races here today when he crashed in landing his Howard monoplane racer after a stunting exhibition.

Bringing the fast little plane down with plenty of speed, he struck a bump in the field at the moment his wheels touched. The landing gear buckled and the ship squashed to the ground, sliding along on its fuselage before snubbing its nose and coming to an abrupt stop.

Flyer Is Uninjured.

Fears were allayed when Neuman calmly stepped out of the cockpit and wig-wagged with his arms to indicate he was unhurt. He immediately entered the second heat of the Louis W. Greve trophy race in a similar plane and took first place in what was the hardest fought competition of the day against Art Chester of Glenview, Ill., flying his Menasco powered Chester special, Lee Miles in his similarly powered racer, and R. A. Kling in his Keith rider also with a Menasco engine. Kling dropped out with a smoking engine on lap two. Neuman's time was 194.93 miles an hour.

The first women's air race at this meet since 1933, was run off during the afternoon. Restricted to approved type planes with speeds less than 150 miles an hour, the women put on a slow exhibition which was won by Melba Beard of New York City at the average speed of 90.037 miles an hour. She flew a Warner powered biplane.

Second and third went respectively to Mrs. Edith J. Bernson, wife of an army air corps officer of Washington, D. C., who flew a Bird with a Kinner 100 horsepower engine, and Miss Edna Gardner, nurse in a naval hospital at Washington, who flew a Porterfield monoplane, Le Blond 80 horsepower motor.

Stunt Flying Shown.

Definitly the emphasis on this second day at the races was upon aerobatics and formation flying. Probably the best of the lot was Gerd Achgelis, German student of Ernest Udet, who flew inverted less than 20 feet off the ground while waving both hands over his head.

The army's stunt trio, "the men on the flying trapeze," were peers of Achgelis. These officers, Maj. C. L. Chennault, Lieut. J. H. Williamson, and Lieut. W. C. McDonald from the air corps school at Maxwell field, Alabama, did a formation roll and a formation spin along with all the more usual formation stunts.

Clem Sohn of East Lansing, Mich., and Babe Smith, a girl jumper, bailed out of a ship at 10,000 feet and opened their chutes at less than 1,000. Sohn wore his bat wings and demonstrated his gliding.

Almost of equal interest was Harold Johnson's stunting of a tri-motor Ford.

The first pursuit group from Selfridge field in 12 Boeing P-26 low wing fighters demonstrated army skill.

Howard's Victory Official.

Just before the races opened for the day Carl F. Schory, chief timer, announced that Benny Howard, the Chicago airline pilot had been officially declared winner of the Bendix trophy race of yesterday.

During the morning two of the closed course races rained out of the program yesterday were run off. The first was between four standard sport planes, powered with motors of 550 or less cubic inch motors, five laps over the five mile quadrangular course, for an $800 purse.

The winner, George Harte in a Cessna cabin monoplane with a Warner 145 horse power motor; second, Tex Rankin in a Ryan sport monoplane, 90 horse power Menasco motor; third, Jack Morris in a Monocoupe, Lambert 90 horse power engine. The winner's average speed was 141.578 miles an hour.

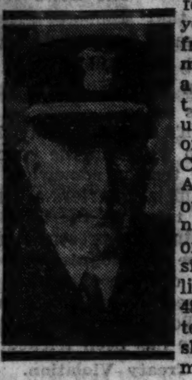
ALLMAN OUSTS ALCOCK; TRIES OUT NEW LAW

68 Policemen Promoted, 20 to Lieutenancies.

John H. Alcock, first deputy commissioner of police and storm center of police politics for nearly 25 years, was ousted from the department last night and placed on the retired list under a general order issued by Commissioner Allman. The ouster accompanied a transfer order which assigned 20 new lieutenants and 48 new sergeants to stations, and shifted 41 patrolmen.



JOHN H. ALCOCK.

The removal of Alcock, expected for some months, was based on a new state law removing from the civil service lists all police officials above the rank of captain. It has been known that the legislation was passed for the specific purpose of ousting Alcock. His post of deputy commissioner is to remain vacant, according to Commissioner Allman, who said the order was "for the good of the service."

Alcock first joined the department in 1894. He became deputy commissioner in 1918.

On June 16, 1930, a former Republican administration named Alcock acting commissioner of police. On Oct. 1, 1931, Mayor Cermak appointed Allman to succeed Alcock.

Pension $4,000 a Year.

Alcock reverted to his civil service rating of deputy commissioner. Though he drew a salary of $8,000 a year, he was given command over only three policemen and a few deputies. Alcock's pension will be $4,000 a year.

The twenty new lieutenants and 48 new sergeants named in the transfer order were sworn in yesterday by Donald Hinckley, acting secretary of the department, at the detective bureau. They are to fill vacancies and to command 500 new police added to the department. The lieutenants and the stations to which they have been assigned are:

William M. Collins, Chicago Lawn; Ralph A. Weaver, Cragin; John J. Lennon, New City; James P. Mulcahy, North Damen avenue; James W. McCarthy, Stockyards; William B. McCann, Gresham; John J. McGarvey, detective bureau; Archie F. Kane, detective bureau; George E. McCormick, Morgan Park; Patrick J. O'Shea, West Chicago; John C. McSween, Summerdale; Wallace J. Monroe, South Chicago; William A. Keith, Chicago Lawn; Herbert H. Burns, Lawndale; Michael P. Naughton, detective bureau; Harry A. Fullmer, police training division; Robert J. Sullivan, Marquette; William E. Bergen, Austin, and Stephen J. O'Meara, Stockyards. James J. Doyle, also promoted to lieutenant, remains with the trafic division.

Other Changes in Department.

Lieut. Edward Kelliher of the West Chicago station was transferred to Marquette, and Frank J. Yore, 215 North Mayfield avenue, was reinstated in the department as a lieutenant and assigned to the Lawndale station.

The following patrolmen were named sergeant:

GOVERNOR ASKS STATE TO BACK SAFER DRIVING

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner tonight issued a special message to the citizens of Illinois urging them to join with the people of other states in observing September as street and highway safety month.

The governor declared that "a problem of real concern to the state of Illinois and the nation is the appallingly useless loss of life and limb resulting from carelessness in the operation of automobiles, which no citizen can lightly evade or fail to share the responsibility for its correction when he is faced with the startling fact that more than 30,000 lives are lost annually in the United States from this cause and more than a million persons are injured."

The governor's message was issued simultaneously with those of executives of other states participating in the now four year old national movement to reduce accidents. Gov. Horner's message stressed the number of fatalities on Illinois' highways, and urged the citizens to "participate in this movement with a full knowledge of the sad record and the individual responsibility it places on our citizens to help reduce the loss of life on our streets and highways."

SICK BABY DIES IN CRASH; ANOTHER KILLED AT PLAY

County Toll Cut 22% in 8 Months.

Two babies were killed in automobile accidents in Chicago yesterday.

Raymond Fotoplos, 2907 North 73d avenue, Elmwood Park, was hurrying his infant son, Edward, 2 years old, to the Chicago Contagious Diseases hospital when their car collided with a taxicab at Elm and State streets.

The child incurred only minor injuries, but the shock and his weakened condition brought death within a few minutes. The cab was driven by Charles Bergman, 2531 Neva avenue. He and four occupants of the car in which the Fotoplos boy was riding incurred minor hurts.

Boy Killed Playing in Alley.

Edward Ksenzulak, 19 months old, 1 West 112th place, was killed when the rear wheel of an automobile struck him as he was playing in an alley at the rear of his home. The driver of the car, James Divers, 32 years old, 11830 Eggleston avenue, was held for the inquest.

These two deaths and two others yesterday brought the motor fatality total in Cook county so far this year to 613. Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 480 persons had been killed in accidents within the Chicago city limits and 11,024 injured. The other victims:

Lorraine Grabloski, 6 years old. Killed when struck by an automobile as she was running across the street in front of her home at 4814 South Racine avenue. The driver, John Bell, 30 years old, 4605 Emerald avenue, was held for the inquest.

Unidentified man about 35 years old, struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Kraft, 520 North Stone avenue, La Grange, in Ogden avenue near the County Line road. He died as he was being taken to the Hinsdale sanitarium.

John Kratsky, 65 years old, 5061 North Crawford avenue, was killed, and five others were injured yesterday afternoon in a crash of two automobiles near Marinette, Wis.

Mrs. Margaret Teubel, 36 years old, 7947 South Lincoln street, was fatally injured when her automobile was struck by that of Otto Knack, 2707 West 23d street, on Highway 14 near Woodstock in McHenry county.

An unidentified man about 40 years old died in St. James' hospital in Chicago Heights after having been struck by an automobile on the Dixie highway in Crete, Will county. The driver of the car, George Fisher, 3542 West [illegible] place, was released on bond and instructed to appear at the inquest Tuesday.

Eight Month Toll Cut 22 Pct.

Coroner Frank Walsh gave out figures yesterday showing that automobile deaths in Cook county for the first eight months of 1935 showed a decrease of 22 per cent from the figures for the corresponding months of last year. The coroner credited this to Mayor Kelly's safety campaign.

"This improvement," the coroner said, "is the result of the most effective safety campaign in the history of Chicago. Mayor Kelly deserves the commendation of all for the educational campaign he sponsored."

During the first eight months of 1934 there were 799 trafic fatalities in Cook county. During the same period of this year there were but 624, a reduction of 175.

Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

SCHOOL FINANCES IMPROVE AS DAY TO OPEN NEARS

Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, yesterday cited the improved market for tax warants and improved tax collections as proof of a better condition among Cook county rural school districts. The majority of the county schools, outside of Chicago, are scheduled to open Tuesday morning.

"The general financial situation in the rural schools is much better than last year at this time," Puffer remarked. He said the improvement also is due to small economies affected by rural school boards during the last term. Catholic parochial elementary schools are scheduled to open on Wednesday and the parochial high schools and academies on Friday. Chicago public schools are to open on Sept. 16.

GAMBLING SQUAD SEIZES 31 IN 13 DOWNTOWN RAIDS

Strike in Shadow of Police Building.

Central police under Capt. George O'Connor made surprise raids last night on alleged handbooks operating in the shadows of the police headquarters building at 1121 South State street. In the cigar store at 1115 South State street they arrested Robert Warnaker, 813 Lakeside place, and in another cigar store at 1135 South State street arrested Cy Bennett.

These two raids were part of a descent made by police under Capt. O'Connor and Sergt. Frank O'Sullivan from Police Commissioner Allman's office on 13 alleged handbooks in the loop and vicinity. In the raids 31 men were arrested and booked under state and city charges of operating gambling places.

Raids One Place Twice.

One place, 180 West Randolph street, was hit twice by raiders. In the afternoon Sergt. O'Sullivan arrested Tony Coloia, 1435 Flournoy street, at that address and lodged him in the Central station.

Less than three hours later Sergt. Peter Bernacchi of the Central police looked in and found the place operating again. He took into custody three men, Don Lansky, 3437 Congress street; Sam Gross, 3528 Congress street, and Joseph Dennis, 4635 Lake Park avenue.

Raiders Hit Other Sections.

Other raids made by Sergt. O'Sullivan and the number of men arrested in each were as follows: 114 North Dearborn street, 4 men; 71 West Monroe street, 4 men; 610 Plymouth court, 3 men; 320 South Wabash avenue, 3 men; 319 South La Salle street, 3 men; 345 South Clark street, 3 men, and 8 West Lake street, 1 man.

Additional raids made by Capt. O'Connor were: 101 South Wells street, 1 man; 1201 South Michigan avenue, 2 men, and 1208 South Michigan avenue, 1 man.

ACCUSED BY WIFE, HUSBAND ADMITS SLAYING OF RIVAL

Victim Killed After Night of Drinking.

Confronted by his wife at the Shakespeare avenue police station, Robert V. Richards, 34 years old, 2827 Fullerton avenue, confessed yesterday that he killed Leif Larsen, 35 years old, 2319 North California avenue, with whom Mrs. Richards had been friendly for more than a year. Richards, a shipping clerk, was arrested on the accusation of his wife, Jean, 27 years old, soon after Larsen's bullet pierced body was found in an alley near their home.

The comely housewife, who was to have celebrated her birthday today with a gala party, admitted she had been friendly with Larsen, a former café "bouncer," and said she planned to marry him "as soon as he became financially able." The shooting occurred at the entrance to an alley at the rear of 2759 Fullerton avenue. Richards met Larsen near there after the latter had accompanied Mrs. Richards to a point near her home.

Tells of Visit With Larsen.

Mrs. Richards met Larsen in his room Friday evening, she said, and remained in his company until about 3:45 yesterday morning, most of which time was spent in a tavern at North and California avenues.

"I had heard my wife was stepping out," Richards told police, "so when she left the house Friday night I asked where she was going. She said 'out' and that she wouldn't be back until about 2:30 a. m. I saw that the children were washed and put to bed and then I went to a tavern. I returned about 12:30 a. m. and waited for my wife to come home.

"About 3:45 a. m. I walked down to California and Fullerton avenues and met her. I had expected to find a man there and I did. When I got up to him I recognized him as Larsen. I said 'I thought I told you to stay away from my wife.' He said 'What are you going to do about it?' I asked him to come to my house and talk it over. He said 'There's nothing to talk over. You're out. Beat it.'

Husband Tells of Shooting.

"Then he drew back his arm like he was going to strike. I pulled out the gun I had in my coat pocket and fired. He turned and ran east up an alley. I threw the gun in some grass and went home and got into bed."

Police arrested Richards at his home after a milkman discovered Larsen's body. Mrs. Richards had gone to Larsen's home to look for him, fearing her husband had harmed him, and was on her way to the police station to report his absence when she came upon a squad of police around the body.

QUITS METHODIST CHURCH IN CLASH OVER RADICALISM

Evanston Lay Leader Assails Radicals.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Protesting against activities of a radical minority in the pulpits and official circles of the Methodist Episcopal church, Burt J. Denman, a leading layman of the First Methodist church, Evanston, and vice chairman of the board of the Garrett Biblical institute, yesterday announced his decision to resign membership and all connections in the Methodist church.

The announcement was in the form of a letter to the Rev. Dr. L. O. Hartman, editor of Zion's Herald, independent Methodist journal, Boston, as a result of that periodical's recent editorial criticism of the action of the Methodist laymen's conference of the central west. The laymen's action was toward curbing the spread of socialistic ideals by certain pastors, church editors, and officials, and setting up studies of the relationship of church and social economics.

Comments on Utility Practices.

Mr. Denman, who is general manager of the United Power and Light company, Bankers' building, took special exception to the Hartman editorial's reference to "diabolical methods used by utility companies in their efforts to forestall legislation affecting them."

The Hartman editorial called the recent statement issued by the laymen's conference an "insinuation" which arouses suspicions against all ministers.

"We believe the laymen's insinuation is essentially false," the editorial stated. "Here and there, possibly, among the 16,000 ministers of the church, there might be found an isolated individual who has distorted or misrepresented Christianity, but that scarcely justifies the raising of suspicion in the minds of Methodists that their ministers are not true and loyal to the faith."

Defends Power Officials.

Mr. Denman paraphrased this paragraph in his letter to Dr. Hartman as follows: "Here and there, among the thousands of officers of utility companies," the paraphrase said, "there might be found an isolated individual who has been dishonest and even criminal, but that scarcely justifies the raising of suspicion in the minds of members of the Methodist church that all utility officers are dishonest."

"But you do that very thing," Mr. Denman wrote, "and it is being done continually in publications of the Methodist church and in many Methodist pulpits."

16 DEMAND JURY TRIAL IN BARGE GAMBLING RAID

Owners, operators, and patrons of the Showboat Sam, an alleged gambling house operated on an old barge out in the lake off Navy pier, asked a jury trial when arraigned on gambling charges yesterday before Judge Frank M. Padden in the Town Hall court. It was agreed to present preliminary motions to Judge Padden next Friday, and then, if the 16 defendants still insist, to give them a trial by jury.

Attorney John B. Tierney, representing Joseph Lucas, 1118 North State street, said to be the owner; James Johnson, 3337 Wall street, alleged "keeper," and fourteen persons employed on the boat, informed the court he would challenge the city's jurisdiction in the case. He said the boat, on which the police in a raid Friday found slot machines and other gambling devices, is anchored one and a half miles northeast of the end of the Navy pier, and that it is three miles from the shore line. The city, he contends, has no juridiction beyond the three mile limit. This point, however, is in dispute. The coast guard designated the place at which the Showboat Sam might anchor, Attorney Tierney said.

Child Attempts to Pet Monkey; Severely Bitten

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—While attempting to pet a monkey that had escaped frim its cage, William Holt, 3 years of age, was critically bitten by the animal at Laguana Beach yesterday.

BARBERS SLASH PRICES IN SPITE OF INJUNCTION

Fear Fines, but Bow to Keen Competition.

For a second time the price fixing proclivities of Cook county courts don't seem to be taken seriously by the persons at whom such injunctions have been leveled.

Half a dozen reporters for THE TRIBUNE toured the loop and surrounding territory yesterday and found any number of barber shops blithely disregarding the injunction issued by Judge Peter M. Schwaba of the Superior court.

This injunction restrains barbers from charging less than 50 cents for a haircut or less than 25 cents for a shave. Actual prices in the cut rate shops range from as low as 20 cents for a haircut up to 25 cents, and 40 cents.

Wide Difference of Opinion.

Some barbers bewail price cutting, but declare competition forces it. Others gayly post the lower rates and assert that more modest charges crowd their shops.

Three barbers already have been found in contempt of court by Judge Schwaba, and their appeals are pending.

At 1157 Adams street a barber shop is doing a thriving business at 25 cents a haircut. In the same neighborhood the prices in other shops range from 25 to 40 cents. On North State street 25 cent haircuts may be obtained at Nos. 536, 517, and 407.

In a shop at 432 North State street a haircut may be bought for 20 cents. One reporter found a 25 and 15 cent establishment at 847 South State street which did such a business that the reporter couldn't get service.

Slashes Bring Big Trade.

Alex Cook, who runs a shop with three chairs at 747 North Leavitt street, charged 50 cents until three weeks ago. Then he cut prices to 25 cents and is doing a thriving business.

Ward Longston, whose place is at 9 West Chicago avenue, mournfully remarked that competition had forced him to cut his price to 25 cents.

"It looks as if every barber is facing a fine," he said, "but you have to keep down with competition."

Price fixing in the cleaning and dyeing business has met with a similar result. Circuit Judge Benjamin Epstein issued an injunction to keep cleaning prices up, but several independents are advertising cleaning for as low as 49 cents a garment.

JUDGE LEWIS SINKING, SAYS HIS PHYSICIAN

Chief Justice Harry A. Lewis of the Superior court, who suffered an attack of cerebral thrombosis on Aug. 14, is "gradually sinking," according to his physician, Dr. Frederick A. Lofton, 6340 Normal avenue. His death, the doctor said yesterday, "is a matter of hours." Judge Lewis is surrounded by members of his family in his home at 6629 Harvard avenue. He was stricken while at his summer home near Ludington, Mich., and has gradually grown weaker since the attack. Dr. Lofton said that he is in a coma, having failed to recognize members of his family since Friday. Judge Lewis is 66 years old.

RECOVER UNIDENTIFIED BODY.

The body of an unidentified man about 45 years old was taken from the lake at the foot of Harrison street yesterday by Capt. John Anderson of the coast guard and removed to the county morgue.

IL DUCE DEFIES ALL WHO SEEK TO THWART HIM

Declares Italy Is Ready to Meet Foes.

TRENTO, Italy, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini paid a surprise visit today to this town where he was once a newspaper editor, and told a cheering populace:

"Those who do not know how to grasp the wheel of destiny in historic moments perhaps will never grasp it."

Il Duce drove into Trento after completion of gigantic war maneuvers in northern Italy near Bolzano. There he announced plans to call 200,000 more troops to the colors and warned:

"The world should know yet again that as long as one talks absolutely and provocatively of sanctions [penalties for treaty violations] he will not give up one soldier, one sailor, or one aviator."

He obviously referred to Great Britain.

Says Plans Will Go Forward.

In his brief but bristling speech here, Il Duce said:

"All those who delude themselves with the idea of arresting or slowing up with miserable politics the forceful march of this young fascist Italy shall be disillusioned."

His entrance into the town, where he was once in bad repute with Austrian authorities, was that of a triumphant hero. Thousands of blackshirts, soldiers and citizens lined the streets, through which his automobile passed to the prefecture's.

Mussolini paid a tribute to his former editor, Cesare Battisti, who was executed by the Austrians for articles against Austrian authority in Trento territory prior to the world war. Il Duce himself once spent some months in jail for his own articles demanding restoration of the territory, which came back to Italy after the war.

Raises Army to 1,000,000.

Mussolini's announcement at Bolzano that 200,000 men will be called to service in September means Italy's forces will be brought to more than 1,000,000 men. The conscripted classes which otherwise would be dismissed at the close of maneuvers, will be kept in service indefinitly.

Standing at the top of a valley, with a vast army below him—infantry, cavalry and artillery units—and King Victor Emmanuel beside him, Mussolini said:

"The demonstration you have furnished these last days, and above all the high morale which animates you, give us a sense of security that if tomorrow the country calls you to fulfill tasks requiring more sacrifices you will do so with enthusiasm, courage and resolute decision to the very end."

Political observers attached great importance to the fact that the king was present at Mussolini's speech. They said Il Duce's threat to England concerning sanctions thereby became more forceful. Usually the king leaves before speeches of any political nature are made.

Rome Eyes Ethiopian Deal.

ROME, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Italian official circles received tonight with satisfaction, mingled with reserve, the statement by the British government advising Emperor Haile Selassie to withhold concessions he has granted American and English interests.

A government spokesman said that, inasmuch as it had refrained from commenting upon reports of the granting of the concessions while awaitinng official corroboration, it could do nothing less than await official corroboration of the strong stand England was reported to have taken against the concessions. Dino Grandi, the Italian ambassador to London, was asked for full details upon Britain's attitude toward the concessions.

Well informed circles were represented as feeling the English action would pacify Italian feelings, which have run high today against what some regarded as "another British trick" to nullify the Italian program in East Africa.

Claims Pacts Are Violated.

The newspaper Giornale D'Italia, in an article written by Virginio Gayda, editor, who is considered to be excellently informed upon the government's plans, assailed the concessions.

Gayda said they could not fail to arouse Italian hostility and would violate three treaties, those of 1891, 1894, and 1906.

"England's attitude as regards the Italo-Ethiopian problem is supposed to have been inspired by the highest idealist principles," the article continued. "We demand to know how news of the concessions can be harmonized with these principles and how England can be exonerated from the suspicion of particular interest."

Warning Britain against too broad an interpretation of Mussolini's stated respect for British interests, Gayda said:

"There is no need to exaggerate. Mussolini referred to interests already constituted, recognized, and recognizable. According to reports describing this concession, his declaration should be taken to cover British consortship quickly improvised at Addis Ababa. Mussolini did not mean to sign such a blank check. He did not intend to convey the idea that if Great Britain should suddenly affirm that Ethiopia should be considered one of Great Britain's vast interests Italy would retire immediately from the affair, cutting off her own head."

Ethiopia Confirms Deal.

[World Copyright: 1935: By Associated Press.]

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Aug. 31.—The swift stroke of Emperor Haile Selassie in turning over about half his empire to English and American interests for exploitation was generally regarded today as blocking Italian economic penetration of Ethiopia.

An official communique confirmed the concession, made as the emperor prepared for a feared Italian invasion. Diplomatic quarters here appeared stunned. The communique said an oil concession was granted to the African Exploration and Development company, incorporated in Delaware, for development of oil resources.

At the same time another concession was granted separate English interests, a corporation known as the Lake Tsana Conservancy Syndicate, giving it the right in perpetuity to build a dam and pumping stations at Lake Tsana, headwaters of the Blue Nile. The lake is vital to Egyptian Sudan's water supply.

Speculation was keen here over the effect of the concession upon the Anglo-Franco-Italian treaty of 1906, which divided Ethiopia into spheres of economic influence and pledged the countries to defend Ethiopia's independence. Registration of the company in the United States and its backing by American capital, some sources believed, would prevent any intervention by the three powers. They pointed out that the door is not closed to investors of other countries.

20,000 Priests Volunteer.

Twenty thousand Ethiopian priests notified Emperor Haile Selassie today of their willingness to battle beside regular warriors to resist any invading legions from Italy.

The first evidence of this backing was seen in the streets of the capital today with scores of priests, wearing conical hats, drilling with rifles outside the cathedral.

The emperor announced plans to use six American planes as Red Cross transport ships to carry wounded men, medical supplies, and doctors. The planes were a gift to the emperor from Egyptians of all creeds. They were acquired through Francis M. Rickett, the British promoter who negotiated with the emperor for economic concessions.

ETHIOPIAN TROOPS MOVE TO FRONTIER

FRENCH WAR GAMES TO OPEN TOMORROW; BIGGEST SINCE 1918

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 31.—With the grandiose Italian military maneuvers terminated, the French war games will begin Monday morning. They will be the biggest since the world war, and among the foreign military missions present the star guest will be Marshal Pietro Badoglio of Italy. He will be accompanied by his chief of the general staf, Gen. Viscount Prasca; Maj. Gen. Ambrosio, inspector of the mobile corps; Lieut. Col. Morosini, chief of staf of the First motorized division; Lieut. Col. Serafini, member of the army staf, and several others.

It is considered significant that a majority of the Italian mission are specialists in mobile warfare, which many experts consider is replacing trench warfare. Mobile warfare will be the theme of the opening week of the French maneuvers, which will continue a full month.

Gen. Pretelat will be in charge of the maneuvers. The first phase of the games will take place between Rheims and Rethel. The second phase will operate around the Meuse river. The third phase will take place in the mountains. The month's series of maneuvers will terminate around Mourmelon.

NAZIS TO USE ALL WAR WEAPONS IN BIG ARMY GAMES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—All weapons of modern warfare will be used by the German army for the first time since the treaty of Versailles was signed when the fall maneuvers are staged in the district of Lueneburg by the Sixty Army corps, German papers announced today.

The maneuvers will last from Sept. 2 to Sept. 7. In the first half they will show "how divisions fight against enemies twice as strong coming from the west. The aim is to keep the enemy in check and then to withdraw to the rear to fight a decisive battle."

Civilians were told they may join the troops as battle fans.

Six Coal Miners Suffocate to Death in French Pit

BRUAY, France, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Six coal miners died slowly of asphyxiation within sight of scores of companions, helpless to save them, in the pocket of a mine here last night. When artificial respiration apparatus arrived and rescuers were able to enter the pocket they found the men dead.

One Slain and One Injured as Reds Riot in Vienna

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 31.—(AP)—One person was killed and one injured during a communist demonstration in the Ottakring district of the city last night. The injured man was a member of the Fascist heimwehr [home guard]. He was knocked down when trying to make an arrest. A demonstrator was killed when he drew his pistol and fired.

Oil Chiefs Deny Knowledge of Ethiopian Oil Concession

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—While heads of oil companies in the Standard Oil group denied they had anything to do with the Rickett concession in Ethiopia, and Wall street was outspokenly skeptical of the reports, it was learned that the African development company had expressly pany had been incorporated in Delaware on July 11 to exploit the concession.

The company was incorporated by the United States Corporation company, of 150 Broadway, which specializes in incorporating companies for interests which desire to remain temporarily behind the scenes. According to dispatches from Dover, Del., the names of the incorporators were stated as Alfred W. Britton, Edward S. Williams, and Vincent W. Westrup. All are employés of the United States Corporation company.

Refuses to Reveal Names.

Mr. Westrup declined to name the officers of the company or to give any information about it. He explained that his organization was obligated to preserve complete secrecy until its clients were ready to announce themselves.

The papers filed in Delaware said that the company would issue 5,000 shares of stock of $100 par value for the purpose of exploration and development of natural resources, to bore and drill for petroleum products, and to seek out precious stones, gold, silver, and asphalt.

W. S. Farish, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company, New Jersey, denied that the company or any subsidiary was interested in the concession, or that the African Development Exploration company was in reality a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company, New Jersey, as reported in dispatches.

Never Even Considered.

"So far as our having any interest in the matter is concerned," he said, "it has never been considered or talked of."

Representatives here of the Socony-Vacuum Oil company, which has world-wide ramifications, repeated the statement of John A. Brown, its president and chairman of the executive committee, made in Los Angeles, that the company had nothing to do with the concession or the development company.

Officials of the Standard Oil of New York and other Standard Oil companies made similar disclaimers.

Dr. Barnum Brown, curator of fossil reptiles at the American Museum of Natural History, revealed that he had made a survey of the oil producing possibilities of Ethiopia in 1922 and 1923 for the Anglo-American Oil Company, Ltd., a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company, New Jersey, as a result of which the company had turned down a project for oil development there.

While there had been large deposits of oil in Ethiopia a long time ago, probably a million years ago, said Dr. Brown, he did not think there was any great amount of oil in the country now.

Henry A. Lardner, a vice president of the J. G. White Engineering company, which was negotiating for the construction of a dam at Lake Tsana, Ethiopia, until the war clouds arose, agreed with Dr. Brown that the country offered little lure for the exploitation of oil.

WEIZMANN AGREES TO BECOME HEAD OF WORLD ZIONIST BODY

LUCERNE, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, scientist and Zionist leader, late tonight agreed to accept the presidency of the World Zionist organization. In agreeing to accept the post, however, Dr. Weizmann named two conditions, both of which are believed certain to be met.

One is that the next world Zionist congress be convoked four years from now. Since 1903 the congress has been convoked biennially with the exception of the period from 1913 to 1921, when none was held. Between 1897, date of the first world meeting, and 1903, the congresses were held annually.

A second condition named by Dr. Weizmann is that Prof. Louis B. Namier and Leonard Stein be elected for the political work of the Zionist executive. Namier and Stein are both former political secretaries of the world Zionist organization. Namier is a noted British historian, lecturing in modern history at Balliol college, Oxford, and has been a member of parliament, serving on the house of commons record committee.

3 ON GERMAN BOAT KILLED IN WARSHIP CRASH

PORTLAND, England, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The mighty British battleship Ramillies docked at Portsmouth today with the bodies of three members of the crew of the German freighter Eisenach, who were killed when their ship was in a collision with the Ramillies in the storm lashed channel last night. Several members of the crew of the Eisenach were injured. The small freighter was towed into Dover harbor, a 40 foot gash extending in it below the water line.

The admiralty is understood to have called a naval court of inquiry. An official statement said the collision occurred while a stiff southwesterly wind was blowing and visibility was reduced by a heavy rain.

When the Eisenach moored at Dover, its swastika flapping at half staf, the crew was exhausted from a fight of 20 hours to keep the ship afloat.

Guns and Bullets Stolen from U. S. Army in Panama

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA, C. Z., Aug. 31.—Military authorities today revealed the theft of guns and ammunition last night from Company C of the United States Engineers at the Corozal post. It is feared they may be in the hands of Panamanian oppositionists. Four machine guns, four automatic rifles, three pistols, 500 rounds of machine gun bullets and 100 rounds of pistol ammunition were stolen.

FARMERS REJECT PLEA OF POLISH REDS TO UNITE

WARSAW, Aug. 31.—[U. P.]—The Polish radical farmers' party today bluntly rejected the suggestion of the Polish communist party for the formation of a "united front" against the government.

This was the second rebuff to Polish communists in their attempt to follow the mandate of the recent Internationale communist party congress, calling upon party members in foreign countries to unite with other "liberal" elements in the fight on capitalistic governments. The first came from the Polish social democratic party.

The opposition of farmers' party to the government recently was accentuated by administration advocacy of an "authoritative form of state." The party regards it as an attempt to impose a dictatorship.

In a letter rejecting the communist offer, the farmers' party emphasized it was unable to "coöperate with a party which is receiving directions from Moscow," because, despite its opposition to the present government, "the farmers' party will always remain firm champions of a national Polish state."

BRITISH MINERS WARN OF STRIKE; SEEK PAY RAISE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Warning of a national strike in the coal industry unless mine owners concede to demands for an increase in pay of 50 cents a day was contained in a manifesto issued today by the mine workers' federation.

"Present wages are a disgrace to a civilized community," the manifesto declares. "Mining has become a sweated industry."

It points out that thousands of workers receive less than $10 a week. The only means of averting a stoppage of work, the manifesto adds, is for public opinion to "compel the owners to adopt a more reasonable attitude." Previous strikes, it is recalled, have cost the country millions of sterling.

80 Die as Bubonic Plague Hits 3 Manchukuo Areas

HSINKING, Manchukuo, Aug. 31.—(AP)—South Manchuria railway health returns today showed 80 deaths from 170 cases of bubonic plague in three provinces west and northwest of here during the last week. The disease scourges the west central zone of Manchukuo every year. The deaths of the last week were in the Shuanshan, Changling, and Akuan districts. Rodents are believed to be the carriers.

OIL CONCESSION BY ETHIOPIA IS PUZZLE TO U. S.

Officials Watch Situation, but Remain Silent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Although Secretary of State Cordell Hull declined to discuss the huge Ethiopian oil deed to Anglo-American interests, except in terms of general policies, there were indications here today that the state department was watching the situation with profound concern.

Official notification that the petroleum concession was reported to have been signed was received by the state department from Cornelius Van H. Engert, American chargé d'affaires at Addis Ababa. Secretary Hull, however, said he had no more information concerning the grant than others who relied upon the press reports.

Standard Denies Interest.

One thing that puzzled officials here was the denial by heads of the Standard Oil company and its affiliates of any knowledge of the transaction. It was the understanding of the American chargé d'affaires, according to information here, that the African Exploration and Development corporation, signer of the charter with Emperor Selassie, was a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The official report of the petroleum grant came a few hours before the United States government embarked upon a new course in international affairs when President Roosevelt signed the neutrality resolution adopted in the closing days of congress. The new law carries a mandatory six months' embargo on the shipment of arms and munitions of war to any belligerent upon the outbreak or during the progress of war.

However, officials pointed out that the prohibition on the shipment of instruments of war to belligerents would not affect this country's right to protect the property of its nationals in a war zone.

None of U. S. Business.

Secretary Hull, at his regular press conference, said the transaction between Ethiopia and private interests was really none of this country's business. He said the administration dealt with policies, rather than with individual projects, and let each individual project stand on its particular set of facts.

The secretary, explaining that the United States had nationals interested in property affairs throughout the world, added that no immediate question presented itself to this government.

Information concerning the Ethiopian grant reaching Washington says it is for seventy-five years and covers the entire area east of a line from Lake Rudolph to the Hawash railway bridge and thence due north to Eritrea. The concessionaire is to pay annually £25,000 in gold coin or bullion, or its equivalent, and a royalty of 1 shilling 6 pence per ton of oil for the first twenty-five years—more thereafter.

Must Drill in Five Years.

The company is required, within one year, to make a geological survey and within five years begin drilling operations until sufficient petroleum has been discovered to meet all Ethiopian requirements plus 2,500,000 tons annually for export.

When it is commercially justifiable, the company shall construct a pipe line to a suitable port. If required by the Ethiopian government, it shall refine enough kerosene and fuel oil for domestic consumption.

SPANISH POLICE FIGHT RADICALS; 2 SLAIN IN CLASH

MADRID, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Spanish government gave its official executioner a bodyguard today in anticipation of a stern campaign to put down Extremist agitation. The last executioner was killed by gangsters three days after he had garroted an Extremist leader, Andres Arando.

A fresh outburst in which two persons were killed and three injured brought the government decision to begin invoking capital punishment against agitators. Police, approaching a group of alleged communists, distributing subversive literature among employés emerging from a factory here for lunch, met gun fire. They returned it and killed one and wounded two of the Extremists. But two policemen also fell wounded, one fatally.

Although the gunmen fled, police said they recognized one and expected an early roundup of the gang. Meanwhile Interior Minister Portela assigned two civil guards to protect Casimiro Municio, the public executioner.

EVANSTON MAN'S LEG SEVERED. Rhinelander, Wis., Aug. 31.—William Harvey, transient who gave Evanston, Ill., as his home, fell under the wheels of a North Western train car today. One leg was severed.

BRITAIN WARNS ETHIOPIA TO CALL OFF OIL DEAL

Fears Violation of 3 Power Pact.

interpreted as a sharp trick by Britain to secure advantages which this country has been warning Mussolini not to steal. Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs, it is feared, will therefore go to the league council meeting with Britain's prestige reduced. It is feared that even the left wing radicals in France who have been supporting England in its demand for strong measures against Italy, may withdraw their support in disgust.

Point to British Position.

In support of their position officials point out that the British government has made it clear on several occasions that Britain has no economic interests in Ethiopia except Lake Tsana.

Even in regard to that, attention is drawn to Eden's statement in the house of commons on July 9 that the British government had informed the Ethiopian government that it favored postponement of any Lake Tsana agreement on the ground that it did not want to take any step which might aggravate the controversy between Italy and Ethiopia at a moment when it is trying its hardest to secure a solution.

The British government, it is declared, while mindful of the interests of Egypt and the Sudan in the upper basin of the Blue Nile, was content to await a more suitable time for pressing through its scheme. This referred to an invitation from the Ethiopian emperor last May to discuss the Lake Tsana agreement.

Bare Previous Rickett Deals.

It was revealed that Rickett, who is somewhat of a mystery man here, has been associated with a number of similar concession deals in the Near East in the last 10 years. He helped to form British Oil Developments, Ltd., in 1928 and obtained a concession for working 45,000 square miles of oil fields in Iraq. Although never on the board, he acted in an advisory capacity for the company. He continued as adviser when British Oil Developments was taken over by Mosul Oil Fields, Ltd., in November, 1932.

Rickett recently has been associated with the Devonport Trust, a private concern. One of his partners in this concern said tonight he did not know Rickett had gone to Ethiopia in behalf of the African Exploration and Development corporation and had no idea how he came to be connected with the firm.

Rickett formerly lived in a large house in Elm park gardens, Chelsea. Recently he moved into a luxurious flat in the same district. He is reputed to be wealthy, has a country estate near Newbury and owns Amroth castle, Pembrokeshire, South Wales, which he purchased from Lord Kylsant, shipping magnate. Rickett's wife and children are at present vacationing there. Rickett is master of hounds of the Craven hunt.

He is supposed to have gotten his start in Africa with minor deals with tribal chieftains. The name of one of England's big banks is associated with the present deal, but no confirmation of this can be obtained here. This bank has large interests already in the near east and its interests are said to have been enlisted through its Palestine agent.

JAIL 300 RIOTERS TO BALK PARADE AIMED AT ITALY

Dozen Girls Claim to Be U. of C. Students.

Some three hundred persons, including about a dozen girls who identified themselves as University of Chicago co-eds, but refused to give their names, were locked in police cells last night after a miniature riot near 47th street and Prairie avenue yesterday when police prevented a demonstration and parade protesting Italian aggression in Ethiopia.

The prisoners, both white and colored, were lodged in cells in several stations, but Supervising Captain Richard Gill declared that all except the more radical agitators would be released.

The parade was to have been staged by the joint conference for the defense of Ethiopia, and police declared that many of those interested were known communists. On three different occasions Police Commissioner James P. Allman refused a permit for the parade.

Backed by U. of C. Professor.

Two of the requests for a permit were submitted by Prof. Robert Morss Lovett of the University of Chicago, who was censured by a legislative committee which investigated alleged communistic activities at the university.

In spite of the refusals of the commissioner, crowds gathered at the corner. Special details of police had been sent to the scene, and stood shoulder to shoulder, swinging clubs to prevent formation of the parade. Heads were thumped freely and the demonstrators screamed curses at the bluecoats as they were hustled into numerous patrol wagons.

Among the prisoners, police said, were Harry Haywood, colored communist organizer, and Thomas M. McKenna, Chicago secretary of the American League Against War and Fascism.

Women Scream in Cells.

Cells at the Wabash avenue station lodged 178 men and 79 women. Police there, unable to maintain order among the women prisoners, threatened to turn a fire hose on them unless they stopped shouting and singing. Other prisoners were taken to the Stockyards and Stanton avenue stations.

According to police, pamphlets calling for the parade carried among the names of the indorsers those of Prof. Lovett, Dr. Arthur E. Halt of the Chicago Theological seminary, Haywood, and officials of several colored organizations.

ETHIOPIAN DEAL UPSETS FRANCE; FEARS 'TRICKERY'

Paris Eyes British Part in Oil Concession.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 31.—The news from Addis Ababa that Emperor Haile Selassie had leased virtually all the mineral wealth of Ethiopia to an Anglo-American consortium stunned French officials today.

Great Britain's action in advising the emperor to withhold the concession eased the tension somewhat tonight, but in official quarters a grave view was still taken of the development, which in the present tense state of Europe is recognized as being potentially capable of setting off hostilities between Great Britain and Italy. Some officials expressed a feeling that France has been tricked.

Seen as Treaty Violation.

In the opinion of the Quai d'Orsay, the deal made by F. M. Rickett, as a representative of the African Exploration and Development corporation, flagrantly violates the British-Franco-Italian treaty of 1906, which allotted to Italy as its sphere of economic influence precisely the territories leased by the emperor to the Rickett outfit. The suggestion that eventually a railroad may follow the projected pipe line to some British port on the Gulf of Aden is felt here to gravely menace France's interest in the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad.

But the reaction here is, above everything else, astonishment. The most experienced diplomats of the Quai d'Orsay are simply flabbergasted by the news and do not know what line to take until the real implications of the transaction are made clear. They are so completely at sea that they cannot decide whether this development offers an unexpected chance to compromise the Italo-Ethiopian situation or renders an Anglo-Italian war inevitable.

Suspicious of Britain.

The crux of the problem is whether Rickett was an agent of the British government or working on his own. The official denial in London that the British foreign office knew anything about the deal is not considered by many here as clearing up the affair. French spokesmen point out that if Rickett were a British agent, it would naturally be denied.

In any case, the diplomatic status of the league of nations' council meeting on Ethiopia next Wednesday has been turned upside down and no one here pretends to know just how events in the next few days will shape up.

PARIS CAB, USED IN MARNE BATTLE, GOES TO OREGON

PARIS, Aug. 31.—(AP)—An old Paris taxicab, guest of honor at a ceremony in Pershing hall arranged by French and American officials, rattled off for its long voyage to Portland, Ore., today, after a final visit to the Arch of Triumph, where the unknown soldier lies.

The cab was one of the famous brigade known as "Taxis of the Marne"—the two-cylinder heroes commandeered to rush thousands of troops from Paris to halt the Germans on the Marne.

The "40 and 8" organization of Oregon bought it through the French branch of the organization. It was purchased from Pierre Pautas, chauffeur and soldier in the battle of the Marne. With French, American and Legion colors flying it rattled under its own power from the ceremonies at Pershing hall to the tomb of the unknown soldier and thence to the freight station.

The taxi leaves Havre on the San Antonio Sept. 6—the anniversary of the battle of the Marne.

BRITAIN TO BLOCK MALTA HARBOR; FLEET NEAR SUEZ

VALETTA, Malta, Aug. 31.—(AP)—An official announcement today said a boom would be laid across the entrance to Grand harbor here next week as a further bolstering of island defenses.

As the announcement was made the bulk of the Mediterranean fleet was drawing in around the Suez canal for what has been announced as "routine" maneuvers.

British Mobilize in Africa.

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Great Britain is concentrating important military and aerial forces on the frontier of British Somaliland and is building a new airdrome.

The French are expected to send military forces into Ethiopia along the line of the Djibouti—Addis Ababa railroad to protect the right of way, informed quarters reported.

15 Million Cases of Deafness According to Latest Figures

If official estimates are correct, there are more than fifteen million cases of impaired hearing in the United States. But if the claim of the inventors of the latest type of hearing aid is also correct—relief in 8 out of 10 cases—the outlook for the deafened grows brighter every day.

Marvelous strides have been made during the past few years in overcoming the infirmity of deafness, but this newest invention, known as the Silver Seal Symphonic Acousticon is said to be far more effective than any other known to scientists.

By making use of the recently perfected method of Bone Conduction, the receiver of this new hearing aid—the part which transmits sound to the inner ear—is worn back of instead of inside the ear, and is very small, compact and unobtrusive. Even those whose ear-drums have been punctured or destroyed, or whose middle ear organs have been impaired, hear remarkably well this new way.

In recent weeks, many deafened who had not heard clearly or comfortably for years have been delighted with their restored ability to share fully in group conversation at room length distances, attend church and the theatre without strain.

This new hearing aid is being shown daily, in private Free Demonstrations, at ACOUSTICON, 180 No. Michigan Blvd., Chicago. Based upon the experience of hundreds who have already tried it, hearing-relief in 8 out of 10 cases is not an overstatement of the facts. No appointment is necessary. You are invited to have a Free Demonstration. Free literature is also available. Write Dept. 716, same address, for full particulars and a copy of the famous booklet, "Defeating Deafness."

NEUTRALITY ACT SIGNED; SEEN AS PEACEFUL MOVE

TVA, Rivers and Harbors Bills Also Approved.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—With the world fearful of an imminent conflict among many nations, President Roosevelt today signed the congressional neutrality resolution which seeks to preserve a semblance of neutrality for the United States during the next six months.

In doing so, the President announced that he had approved the legislation because it was "intended as an expression of the fixed desire of the people of the United States to avoid any action which might involve us in war."

The President also affixed his signature to two other important measures passed by the recent congress. The first was the act giving the Tennessee Valley authority the right to sell surplus power and otherwise expanding its scope. The second was the $600,000,000 rivers and harbors bill.

Leaves for Hyde Park.

Having thus disposed of all the outstanding measures passed by the recent congress, the President left at 11 p. m. for his Hyde Park home on the Hudson where he will rest for three weeks before leaving on a cross-country tour which will eventually land him at San Diego, Cal. He took with him a number of minor bills, most of which he is expected to veto.

The neutrality bill calls upon the President to place an embargo on the export of "arms, ammunitions and implements of war" to all belligerents in the event of war. A last minute compromise between the senate and the house limits the application of the arms embargo to Feb. 29, 1936.

The resolution requires the President, "upon the outbreak or during the progress of war between two or more foreign states" to issue a proclamation and "definitly enumerate the arms, ammunition, or implements of war the export of which is prohibited by this act." A national munitions control board is also set up. Discretionary authority is given the President to prohibit citizens from traveling on vessels of belligerent powers except at their own risk, to prevent the transport of men or war supplies from American ports to war vessels of belligerent nations near our territorial waters and to restrict or prevent belligerent submaries from entering American ports or territorial waters.

President Tells Views.

The President said the purpose of the bill was "wholly excellent." Referring to the embargo section, he declared:

"This section terminates at the end of February, 1936. It requires further and more complete consideration between now and that date. Here again the objective is wholly good. It is the policy of this government to avoid being drawn into wars between other nations, but it is a fact that no congress and no executive can foresee all possible future situations. History is filled with unforeseeable situations that call for some flexibility of action. It is conceivable that situations may arise in which the wholly inflexible provisions of Section I. of this act might have exactly the opposite effect from that which was intended.

Policy of Coöperation.

"In other words, the inflexible provisions might drag us into war instead of keeping us out. The policy of the government is definitly committed to the maintenance of peace and avoidance of any entanglements which would lead us into conflict. At the same time it is the policy of the government by every peaceful means and without entanglement to coöperate with other similarly minded governments to promote peace.

"In several aspects further careful consideration of neutrality needs is most desirable and there can well be an expansion to include provisions dealing with other important aspects of our neutrality policy which have not been dealt with in this temporary measure."

Loans Are Authorized.

In addition to giving the TVA the right to sell surplus power, a point challenged in the federal courts, the amendments signed by the President authorize the authority to make loans to states and municipalities for the purchase of power distributing systems. The TVA is also permitted to issue $50,000,000 in bonds and use the proceeds of the sale for loans to municipalities.

The TVA is also allowed to duplicate existing power lines and may purchase without competitive bidding in "emergencies." Controler General McCarl will audit the authority's books but must submit his report to the TVA, which may add its own explanation before the audit goes to congress.

Three Pens Are Used.

There was no ceremony attending the signing of the neutrality resolution, but Senator George W. Norris [Rad., Neb.], and Representative John E. Rankin [Dem., Miss.] witnessed the signing of the TVA amendments. The President used three pens, giving one each to Norris and Rankin and designating the third for Representative Lister Hill [Dem., Ala.]. All three battled in congress for the amendments.

The third important measure approved by the President authorizes the construction of projects in rivers and harbors throughout the United States estimated to cost approximately 600 million dollars. The bill appropriated no funds for the work but gave congressional permission to proceed with the projects as money is made available. Specific authorization was given for the Parker dam and Grand coulee projects already under construction.

'EXPECTS' TO HEAD CAMPAIGN

James A. Farley, postmaster general and chairman of Democratic national committee, photographed in his suite at the Congress hotel when he paused here yesterday on return to Washington from Hawaii and Pacific coast.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Predicts Victory

On his way to Washington after his Hawaiian vacation, James A. Farley made a single admission to Chicago newspaper men yesterday. That was that he "expects" to manage the 1936 Democratic campaign.

"Of course," he said, "I'm not the man who decides that question, but I guess it wouldn't be going too far to say that I expect to."

There was none of this hesitancy when he was asked whether he still thought President Roosevelt would be renominated.

"And he'll be reëlected," he said as quickly as he could get the words out of his mouth.

He declined to predict when he will carry out his acknowledged plan to retire from the postmaster generalship in order to devote all his time to his work as Democratic national chairman. He said he probably will make a political tour of the country "some time after October." He refused to take seriously the present discussion of a third party. He received no political callers.

Mr. Farley was accompanied by Mrs. Farley and his executive assistant, Ambrose O'Connell. They left for Washington at 3 p. m.

PICK COMMITTEES TO PUSH ILLINOIS G. O. P. CAMPAIGN

Searing Sees Drift from New Deal.

BY PARKE BROWN.

John H. Searing of Carbondale, recently elected chairman of the Republican state central committee, announced in Chicago yesterday the makeup of the committees that will handle the various phases of regular organization affairs during the next fall and winter. The list was made up after conferences in Chicago and at downstate centers.

"There is a very decided drift away from the Democratic national and state administrations," said Chairman Searing, "and we must go ahead at once to bring these voters into the Republican ranks in Illinois, which is certain to be one of the pivotal states in the 1936 election.

"As a first step we have set up our standing committees. We shall communicate with the national committee and prepare to work with it in the presidential and congressional campaigns. No time will be lost in getting our state organization started. Our congressional district and county organizations already have been put in shape by their leaders.

Trend Cheers Republicans.

"Not only the leaders but the Republican workers all over the state have become heartened by the unmistakable weakening of the Democrats. This is particularly true with respect to the Democratic machine in Illinois. The voters are not only disgusted but are resentful of the activities of the state administration.

"They know that the Democratic bosses, state officials and legislators are all to blame for the most extravagant and vicious administration in the history of Illinois.

"Much good already has been done by independent organizations, all working efficiently in their own way for Republican success in 1936. It is our duty now to coördinate their activities with those of the regularly elected officers of the Republican party in Illinois."

23 Committees Named.

Chairman Searing named twenty-three committees in all. The three considered the most important were the following:

EXECUTIVE—Thomas J. Houston, S. Timothy Washington, Edgar B. Elder, Max L. Libby, and John F. Tyrrell of Chicago; William R. Allen, Peoria; Robert S. Jones, Flora; R. R. Bookwalter, Danville; Roy R. Barnes, Bushnell.

GENERAL ORGANIZATION—Robert S. Jones, Flora; C. H. Douglas, Mattoon; R. R. Bookwalter, Danville; Edward L. Richter, Max L. Libby, and S. Timothy Washington, Chicago.

FINANCE—Thomas J. Houston, John F. Tyrrell, and Clement A. Nance, Chicago; William R. Allen, Peoria; R. R. Bookwalter, Danville; Robert S. Jones, Flora, and H. C. Horneman, Danville, treasurer of the state committee.

The first name in each instance is that of the chairman. Houston, chairman of both the executive and finance committees, represents the Cook-Lake district, the Tenth, on the state committee.

Chairman Searing said he is planning to call a meeting of the state committee on or about Sept. 27 at Peoria.

MRS. E. K. SMITH ASKS DIVORCE ON DESERTION PLEA

A suit for divorce was started in the Superior court yesterday by Mrs. Alice Osborne Smith, naming Edwin K. Smith, wealthy chemist and an executive of the Electro-Metallurgical Sales comporation, 230 North Michigan avenue.

The bill, filed by the law firm of Leonard & Leonard, sets forth that the Smiths were married Sept. 4, 1912, in Milwaukee, where Mrs. Smith was a member of a well known family. Smith deserted his family Oct. 1, 1933, the petition charges, and, to the belief of the plaintif, initiated divorce proceedings in Reno, Nev.

The petition asks for an injunction restraining Smith from pressing divorce action in any state other than Illinois, restraining his from disposing of any of his property, and asks for custody of their two children.

VOTERS TO SAVE CONSTITUTION, SAYS HOFFMAN

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Confidence that a majority of American voters will defend the constitution of the United States against the attack of its enemies within and without the government was expressed today by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey.

Gov. Hoffman made this declaration in reply to a letter from John Henry Kirby of Houston, Tex., chairman of the recently organized southern committee to uphold the constitution. Mr. Kirby, a Democrat, had written the governor to inform him that sixteen southern states had been organized "in a militant movement to maintain constitutional liberty" and to ask him for the names of ten men to be placed on the committee's mailing list.

"Our citizens in all parts of the country may well be alarmed at the avowed course of the national administration," wrote Gov. Hoffman.

"Under the domination of the President, who has sworn to uphold and preserve the constitution, the authorities in Washington have ignored the most fundamental principles of American government. They have openly urged and adopted legislation clearly unconstitutional and the federal administration is moving step by step to dictatorial power."

N. Y. PLANS BAR ON USE OF AUTO HORNS AT NIGHT

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—A bar on the use of automobile horns at night to ensure New Yorkers of their sleep is being seriously considered by Mayor La Guardia in connection with the city's anti-noise campaign, it was revealed today.

The mayor's strong inclination to put an end to the raucous tooting of horns has been strengthened as a result of a preliminary report submitted to him by Maj. Henry Curran, his unofficial anti-noise commissioner, showing the success of similar anti-noise measures in London and other European cities.

FILE FIRST SUIT TO TEST GUFFEY SOFT COAL LAW

Constitutionality of Act Is Challenged.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—With the ink from President Roosevelt's pen scarcely dry on the Guffey coal regimentation bill, a suit was filed in the District of Columbia Supreme court today challenging its constitutionality and seeking an injunction to restrain its operation.

Mr. Roosevelt demanded the passage of the measure despite constitutional doubts, "however reasonable," and stated that he wanted a clear test of the limit to which congress could go in regulating industry. Thus he will not have to wait long for that test and it ought to be a good one for the lawyer who filed the suit argued the celebrated Schechter NRA case and won a unanimous decision in the Supreme court.

Frederick H. Wood of New York, who also participated in the famous gold clause cases, but on the side of the government that time, is the lawyer. The plaintif is James W. Carter, president of the Carter Coal company, with headquarters in Washington, and the defendants include Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue.

Compared to NRA.

"The purpose of the Guffey act," said Mr. Wood, "is to subject the coal industry to federal regulation of a character similar to that attempted to be imposed upon all industry by the NRA. This it seeks to accomplish by imposing a tax of 15 per cent on the gross sales of all members of the industry who do join the code provided for in the act.

"Members of the industry who join the code are required to pay a tax on their gross sales of but 1½ per cent. It is obvious that under these circumstances non-code members cannot compete successfully with code members. The purpose of the act on its face is thus to compel all members of the industry to subject the conduct of their business to federal regulation by the imposition of this penalty."

Calls 5th Amendment Violated.

The bill charges that the Guffey act is unconstitutional on the following grounds:

1. It is on its face an attempt to regulate matters not committed to the federal government under the constitution, by means of the granting or withholding of a heavy penalty, called a tax, and it cannot be sustained as an exercise of the taxing power of the federal government.

2. The act cannot be sustained under the interstate commerce clause, since the business of the plaintif is wholly intrastate.

3. The act violates the Tenth amendment in that it constitutes an invasion by the federal government of fields of regulation reserved by that amendment to the states or to the people.

4. The act violates the Fifth amendment in that it:

[a] Attempts to deprive Carter Coal company without due process of law of the liberty granted to it by that amendment;

[b] Attempts to deprive Carter Coal company and the plaintif of their property rights, including subsisting contract rights, without due process of law;

[c] Attempts to take the private property of Carter Coal company for a public use without payment of just compensation;

CACTUS SOCIETY OPENS SHOW OF 1,000 SPECIMENS

More than 1,000 assorted cactus and desert plants were exhibited yesterday at the opening of the first annual three day show of the Chicago Cactus society held in the horticultural hall at the Garfield park conservatory. The exhibit includes small green house plants, seedlings, and large desert cacti, according to Frank K. Balthis, president of the society. Admission is free and the show is open from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m.

A high light of the show is the exhibit of Perry Dawson, 3116 Franklin boulevard. Dawson, an amateur cactus grower, designed and arranged a replica of the cactus garden formerly at A Century of Progress Exposition. His display won first prize yesterday in its class. Other first prize winners are Mrs. M. H. Zachman, 4115 Archer avenue, and James E. McCall, 2155 North Kilpatrick avenue.

Announcement was made yesterday of the flower and garden show of the First Czechoslovak Garden Club of America to be held Sept. 25 to 30 in Pilsen park, 26th street and Albany avenue.

FIGHTS TO KEEP CHILDREN

Tells of Marriage

Mrs. Betty Benjamin, 28 years old, lost custody of her two children because of charges that her acquaintanceship with Harry Lehmann, a farmer of Lake Villa, was improper. Yesterday she appeared in Superior court and told Judge Walter T. Stanton that she had married Lehmann.

Two years ago, when Mrs. Lehmann was divorced from Harold Benjamin, she was given custody of the children, Betty, 4 years old, and Harold Jr., 6 years old. A year ago her husband sought custody, charging that Mrs. Benjamin was not a proper person to care for them because of her alleged relations with Lehmann.

Benjamin was given temporary custody, pending a hearing on permanent disposition of the case, but the mother later was allowed to take the children during the vacation time. At yesterday's hearing Judge Stanton continued the matter to Sept. 16.

'COUSIN CLEVE' IS 'ASHAMED' OF KIN, HUEY LONG

Reveals His Views at Family Picnic.

Lebanon, Pa., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—That old Pennsylvania Dutchman, United States Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, attended a family reunion today at Long's grove near here and made a great hit with all of his kinsmen except "Cousin Cleve."

The Louisiana senator would like to be President of the United States. All Cleve wants is to be elected a school director of Spring township. As a member of the family he thought he had as good a right to argue his case as his distant relative from the south.

Elders Disagree with Him.

The elders of the family decided otherwise. They pointed out that usually the annual family picnic under the maples of Long's grove usually attracted a mere handful of 400 or 500 relatives. Obviously, they explained to Cousin Cleve, the crowd of 2,000 or more who had gathered there today were on hand to hear the senator and not his country cousin. Neither did they care about hearing a family quarrel, they reasoned.

And so the man who talked congress to death the other night had the floor and Cousin Cleve was out of order. He had foreseen that eventuality, however, and had come to the picnic armed with mimeographed copies of the speech he would have delivered if his more famous relative had accepted his challenge to debate the merits of his new-fangled scheme for dividing the nation's wealth as compared to old-fashioned Socialism.

"Very Distant Relative."

In passing out his circulars on the edge of the crowd—"Cousin Cleve" didn't even get on the platform with the other politician of the family—the disappointed candidate for school director explained that the relationship between him and the boss of Louisiana was "very distant," and one of which he was "sincerely ashamed." Senator Long ignored him completely in an address which traced his ancestry back to Christian Lang, who Anglicized his name to Long soon after his arrival in Philadelphia from Germany in 1683.

Cousin Cleve's circulars declared in blunt and undiplomatic language that Cousin Huey was a "fakir." With all his fuss about the gold standard, free silver, sound money and inflation, said the Long from West Lawn, the Louisiana senator belonged to a class of men "who neither have enough money to be affected by these issues nor enough economic background to show them that lack of possession of any kind of money is the real trouble with them."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The war department announced today that Master Sergeant Adam P. Insenshaum, now on duty with the officers' training corps at the University of Illinois, Champaign, would be placed on the retired list Aug. 31 with the rank of captain.

COTTON CONTROL LAW CHALLENGED BY GA. GOVERNOR

Macon, Ga., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia today carried into court his attack on the Bankhead cotton control act, one of the chief features of the New Deal administration's agricultural recovery program.

In his capacity as a Monroe county farmer, the governor was the principal complainant in a suit filed in United States District court here challenging the constitutionality of the act and seeking an injunction against assessments under it.

Federal Judge Bascom Deaver ordered the government to show cause on Sept. 5 why Talmadge's petition for an injunction against the act should not be granted. The case was set for hearing in Columbus.

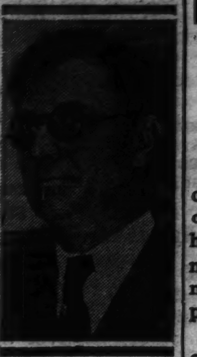
Talmadge, for months a critic of the Roosevelt administration, asked the court to enjoin the assessment and collection of six cents a pound penalty tax on all cotton produced in excess of individual allotments made to farmers under the Bankhead act.

In challenging constitutionality of the act, the petition pointed out that power to control production and fix prices is nowhere granted to congress by the constitution of the United States.

GOV. TALMADGE SAYS STATE WILL FIGHT ROOSEVELT

No Democrat! He Says of President.

Citizens of Georgia do not regard President Roosevelt as a Democrat and their delegation to the Democratic national convention next year will be opposed to Roosevelt, Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia declared in Chicago yesterday. He was on his way from Atlanta to Sioux Falls, S. D., to make a Labor day address tomorrow before a group of war veterans' organizations.



GOV. TALMADGE.

"The President," said the blunt, level eyed governor, "is a mixture of communist and wet-nurse. His administration may be able to buy the nomination for him with its five billion dollar fund but he won't get the Georgia delegation's vote."

"Will you support Mr. Roosevelt if he is nominated?" a reporter asked.

"That's more than a year away," the governor snapped. "How the hell can I tell what I'm going to do that far in advance?"

He Thinks He'd Take Huey.

"How's Huey Long making out down your way?" another questioner wanted to know.

"He and Roosevelt are pretty close together," came the answer. "Of the two, I think I'd take Huey."

Asked about his visit to the White House a few weeks ago, in company with Clark Howell, the Atlanta publisher, Gov. Talmadge said he got along "well enough" with the President.

"We talked business," he said. "I wanted to know about federal money due us for highways."

"Did you get it?" he was asked.

"They say we will but we haven't got it yet," the governor replied. He added that he believed "four or five" states of the Democratic south would also send delegations to the national convention who will vote against Roosevelt but declined to name them.

Hope He Will "Reform."

"I hope Roosevelt will reform before then," he said, "but men over 50 don't generally do that. However, he might."

Gov. Talmadge was accompanied by a colonel on his staf, John E. Whitly of La Grange, Ga., a road building contractor who was one of the first to be prosecuted for failure to sign an NRA code.

"I didn't sign the thing because I felt every man had a right to run his own business as he wants to," Whitly said. "They got a warant out for me and fussed around for pretty near a year but nothing came of it."

ITALY TO TRAIN 'PROBLEM BOYS' FOR LIFE AT SEA

ROME, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Sea-training on floating reform schools is Italy's answer to the question of what to do with the "problem boy."

The Italian government has three small steamers used in preparing for a sea-going life boys whom the authorities have decided need corrective treatment. Their ages correspond to those of the "good" little boys of Premier Mussolini's famous "Balilla" organization in which males beginning at eight years of age, are trained in military style to shoulder arms.

Ex-Judge Freed by Court; Gets Cash and New Shoes

Steven Abbey, who said he was educated at Yale university and once had served as a judge in Arizona, was discharged yesterday by Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden, before whom Abbey appeared Friday, barefoot and ragged on a charge or disorderly conduct. Abbey, who is 53 years old, wore new shoes and socks yesterday. They were furnished him by Edward J. Denemark, superintendent of the Bridewell. After his case was heard, a collection totaling $18.50 was taken for him in the courtroom.

ADVANCE STOCK DATA AVAILABLE TO SEC INSIDERS

Information on Deals Is Known Early.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Insiders in the New Deal's securities and exchange commission have valuable information on stock market deals in their possession almost a month before the data is made public.

This was emphasized by the publication recently of the SEC's semi-monthly stock transaction summary containing information which would have enabled SEC employés to reap a neat profit.

For instance, the summary disclosed that during July, Joseph Wilshire, officer and director of Standard Brands, Inc., sold 2,000 shares of the company's stock. On Aug. 26 Standard Brands reduced its dividend causing a slight drop in the stock's value. The information that Wilshire, who was in a position to know the company's future actions, was selling stock which was in the hands of SEC workers at least 20 days before being made public.

Rules Forbid Dealing.

SEC regulations forbid all its employés from dealing in the stock market on margin. Only purchases for investment are permitted, and these must be reported to the SEC. In addition, no SEC employé is permitted to purchase for any reason any new security issued under the security act of 1933.

Whether these restrictions are being dodged is not known. SEC officials declare that they are unaware of any stock transactions by the commission's employés which would break the rules. They also believe that no employé is passing information in his possession to any one outside the commission, another practice which would be punishable.

Published Many Days Later.

Officers, directors, and persons owning more than 10 per cent of a corporation's stock must report all of their deals in that stock to the SEC within 10 days after the close of the month in which they occurred. This information is published by the SEC 20 to 45 days later.

Other instances than the Wilshire sales of Standard Brands stock could have tipped insiders off to coming events before the public was given any intimation.

William J. Sinek, officer and director of City Ice and Fuel, sold 1,000 shares of the company's common stock and 300 shares of preferred during the early part of July when the stocks were selling around 21½ and 93½, respectively.

On July 30 the company made public a report showing a sharp decline in earnings. The stocks fell to 17½ and 90½. Mr. Sinek on July 31 then bought 3,100 shares of common and 50 shares of preferred. If an SEC employé had been able to follow Mr. Sinek's activities through reports, he could have netted a profit.

SERVANTS WATCH QUEEN MARY KISS SON'S FIANCEE

BALMORAL, Scotland, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Queen Mary greeted and kissed her curtseying future daughter-in-law, Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott, today in the presence of 50 tenants and servants of the royal castle.

Spick and span in their best clothes, the servants were allowed to line up and watch the little scene in the great central palace doorway. They waved and cheered as Lady Alice drove up to the castle doorway with her mother and then advanced alone to greet the queen.

King George and the duke of Gloucester, whose engagement was announced to Lady Alice two days ago, missed the arrival. They had been hunting and were a few minutes late returning home. The duke is the king's third son. He will return to his regiment, in which he holds the rank of captain, tomorrow.

THE REPUBLICAN YEAR OF DECISION.

Since the civil war the long run of American politics has made the Republican the majority party, ousted only at intervals by an uprising against it. When it seems to be settled down for one of its spells of popular support and favor its nominations frequently go with little regard for the qualifications or even the popularity of the candidates. When a landslide is in prospect a Republican convention may do strange things.

The nomination of Harding was a strange thing. No one knew him outside of Ohio and the senate. His qualifications were negligible and it wasn't even known that he was personally amiable and would make a good impression. The idea was that anybody could beat Wilson. Mr. Harding looked good to men who knew what they meant by good.

When the Republican habit seems fixed on the country and when the making of the nomination means that it is all over but the shouting, the race for that nomination is a free-for-all. Patronage is used without scruple. Bargains and deals are made and the convention is manipulated in every fashion known to intrigue. If a Republican President is to be renominated, patronage will overcome unpopularity.

In 1920, '24, and '28 any Republican could have won. In 1932 it was apparent that the jig was up and that the Republican convention could nominate only a loser in all probability. There may be another landslide in 1936. Mr. Roosevelt is not as popular as he was two years ago. He may be less popular next year. The Santa Claus system reaches its point of diminishing returns when the persons who did not get what they expected become more numerous than the people who did. The gratitude which is a lively sense of favors to come turns to a sour recollection of expectations defeated. Even five billion dollars will not keep Christmas going everywhere all the time.

Republicans may find that they are miscalculating the point at which Mr. Roosevelt will encounter his diminishing returns, but many of them who would like to be President are willing to believe that the turn has already set in and that Roosevelt's star is going down. The effect of this belief is to increase the number of candidates who want a tryout in the convention and to encourage them to adopt the old practical ways of corralling delegates by bargains and combinations, seeking to gain this or that man's support by appealing to his ambitions and self-interests.

These practices impair the chances of the Republican party being of service in the face of a real national calamity. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that the life of the republic may depend upon Republican success in 1936. The rank and file of the Republican party and a mass of citizens not traditionally partisan, properly in dread of what may happen, hope that the management of the Republican party will give them an honest deal, with a party and candidates above suspicion and entirely trustworthy. If individuals seeking office make this impossible or if the party isn't big enough to suppress such ambitions the country will be betrayed.

A Roosevelt success with another servile congress, corrupted by the administration, with a Supreme court brought under control by new appointments, will point toward national bankruptcy, misery, disorder, and a dictator within the next six years.

The Republican candidate must needs be a vote getter. His vote getting should be derived from qualities which inspire the confidence of the majority of Americans. Confidence in him must be engendered by his belief in the republican form of government, by his character, his qualifications, and by the unchallenged assurance that his only thought is for his endangered country. If elected he will have a task no American President has faced since the first inauguration of Lincoln. He will have the wreckage of the New Deal on his hands and he will have to restore what has been destroyed. No man whose only qualification is his personal ambition will be able to survive and bring the country through with him.

WHAT THEY CALL SLUM CLEARANCE.

They call it slum removal and slum clearance in Washington and under these titles they sell it to the American people as something socially desirable. They have been talking about it for more than two years and the uninformed citizen might think that by this time the work was well along. It isn't. In a few cities they have acquired land and made a start. In Chicago they haven't laid a brick or bought a pound of steel or a bag of cement.

In New York Mr. Vincent Astor, the President's host on numerous yachting parties, has been enabled to dispose of his slum properties. An effort was made to advertise the deal as a particularly noble one. In fact, unless Mr. Astor's slums were different from other people's, he must have been delighted to be rid of them. The older the buildings the heavier becomes the maintenance cost and the more irregular becomes the revenue from rents. The taxes do not decline much, if at all. Slum properties are not money makers and to many persons the possession of them is not a source of pride.

Slum clearance in Chicago takes the form of the purchase of 17 acres of land which the International Harvester company had sold when it closed its plant on the north branch. The company took back a mortgage for the greater part of the selling price. The improvements consist of aged and ageing factory buildings and railroad sidings. The use of that land for a housing project clears no slums, whatever else it may do. We don't know who got the cut or cuts on the sale.

Another so-called slum clearance in Chicago takes place on property formerly used for a Catholic convent and later for a Jewish settlement house. It never was a slum and was in no danger of becoming one. The site has been unoccupied for years.

They talk about slum removal, but what it all comes to is the removal of bum real estate from the hands of owners who didn't know what to do with it and ought to be glad to be rid of it at almost any price.

WHEN ARMIES BECOME TOO BIG.

Universal conscription to be imposed the moment war is declared is the accepted military doctrin in this country. The doctrin is unsound and it ought to be modified. To the extent that it is embodied in the national defense act the act should be repealed.

Conscription has its usefulness in immense wars, conflicts in which the last ounce of strength is required to crush an enemy of tremendous power. Most wars are not of that sort. To summon to the colors every man able to bear arms for a conflict of the magnitude, say, of the Spanish-American war, would be as absurd as to use a drop forge to swat flies.

A professional army, supported by the National Guard and volunteers, can be mobilized, equipped and sent to the front with relatively little dislocation of the economic organization upon which the armed force must depend for its supplies. Conscription will play havoc with manufacturing and transportation services. It will pull key men in industry away from their posts of greatest usefulness and set them to digging latrines in improvised training camps. The result of all this disruption and confusion will be the presence in camps of more men than can be used and at the front of fewer supplies than are urgently needed. Supplies which should have gone to the front will be diverted to equip the superfluous conscripts in the rear.

When the last war ended this country had sent 2,059,000 men to Europe, and about as many more were in training in this country. We had too many soldiers. They got in each other's way. The result was that of the 4 million perhaps half a million saw active service at the front and perhaps a quarter of a million could be regarded as well trained troops. [The official figure of men at the front is 1,390,000, but is far too large.] If the general staf had taken a more practical view of the problem it would have called far fewer men into active service and would have concentrated its efforts upon training and equipping the smaller force to the best of its ability.

As it was, we had needless difficulty in supplying our army. We had competent instructors to train the soldiers and competent officers to lead them, but not nearly enough. Men who had had experience at the front were pulled back from the places where they were most needed to serve as instructors in the rear. Men who should have remained in industry, where they might have produced necessary supplies, were wasted in training camps. We tried to do too much and in consequence we did less than we could have and should have done.

All of this wasted effort meant wasted money. The immense conscript army cost too much. We could have spent less and obtained more from it.

There is another objection to conscription which is often overlooked. Conscription creates vested interests. As soon as the first million men have been called and equipped the cry is raised for a second million. Not only the equipment manufacturers have an interest in the matter but also, and especially, every ambitious man in the service. No ambition drives a man as hard as does military ambition. The corporal sees that more recruits will give him the chance to become a sergeant. The colonel sees an opportunity at last to command a brigade. The art of war consists in the concentration of effort against the enemy. Conscription, by inviting the mobilization of armies larger than are needed, tends to defeat the strategic objective by diverting strength into areas where it is wasted. It also encourages the waste of men in fruitless assaults upon impregnable positions. Hundreds of thousands of men were sacrificed in the last war because the general stafs on both sides had man power to burn. Having it, they burned it.

The valuable principle in universal conscription is the duty it imposes on every citizen to serve if he is needed. That doctrin is sound, but it should not be used to encourage the calling up of levies of excessive size. Conscription of all the man power should be employed only when the need for it is unmistakable.

Universal conscription and universal training are often confused. Universal conscription wastes men and money; universal training can be counted upon to save both. It is curious that pacifists favor universal conscription and oppose universal training. Apparently they want their wars bloody, costly, and ineffective.

THE CHURCH CONDITIONS ITS CHILDREN

BY WILLIAM HARMON NORTON

The church—or at least a church to which I have been proud to belong—is now conditioning its children on the largest scale and with scientific methods. It uses the principles of Prof. MacDougall, who conditions his laboratory rats to avoid a lighted gangway leading from a tank into which he dumps them by electrifying it to give a disagreeable shock. And also the principles of Prof. Pavlov, who conditions his rats to come at the ringing of a bell, with which he has associated agreeable food. Thus the radicals of my church are conditioning the children against the bright lights of capitalism and to the ringing of the socialist bell.

My church has its children's work well organized. From the central office proceed weekly programs, books, and pamphlets to be read, lesson helps, questions to be asked, stories to be told, prayers to be said, and an ably edited paper. This powerful machine works efficiently for richer and nobler living, but it also serves for a socialistic propaganda whose proper display would require several pages.

Editorials have assured our boys and girls that they, like Queen Esther, "have come to the kingdom for such a time as this." "Youth can find better answers to these great problems than the older generation has found." "God has matched youth for this hour." The interdenominational slogan is, "Christian Youth Building a New World." The boy's expected reaction to these flattering attentions is shown by an article he contributes to our youth's paper: "People are beginning to look to the young people to find immediate and lasting cures [for the world's woes]. In Germany, Italy, and Russia and many other countries the young people are already in the saddle. They're out to make a better world. . . . Are we going to lead or follow?"

Our young leaders vaulting into the saddle are instructed that social reform is not enough. It is "but a patch on an old garment." In a front cover cartoon Youth tells us, "We don't want rebuilding. We want new building." The blue prints furnished our youth for the new world to be built with God are suspiciously like those of the new world now building without God in Russia. They demand "social ownership and control of the means of production and distribution, the systems of transportation and communication," and even "the production and distribution of the goods of the world on the basis of need." They are pledged to destroy the capitalistic system, "the private ownership of the means of production," "the system of private control for private profit."

We are conditioning against capitalism by using the method of MacDougall's shocker. We associate with capitalism in the children's minds all sorts of shocking ideas—greed, acquisitiveness, cruelty, injustice. Capitalism is the big bad wolf. In 1934 we circulated among our boys and girls this decision card: "I surrender my life to Christ. . . . I renounce the capitalistic system based on economic individualism and the profit motive and give myself to the building of an economic order based on coöperation and unselfishness. . . . I believe that the possession of wealth is unbecoming a Christian." This is more specific than our baptismal covenant, "I renounce the devil and all his works." The devil now is capitalism, and wealth is among his works.

To condition for socialism we use the method of Pavlov's platter of food. We associate with socialism in the children's minds delightful ideas, high ideals, and all manner of wishful thinking—plenty, security, leisure, social justice, coöperation, the birthright to an equal share of the country's wealth. We wreathe socialism with millenarian rainbows. It is the promised land, the new Jerusalem, "the coöperative commonwealth, which is the kingdom of God."

And we have told youth how to build this better world with God. "You must use force, coercion, in the spirit of love. . . . You must organize, you must exert economic and political pressure." The Interdenominational Christian Youth council at Lake Geneva last year found that "the most ethical and expedient method of obtaining control is that of nonviolent, noncoöperative coercion." But a third of the delegates plumped for sabotage. And the associate secretary of my church's Federation for Social Service has suggested to our youth not only sabotage within and behind the lines but also "to get rid of the present economic system" by using the opportunity which war provides. "We will spoil the war game for them and we will not stop there. We will take over the resources now used to enrich the few and exploit the many."

How thoroughly our boys and girls have been conditioned is seen in the resolutions they pass. In the native state of Epic they pledged themselves to work "for a social and economic order where power will be transferred from those who own to those who serve." A fair average was struck by the resolutions of the national youth council at Evanston last summer: "The material disintegration of capitalism is exceeded only by its moral bankruptcy. . . . We endorse socialism as being at present the most workable expression of Christian ideals."

Yet the youth movement is not quite able to move out under its own power. It was instigated and is still led by adults. At the Evanston council 255 adult leaders—pastors, professors, editors, and church officials—guided by their persuasive eloquence and tactful suggestions 615 boys and girls. According to a pre-convention census 80 per cent of the adults were socialists in that they believed "socialism the economic system most compatible with the teaching of Jesus." The Christian Century suggested that it was largely one of its contributing editors, a prominent socialist, who swung the council to the left. But in truth the young people had been pretty well conditioned. The same census showed that 62 per cent of the boys and 75 per cent of the girls were socialists already.

In the immature the attitude of follow the leader is natural and may have survival value. The general attitude of the delegates to the Evanston council was doubtless that of one of them, stated fully in a page article in our youth's paper: "We young people know that we are far from perfect and know that the best way for us to grow and to help the world to grow is to work together on it under the wise supervision of such men as Mr. ——— and Mr. ———," naming two of the our ablest conditioners. Even college students are quite too willing to rely on textbooks, professors, "authorities," and even on the vagrant, vagarious speakers who haunt college platforms. In fact, when a sizable bunch of young college pirates is out to loot the existing social order it is time to look in the offing for a professorial flag.

A rarer type of youth found utterance at an earlier Evanston council. "I came here," said he, "open minded. I trust that I am still open minded. But I know that I am also empty minded, and I am going home to study." But if all youth refused to decide momentous questions on inadequate and untested data, refused to hit the sawdust trail to socialism under religious emotional appeals, we should have no youth movements.

One might draw several parallels between the present crusade and that piteous children's crusade of the year 1212, each with its adult Pied Pipers and long processions of praying and singing boys and girls. But I will only commend to the clergy who encourage the new movement, even by their silence, this from an old historian of the earlier crusade: "If some of the clergy, endowed with a little foresight, openly blamed this expedition, their censures were at once attributed to motives of avarice and incredulity, and, in order to avoid public contempt, wisdom and prudence were condemned to silence." But would it not have been better for the church if the wisdom and prudence of the clergy had spoken out?

HOW IS YOUR CONSTITUTION?

THERE are constitutions and constitutions. Every citizen lives by and with his own personal, physical constitution, as well as that of his government. He must support, defend, and strengthen both with every atom of his being. In order to do so he must elect an intelligent congress—the faculties of mind and body; and through the use of these faculties erect his own supreme court—namely, judgment. Those with poorly trained faculties drift aimlessly; they never arrive, and finally become dependents.

What about your constitution? We often look at an individual and say to ourselves, "What a fine physical specimen; what a splendid constitution!" Is the observation correct? Physicians have come to recognize in all persons an inherited background, a composite of tendencies that make for a long or a short life, as the case may be. Hence when we say that a man possesses a strong constitution we refer to certain intangible characteristics of mind and body that mark the power of the individual to combat or ward off disease; in other words, to live life's normal span.

Constitution is not physique, nor is it the ability of the individual at any given time to perform a task requiring great muscular power or endurance. The relatively early death of certain famous athletes cannot be laid wholly to overstrain of heart muscle, but may be ascribed, in some cases at least, to some constitutional flaw or defect. One with a good constitution is able to face life and perform its tasks in the environment in which he finds himself. If mental or physical strain arises it is usually overcome without undue evidence of fatigue. If an illness supervenes, recovery takes place in a reasonable time. Surgeons observe that certain persons apparently in the best of health are poor surgical risks, while certain others who seem to be physically weaker go through the ordeal of an operation with little or no disturbance.

A. F. Hurst points out that there are two general types of individuals: Those who exhibit in their several body functions less activity than we would expect, and those, on the other hand, who exhibit more. He calls the first group hyposthenic [weak] and the second group hypersthenic [strong]. The members of the first are quiet and retiring, inclined to be studious and fond of reading, and their personal vitality appears to be low. Nevertheless they are capable of doing a tremendous amount of work if allowed to carry on in their own way. They are usually unable to respond to a demand for sudden effort. The hypersthenics, however, are capable of great mental and physical activity. They belong to the "hail fellow well met" class. Much of what they do may be characterized by superficiality, and judgment may not always be sound.

Pneumonia is frequently cited as an indicator of constitutional resistance. In the hyposthenic the course of the disease may run quietly and the patient recover with little effort, whereas in the hypersthenic a stormy course characterizes not only the onset but the duration of the disease. The temperature as a rule will be higher, pain will be more acute, and pneumonia deaths in this latter group will outnumber those in the former. Which has the better constitution? Judged from the standpoint of longevity the so-called weak [hyposthenic] is the stronger. But why?

Every person is physically and mentally a fusion of inherited factors modified by training. A century ago physicians knew little about cause and effect and, when confronted with disease, based a prognosis on what they called the patient's constitution. "Although John is seriously ill he will recover because he has a good constitution," was the dictum, because the physician knew John, his father, mother, and the general family inheritance.

So we see that man has a constitution; one that, barring accidents, determines his fate because he was born with it. We can, of course, deliberately wreck a "cast iron" personal constitution, just as citizens of a country can throw away inherited freedom and political birthrights.

PROSTATE.

L. C. writes: What are the causes of inflammation in the prostate? Can it be remedied?

REPLY.

There are several conditions that keep the prostate congested: Constipation; hemorrhoids [the removal of hemorrhoids has frequently been followed by complete relief of prostatic symptoms]; inflammation in the bladder or along the urinary tract, which may be diagnosed by careful examination of the urine or a cystoscopic examination of bladder and urethra; the natural ageing changes that occur in the gland itself and that begin at about 50 years of age; bacteria which may gain entrance to the gland tissues and set up inflammation [this is called prostatitis].

There is no temporary relief quite so effective as a low hot water enema. Either this procedure or the Elliott heat treatment is advised. Sitz baths for an hour each night often give relief.

By means of the electric resection operation, in which a very high frequency current is used, the obstructing portion of the gland may be removed. Only an expert should undertake this operation.

CYST.

K. T. F. writes: I am 24 years of age and I am told that I have a cyst in the left breast. It is about the size of a large plum, but does not seem to be growing. As I touch it, it seems very hard. Should it be left alone or removed?

REPLY.

The growth may be entirely innocent and benign. On the other hand, it may become malignant. A skilled surgeon can remove the growth under a local anesthetic. The tissue should then be microscopically examined. If malignant cells are found breast amputation is advised.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—Visitors to Ireland during the tourist season have been astonished at the way the Irish Free State is standing the test of the depression. Many declared they saw no signs of poverty and privation, but did view what they regarded as evidences of real prosperity.

The week of the Dublin Horse show, with its enormous attendance, its display of magnificent horses, and its multitude of elegantly clad women, appeared to be convincing proof that, if there is one place in the world where there is still money and the will to spend it, it is this part of Ireland.

By all the laws of economics as well as the protestations of certain politicians the country ought to be on the verge of bankruptcy. Yet, according to Dr. James Ryan, minister for agriculture, the people never were better off.

"We are," he told the senate recently, "consuming much more beef than we did in 1931—practically twice as much. We are consuming something like 60 per cent more mutton. We are consuming more butter and eggs. Even more of our people are going to the movies."

There is no doubt that the minister is, to a large extent, quite correct in what he said. The poorer people are getting more to eat. Of course, much of it is free beef, which is distributed among the unemployed. It is also true that the standard of living of the great majority has improved.

Dr. Ryan also is correct in his reference to the attendance at the movies. Every theater is crowded nightly. New movie palaces are being built in Dublin, and the minister for finance was able in his last budget to raise the entertainment tax without reducing the attendances.

Moreover, there is no falling off in the patronage of outdoor amusements. Some of the recent race meetings around Dublin brought record attendances. This is not confined to the capital alone. At the recent Galway races the railways and buses carried more passengers than ever before. The attendance record also was broken.

This is one side of the question, and by far the brighter side.

W. T. Cosgrave, the leader of the opposition party, in the debate on the adjournment of the dail for the summer holiday set out to represent the other side.

He pointed out that in the current year the government proposed to extract from the taxpayers a sum of $150,000,000 which, he said, was $30,000,000 more than the amount of taxation when his government held office. He said this increase in taxation is in face of the fact that, through the present government's policy, receipts for exported cattle fell from $80,000,000 in 1931 to less than $30,000,000 in 1934, or a loss of over $50,000,000 of new money to the farming community.

"It was in those circumstances that the government increased the taxes on tea, tobacco, sugar, and coal," Cosgrave asserted. He said these taxes fell most grievously on the farmers who are suffering because of the heavy losses on their cattle.

President Eamon De Valera in replying to this criticism pointed to the various reliefs for the poor. He told of the creation of relief works and the bounties paid on cattle to enable the farmer to combat the British taxes.

There was no use, he declared, in saying that his government had promised to reduce taxation. They could not have it both ways—money for social services and reduced taxation.

BUILDING REPAIRS.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—[Friend of the People.]—As I did not know who to write to regarding an old run down shack located on our street, I decided you probably could refer me to the proper party. This house has no rain pipes on it and when it rains water pours in our yard. I just recently had my place repaired and am ready to paint it and would like to have something done about this shack.
W. K.

Our district inspector reports that this is a vacant, two story, frame, flat building, 21x66 feet, on concrete foundation. Walls are safe, front windows boarded up. Rear windows on ground floor are broken but windows in north wall are open, allowing vandals to enter building, destroying interior. Rain gutters at roof are in place, but down spouts have been removed. Owners have been notified to connect rain gutters with sewer and to repair building and board up windows or take down and remove building. In case of failure to comply we will proceed as provided by law.

MORTGAGE RENEWAL.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If the mortgage holder refuses to renew or extend the mortgage on a large apartment, is it possible to secure a new mortgage or an extension under the new [illegible] laws? All interest is paid up to date.
W. C.

In March, 1933, a new chapter was added to the bankruptcy act, designed to authorize and encourage settlement between debtors and creditors. The debtor is referred to as a "debtor" and not a "bankrupt," and he is not adjudged a bankrupt nor is his estate liquidated except under certain special circumstances.

Judge Barnes of our District court has stated that "The main purpose of section 74 is apparently to extend the composition provisions of the bankruptcy act to secured as well as unsecured debts of all debtors except corporations." This section provides that any debtor, except a corporation, may file a petition in bankruptcy court stating that he is insolvent or unable to meet his debts as they mature and that he desires to effect a composition or an extension of time to pay his debts.

By a 1934 amendment, if the debtor fails to obtain the acceptance of a majority in number and amount of all his creditors, he may submit a proposal for an extension including a feasible method of financial rehabilitation which is for the best interest of all creditors, including an equitable liquidation for the secured creditors. Thus the benefits of the act are extended to the individual debtor regardless of the wishes of his creditors. Section 75 deals only with farmers.

The original section 77 dealt only with railroad corporations, but the twelve pages of section 77-B have been added which enables a corporation to propose a plan of readjustment of its entire corporate structure. The plan "shall include provisions modifying or altering the rights of creditors generally, or any class of the secured or unsecured, either through the issuance of new securities of any character or otherwise [and] may include provisions modifying or altering the rights of stockholders generally." The plan may be confirmed when accepted in writing by two-thirds of the affected creditors and a majority of the affected stockholders.

THE SUMMER CONCERTS.

Cicero, Ill., Aug. 28.—The greatest attraction which Chicago has enjoyed this summer is the series of concerts still in progress in Grant park. Nothing quite so fine in the way of musical entertainment has ever been heard in this city, or for that matter in any other part of this country.

From friends and relatives in distant parts of this country I have received letters praising the quality of musicianship that has come to them over the radio and asking me whether there is a possibility that a similar series will be staged each summer hereafter. Now that is the question which I, myself, have been asking ever since these concerts have started. Will they be repeated next year and the years that follow or are we to be satisfied with the memory of what we have so greatly enjoyed this summer? To whom should I write in order to urge that these splendid concerts be made an annual affair—a part of Chicago's outdoor life in the summer time?

The great crowds that have attended—the eager, earnest interest shown by all those who congregate on the lake front each night shows that the people of Chicago want something of this nature—want some place where they can go in the summer time and enjoy the fresh air while listening to the finest bands and orchestras ever heard in this district.

MISS EMILY HERMS.

RACING PIGEONS.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—I want to express the thanks and gratitude of the members of our association for the many lost bird reports which I have been receiving from the various departments of THE TRIBUNE.

At this time the young bird series of races are on and a great many birds become lost. From many out of the way places your public service department and sports department have had inquiring letters from readers which have resulted in many valuable homing pigeons being returned to their owners.

Here's one: A few days ago a racing homer pigeon was captured by a Mr. R. W. Shultz, R. No. 2, Manteno, Ill. He discovered that it had on one leg a band with the following letters and numbers: AU-35-Chicago-798, so Mr. Shultz placed the same on a postal card and mailed it to Chicago. The postoffice department seemed to know just what to do in such cases, so a notation was made, "Try THE TRIBUNE." The card was forwarded to me today by Mr. Perry A. Ball of your public service department. The bird is the property of one of our members who belongs to the South End Flying club. He will communicate with Mr. Shultz.

THE EDITOR IS STILL IN CONFERENCE.

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 28.—In answer to S. E. H. in his article on dogs I will just say that the reason that he is so unappreciative of their ability is that in order to train a dog the trainer must have more brains than the dog. Secondly, he must be worthy of some affection of the dog in question. His article aptly proves his status on both points.

ARMS ENTWINED.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—That picture of the Democratic speaker of the house and the leader of the Republicans, with arms about each other, after the close of their battles in Washington, reminds one of that little photograph of Dillinger and the district attorney at Crown Point.

They are just friendly enemies and of course both gentlemen and scholars!

WHEN IN DOUBT BREAK A LEG.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Ann has told her story of twenty-seven years of marriage. Here is mine: We married in our late twenties. We are both 53 now. My story deals with the drinking man. He never was out of work, but his idea of marriage was that as long as he provided for his family his time was his own. If he wanted to stay out all night, a day, a week, he did. He said I had no kick coming. We bought a small home. I saw to it that it was paid for, likewise a car, while he was filthy drunk most of the time and had his women of the moment.

My life was one long sacrifice to pay bills, to keep his clothes clean and pressed, to raise our boy. But always in the back of my mind was the thought that some day I would be free to leave him.

Now here is the thought that I wish to impress on Ann: A week before Christmas I fell and broke my leg. I was helplessly out and at his mercy. What did he do? For three months I was in a cast at home. He saw to it that I was never alone. He came home on the dot; he cooked his own meals, brought me in my tray, my coffee in the morning. No man did more for a wife than he did. It is now eight months and he has been loyalty itself, so you see when the crisis came he stood by me 100 per cent. We are closer together now than ever before. I am up and on my own again and I feel that any sacrifice in the past was not in vain.

ON BEHALF OF COVINGTON, KY.

Covington, Ky., Aug. 28.—On July 19, 1935, I wrote you relative to an editorial appearing in the Feb. 21 issue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. This editorial contained what I sincerely thought to be false and possibly malicious statements relative to conditions in Covington. Certain officers of this city testified truthfully in the Canadian case that certain defendants were in Covington at the time the alleged crime was committed. These officers were subjected to much criticism and one of the defendants was apparently lynched into a conviction in this Canadian court and sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary. Now it develops that neither one of these men is guilty; that Kingdon Murray has been released, and that David Meisner, who was convicted, will be released from the penitentiary.

ABOUT SLUMS.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Slums are purely a local problem in each community and should be no concern of the federal government. They are caused by the character of the people who live in them who cannot afford and in some cases do not care to live in better quarters. Replacing these buildings when at all inhabitable with better ones will not solve the problem. That only moves the slum dwellers elsewhere, creates slums where they do not now exist, and reduces the rental value of existing buildings.

The slum is not a housing problem. It is an economic, industrial, educational, and biological problem. Change the character and earning ability of these people—if you can—and the slum will automatically disappear.

MUSIC WITH A PUNCH.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—A casual window shopping tour of Wabash avenue last evening disclosed a new upright piano. A close inspection revealed that under the keyboard on both sides had been constructed cupboards for decanters, glasses, shakers, etc., and the lid when lowered would apparently make an excellent serving device. Music must be in a bad way indeed if the only way any one can be got up to a piano is to make it look like and in fact be a bar.

NEW DEAL PUMP PRIMING FAILS TO CUT RELIEF LOAD

Dole Costs Jump as Many Spurn Job Offers.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Among New Dealers bewilderment, not to say dismay, is being shown over the continued growth of the dole and what it reveals. Despite the vast sums spent on "priming the pump" by the alphabetical agencies at Washington more families are on relief in Illinois than two years ago, the first year of the New Deal, while costs to the public have skyrocketed.

In Illinois $304,471,062 has been spent on the dole of various types (as of Aug. 15) in the three and a half years since establishment of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

In August the dole had more than a million customers in Illinois. It fluctuates by months. This year one out of every seven or eight persons—men, women, and children—in the state has been on the dole.

Cost Almost Doubles.

About 10½ millions a month has been spent on relief this year in Illinois, the expenditures for the first eight months of 1935 being $84,852,536. To indicate the dole's growth, expenditures for the entire fiscal year ended June 30, 1934, were $78,438,389.

In August just ended $10,335,434 was spent.

The loss of initiative and morale among some of the persons who for prolonged periods have been on relief often has been noted. Viewing the failure to diminish the relief case load, Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the relief commission, ascribes it to two reasons.

First is the accumulated destitution of those whose savings accounts and paid-up insurance and other resources have been running out and who now are getting on the relief rolls.

The second reason given is the growing idea of security in relying on the government dole. With initiative softened by years on relief and by protracted unemployment, many are reported as not seeking or not taking available odd jobs, being content to live on their relief orders for groceries, coal, milk and rent.

Purging Rolls a Problem.

Chairman John C. Martin of the commission holds purging of the relief rolls to be the biggest problem confronting the state. "Removal from the relief rolls of a considerable number of persons who have no wish to go back to work is a problem," he said recently. "Many people went on relief with reluctance, but once on they gradually lost their desire for work, and now they won't get off. What the commission must discover is some method to make relief less attractive."

Last May and June a purging of the rolls was ordered. Recipients of relief were required to re-register. About 35,000 cases thus were taken from the rolls, of these 19,374 being downstate.

Just now affairs are in a state of flux, the federal government getting ready to take over all "employables"—225,000 of them—now on the Illinois relief lists and provide them with jobs under the Works Progress administration. This WPA is under Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator. At the present rate of progress it is figured the snow will fly before the bulk of the employables are at work, and meanwhile the relief commission will carry on.

Comparison by Families.

Here are comparative figures showing the number of resident families on relief in Illinois for the first eight months of this year and two years ago, indicating the increase in numbers:

January	293,000	317,700
February	307,000	318,165
March [peak] [New Deal goes in]	323,000	321,000
April	316,141	313,085
May	296,973	293,101
June	275,477	283,247
July	241,198	277,075
August	222,262	274,072

The estimated case load for September is placed at 275,712. In 1933 it was 210,829.

As prices went up, pushed by NRA and AAA, expenses rose and despite pickup here and there in business, the places of persons who got off the rolls were taken by others who got larger budgets from the relief workers because of the higher prices.

Work relief that was made for relief recipients likewise added to the cost. Leaf raking and other jobs gave the customers something to do, but was not productive work, and it cost 15 to 30 per cent more than would a cash dole payment, so the experts say.

Expenditures for the month of March in the last three years indicate how the cost of relief in Illinois has grown. Here are the figures:

March—	Per cent of pop. on relief.	Relief obligations.
1934	*10.4	6,492,601
1935	15.5	12,476,948

*Low due to CWA.

Meanwhile relief budgets grew bigger and better, a reflection to some extent of the doctrine of scarcity and higher prices due to the slaughter of little pigs by Secretary Wallace.

Two Years' Growth Shown.

Here are a few figures showing the growth in the last two years of the average per month relief per resident family on the rolls in Illinois. Winter months ordinarily are higher on account of fuel and clothing.

	Illinois.	Cook Co.	Downstate.
April, 1933	$20.71	$26.19	$11.87
October	27.11	36.99	15.34
March, 1934	26.17	40.30	14.92
June	28.00	37.41	20.44
Jan., '35 [peak]	35.53	43.96	28.01
March	34.27	43.74	25.33
April	31.47	39.64	23.63

Figures for August are preliminary estimates.

The increase in the two years is ascribed to the jump in the price of foods, the depletion of resources and growing requirements for items other than food, especially rent. The growth downstate reflects not only [illegible] rent, clothing, and medical care, but also an increase in food at higher prices.

Breeds Proletariat Group.

With all these trends in view, some experts hold that for the first time in history, Illinois and America have a considerable proletariat group, fed and sheltered by the state, and treated in large measure as having a separate economy. Half of the clothing this group is given is made by relief workers in sewing centers scattered over the states, as are some of its mattresses and comforters.

In some instances a family on relief obtains a hired girl sent from another relief family to do relief work to enable a worker in the first family to hold a job which does not pay enough to take him off the dole.

All relief is by budget—an order for groceries based on the number in the family; an order for milk based on the number of children, an order for rent—$15 maximum for unfurnished quarters, $25 for furnished, including heat. Some families have been given garden plots and their surplus crops are canned by relief workers for distribution among others on relief.

$257,000,000 for Illinois.

The work furnished as a substitute for direct relief is itself largely confined to the people on the dole. Under the $4,880,000,000 work relief bill, largest appropriation granted by congress in times of peace, four billion dollars is to be spent in taking 3,500,000 employables off the relief rolls by November and employing them on public works. They are to have a "security wage" which is to be smaller than paid in private industry.

In Illinois 225,000 are to be given work. This, at the rate of $1,143 for wages, supplies, management, etc., would mean about 257 million dollars for the state. One stipulation was that 90 per cent of the persons employed on these works should be taken from the relief rolls, which has led to a protest from labor that it is discrimination against employables out of work but not on relief, and the stipulation has been changed somewhat.

Administrator Hopkins has said the aim is to get away from a separate industrial economy for employables on relief, but the contention is that the 90 per cent provision does nothing else but set up a separate economy.

FIRE AT ARMOUR PLANT IS PUT OUT WITH LOSS OF $500

Fire of undetermined origin broke out in the soap and glycerin plant of Armour & Co. in the Bridgeport industrial district north of the Union Stockyards yesterday. A 2-11 fire alarm brought ten extra companies of firemen, headed by Marshal Michael Corrigan, to the scene.

The fire started on the third floor of the glycerin plant at 32d and Fox streets, adjacent to the main buildings of the Armour soap factory at 1355 West 31st street. A score of workmen fled when the flames swept over three tanks of fatty acids and threatened to spread to other buildings in which chemicals, glue, glycerin, and soap were stored.

A. J. Clauter, superintendent of the works, said the damage was less than $500. The flames and smoke could be seen from the loop before firemen brought the blaze under control with chemicals.

BANKS AID WPA TO GIVE WORKERS HOLIDAY CHECKS

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—With the aid of a number of the larger banks of New York City, the Works Progress administration, headed by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, paid thousands of relief workers today several days in advance of scheduled pay days so that they would not be without funds over the long Labor day week-end.

Although Alvin Brown, chief assistant to Gen. Johnson, estimated that by nightfall 40,000 relief workers had received their pay checks as promised by Gen. Johnson, there were reports of relief workers who had been disappointed.

A spokesman reported that 200 relief workers who had been instructed to appear at the old Lying-In hospital building to receive their pay checks, were informed by the paymaster that he had not received the checks.

Some 400 WPA employés who failed to receive their pay checks when they arrived in the morning at Floyd Bennet field in Brooklyn began a protest which did not end until the arrival of a police emergency squad and several radio cars. Shortly after the police arrived the paymaster appeared, the WPA employés lined up in orderly manner and received their pay checks.

Mr. Brown announced that the National City bank, the Manufacturers' Trust company, the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company, the Corn Exchange bank, the Bank of Manhattan, the Chase National bank, and the Irving Trust company had assured the Works Progress administration that they would cash checks without question for relief workers properly identified.

WENDEL BEQUEST TO STOP NEED OF MISSIONARIES

Permits Education of Chinese as Pastors.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The millions of dollars bequeathed to the missionary movement in China by the late Ella Wendel, eccentric New York woman, are speeding the day when foreign missionaries will no longer be needed in China.

This is the belief of missionary leaders here, who point out that the Wendel bequest is bringing unity for the first time to the many sects engaged in training Chinese for the work of Christian leadership in this country.

Gradually, they predict, foreign missionaries in China will be supplanted by Chinese pastors whose education will have been made possible by the Wendel millions.

Plan to Combine Schools.

A far reaching program for the coordination of all Protestant theological schools in China under the leadership of the Nanking Theological seminary, actual beneficiary of the Wendel moneys, was tentatively approved by the heads of the various schools concerned at a conference held recently at Kuling, central China. The conference was attended by delegates of 16 institutions.

The plan for a nation-wide association of Protestant theological schools was the outgrowth of six months of investigation on the spot by Dr. Luther A. Weigle, dean of Yale university's divinity school.

The Nanking Theological seminary expects to receive about $3,000,000 from the Wendel estate, Dr. Weigle declared. Only a fraction of this amount has so far been received.

Will Reinvest Fund.

"The whole sum will be reinvested by the seminary," Dr. Weigle continued, "and the income from the investments will be used in augmenting the equipment and personnel of theological schools the country over. No part of the principal will be spent."

Join to Educate Chinese.

Under plans outlined at the Kuling conference, which are subject to the final approval of the controling boards of the various churches concerned, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Episcopalians, Congregationalists and a host of other denominations will join hands in providing enlarged educational facilities for young Chinese who aspire to become ministers.

27 MAGISTRATES OF PHILADELPHIA ARE INDICTED

Grand Jury Finds One Has $82,000 Bank Deposit.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—All except one of Philadelphia's 28 magistrates must go on trial on charges involving misconduct in office. The August grand jury, which has been investigating the minor judiciary for more than two weeks, indicted 17 magistrates in the final presentment of its regular term today. Ten previously had been indicted.

Indicating that it had only scratched the surface in its inquiry so far the grand jury requested Judge Harry S. McDevitt to continue it as a special grand jury. He granted the request and immediately administered another oath. The investigation will be resumed on Tuesday.

Two General Offenses.

As in the cases of the magistrates previously indicted, each of the 17 was charged with two general offenses, namely, malfeasance and misfeasance in office and violation of the magistrates' act of 1927 for failure to list cases in their criminal dockets.

In its attack upon the magisterial system and the individual magistrates the grand jury spared only one member of the minor judiciary, William H. Belcher, a Democrat. He was found to have kept his criminal dockets in full compliance with the law. The presentment charged that the 27 indicted magistrates during the 15 month period from Jan. 1, 1934, to April 1, 1935, failed to make "more than 90,000 entries as required by law, not including cases in a number of police districts where the comparisons have not been completed." The number for individual magistrates ran from 148 to 11,654. The latter figure was attributed to Magistrate Louis Hamberg.

No Entries in 90,000 Cases.

Of the 90,000 cases where no entries were made 16,943 were described as having been principally for indictable offenses, that is, where the magistrate had no alternative but to hold the defendant for the grand jury according to the presentment.

The grand jury revealed that it had questioned a state police investigator regarding a report that one of the magistrates had a bank deposit of $82,000. The witness, it stated, had replied there was no evidence of this and that he had made "no investigation of any money deposit by any one of the twenty-eight."

Fifteen of the indicted magistrates are Republicans and 12 Democrats. Seven, besides Magistrate Belcher, who was cleared, are candidates for renomination at the Sept. 17 primary.

With a bath towel for his blanket and a cracker box for his crib, a blue eyed baby boy was found on the doorstep of the Sisters of Mercy convent, 1026 Buena avenue, early yesterday. Policeman George Witthoft of the Town Hall station took the child to St. Vincent's orphanage, where he was named Robert Kelly—"because he looks Irish," said the nurses.

$482,500 TOTAL INSURANCE HELD BY WILL ROGERS

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Oscar Lawler, attorney for the late Will Rogers, today said Rogers was carrying insurance totaling $482,500 at the time of his death in an Alaskan plane crash with Wiley Post.

Various conflicting reports have given much larger figures for the insurance.

One was that Rogers had a $2,500,000 policy with Lloyds' of London. A man who said he was a lawyer for Lloyds' claimed he had turned over a check for this amount. Lawler said he did not have figures at hand showing how much of Rogers' insurance was with Lloyd's, but "the $482,500 includes all he had."

Lloyds' Los Angeles office said, however, that Rogers had a $250,000 Lloyd's accident policy which he took out only a short time before he left on his Alaskan jaunt with Post.

Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, friend of Rogers, was quoted from Washington Thursday as saying he was informed Rogers' insurance totaled $535,000.

Shortly after Rogers' death his insurance was reported to total $1,050,000. Later, New York brokers were quoted as saying $200,000 of the insurance had matured, and the total left in force was about $800,000.

SALVAGE WORK AT FAIR GROUNDS WILL END ON TIME

While workmen were busy yesterday tearing apart the wreckage of the last Sky Ride tower, which crashed on Friday, officials of A Century of Progress and the Barker-Goldman-Lubin company, wreckers in charge of Fair demolition, announced that the grounds will be cleaned and the Fair offices closed on scheduled time.

Under terms of their contract the wrecking concern must have all buildings demolished by Sept. 30, the grounds must be cleared by Nov. 30, and two additional months will be allowed for the removal of materials.

Maj. Lenox Lohr, manager of A Century of Progress, said that of the 5,000 employés once on the staf of the World's Fair, 15 office workers and 55 outside employés remain on the pay roll. He said that in all probability the Fair offices in the Blum building will be closed about the first of the year and the remaining records handled by a trusteeship.

"Our contract is being carried out according to schedule," said A. H. Lubin, official of the wrecking company. He said that with 40 men breaking up the sky ride tower, using two cranes and ten acetylene cutting torches, 100 tons of steel will be salvaged each day from the wreckage.

MAINE, CALIFORNIA TO HAVE THEIR FIRST U. S. FOREST RESERVES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Eastern Maine and the California redwood regions will have their first national forests as the result of the national forest reservation commission's action in establishing new purchase units in the two great timber producing sections, Secretary Dern, president of the commission, announced today.

The Grand Lake national forest purchases unit in Maine will have a gross area of 78,000 acres in Aroostook, Penobscot, Hancock and Washington counties. Heretofore, Mr. Dern said, the only federal forest area in Maine has been about 30,000 acres of the White Mountain area.

One of the California units will be located in Mendocino and Sonoma counties, and another in Humboldt and Del Norte counties, both areas lying near the coast between San Francisco bay and the Oregon state line.

SCHACHT BACKS JEWS IN CLASH WITH GOEBBELS

Economic Dictator Slaps at "Interference."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, economic dictator of Germany, and Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, were engaged today in a struggle to determine who is to direct the business of Germany.

The case of Jewish art dealers, who were forbidden to do business by order of Goebbels, it is believed, will serve to show whether Schacht is strong enough to prevent interference with business. He has repeatedly declared he would not tolerate outside interference.

Business circles feel that if Schacht loses a panic will result in the art markets and deprive thousands of Germans, including non-Jewish workers, of a chance to earn a living.

Defy Schacht's Warning.

This bit of trouble is one of many points of conflict dividing Schacht and the more radical Nazis. Conservative Nazis argue that the Jews should be allowed to conduct their businesses until special decrees limiting their activities are announced by the cabinet.

Jew baiters, however, have disregarded Schacht's warning to this effect. A few days ago Jewish art dealers were notified by the propaganda ministry that they were no longer members of Art Dealers' guild, which is a branch of Goebbels' "chamber of culture." They were also forbidden to deal in antiques, paintings, sculptures or prints of any kind.

Seventy-five per cent of German art dealers are Jews, and the order means they must throw their entire stock on the market immediately. Jewish art dealers who fought in the world war and were decorated for bravery have protested. They pointed to the law which provides that Jews who are war veterans shall not be molested. The protest was ignored.

Workers Also Protest.

Ivory, bronze, and porcelain art workers also protested. They complained they would lose their means of livelihood if the shops were closed. The Guild of Potters sent a memorandum to Schacht as minister of economics detailing how connections with Jewish dealers helped them to sell their wares.

Foreign dealers affected by Goebbels' order also are protesting through diplomatic channels.

[Two weeks ago Dr. Schacht gave an address in which he attacked individual acts against Jews and delivered a veiled rebuke to Goebbels for promoting such activities.]

Reinstates Ousted Official.

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Germany's "economic dictator," today reinstated a Reichsbank official who had been sent to a concentration camp. Dr. Schacht, who is president of the Reichsbank, insisted that the "honor" of the man, Emil Koeppen, be fully restored.

In addition to being a Reichsbank official Koeppen managed several apartment houses. He evicted a man named Riecker for nonpayment of rent in November, 1934, and Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels' newspaper, Der Angriff, attacked Koeppen, saying he acted contrary to social principles of Nazi Germany.

Aroused by this, an angry crowd stormed Koeppen's home, broke windows and forced his suspension from the Reichsbank and forced his arrest. Schacht won the man's release.

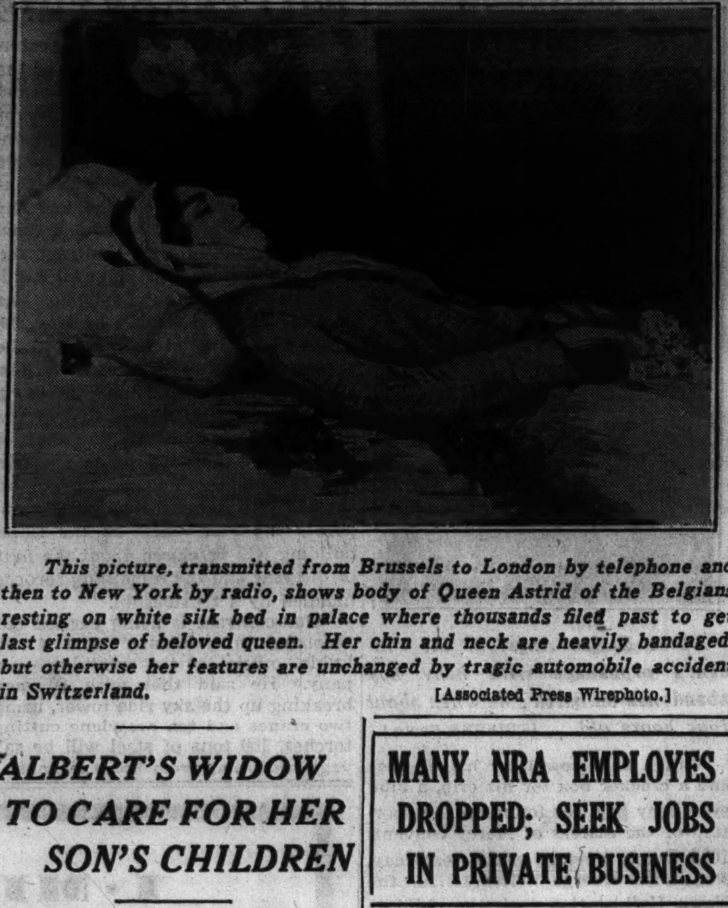
Throngs Mourn at Astrid's Bier



This picture, transmitted from Brussels to London by telephone and then to New York by radio, shows body of Queen Astrid of the Belgians resting on white silk bed in palace where thousands filed past to get last glimpse of beloved queen. Her chin and neck are heavily bandaged, but otherwise her features are unchanged by tragic automobile accident in Switzerland.

ALBERT'S WIDOW TO CARE FOR HER SON'S CHILDREN

King Requests Her to Act for Astrid.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A wartime queen, saddened by the death of her own husband, has taken Belgium's motherless royal children under her care.

Dowager Queen Elizabeth of Belgium assented quickly to the tearful request of her son, King Leopold, that she substitute for their mother, Queen Astrid, killed in an automobile accident in Switzerland.

It was only last year she lost her husband, King Albert, who fell to his death while mountain climbing. Since that time she has shunned public life. She has remained out of Belgium since last March.

Faces Difficult Task.

The new duty will not be easy for the graying queen mother, who is 59 years old. Tiny Prince Albert, hardly more than a year old, requires a great deal of attention. Princess Josephine Charlotte, approaching her eighth birthday, and her younger brother, Prince Baudoin, nearly 5, must be made to understand and accept their loss as they wander through their playrooms at Stuyvenberg castle.

Friends expected her new duties would bring the dowager queen, who is highly beloved by her people, out of her semi-retirement into a more prominent life again.

Besides the queen mother and her daughter, Princess Marie Jose of Piedmont, who accompanied her here from Naples, scores of titled personages were arriving for the funeral.

Thousands View Body.

Grief was not confined to royalty, however. Thousands of the populace stood in the rain today for hours awaiting a chance of a farewell glimpse of Queen Astrid. The young queen's body rested on a white silk bed past which they slowly filed, ten abreast.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday. Among the royalty present to attend were Prince Carl and Princess Ingeborg of Sweden, parents of the dead queen, together with their children, Prince Charles and Princess Margaretha from Denmark. Crown Prince Olaf and Crown Princess Martha, Astrid's sister, will represent the Norwegian royal family, Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus will represent the king of Sweden, with Crown Princess Louis. The king of Italy will be represented by Crown Prince Humberto, and the king of Britain by the duke of York, the monarch's second son.

No Faulty Mechanism.

KUSSNACHT, Switzerland, Aug. 31.—(AP)—After an examination of the wrecked automobile of King Leopold of the Belgians, police reported today the accident, in which Queen Astrid was killed, was not due to faulty mechanism. The car, of an American make, was in perfect condition before the crash, mechanics said. Police said the speedometer showed Leopold was driving at 55 miles an hour.

MANY NRA EMPLOYES DROPPED; SEEK JOBS IN PRIVATE BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Indications of drastic curtailment in the staf of the National Recovery administration were seen today in the issuance of an order by the President directing that special efforts be used to find work for persons dropped from the rolls of the NRA. Up to the present the NRA offices have been well filled with employés, idle since NRA was abolished.

The White House announced that the President had ordered the Works Progress administration to "undertake an emergency employé placement program," for former NRA employés. Apparently they are to remain on public pay rolls.

The action by the President indicating a heavy trimming of the NRA lists followed recent senate debate in which Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg severely criticized the administration for continuing to maintain a large NRA staf although its work has shrunk to little or nothing.

Pledge Is Recalled.

"The representative of the soviet government declared in writing that 'coincident with the establishment of diplomatic relations between our two governments it will be the fixed policy of the government of the union of socialist republics:

"'Not to permit the formation or residence on its territory of any organization or group—and to prevent the activity on its territory of any organization or group, or of representatives or officials of any organization or group—which has as an aim the overthrow or the preparation for the overthrow of, or the bringing about by force of a change in the political or social order of the whole or any part of the United States, its territories, or possessions.'

"The language of the above quoted paragraph irrefutably covers activities of the communist Internationale, which was then, and still is, the outstanding world communist organization, with headquarters at Moscow.

Repudiates Its Pledge.

"In its reply of Aug. 27, 1935, to this government's note of Aug. 25, 1935, the soviet government almost in so many words repudiates the pledge which it gave at the time of recognition that 'it will be the fixed policy of the government of the Union of Soviet Republics . . . not to permit and to prevent' the activities against which this government has protested.

"Not for a moment denying or questioning the fact of communist Internationale activities on soviet territory involving interference in the internal affairs of the United States, the soviet government denies having made any promise 'not to permit . . . and to prevent' such activities of that organization on soviet territory, asserting that it 'has not taken upon itself obligations of any kind with regard to the communist Internationale.'

"That the language of the pledge, as set out above, is absolutely clear and in no way ambiguous, and that there has been a clean cut disregard and disavowal of the pledge by the soviet government, is obvious.

Previous Complaints Made.

"The American government, having previously made oral complaints of failure by the soviet government to carry out its pledge and being deeply concerned over the growing instability of international relations and the dangerous consequences thereof to peace and economic recovery, sought most earnestly in its note of Aug. 25 to impress upon the soviet government the sanctity of its pledge to the end that there might be between the two nations continued development of friendly and official relations and valuable collaboration in many beneficial ways. When in its reply the soviet government indicated an intention entirely to disregard its promise 'to prevent' such activities as those complained of, it struck a severe blow at the fabric of friendly relations between the two countries.

"To summarize, in view of the plain language of the pledge, it is not possible for the soviet government to disclaim its obligation to prevent activities on its territory directed toward overthrowing the political or social order in the United States. And that the government does not and cannot disclaim responsibility on the ground of inability to carry out the pledge, for its authority within its territorial limits is supreme and its power to control the acts and utterances of organizations and individuals within those limits is absolute.

Depends on Soviet Action.

"It remains to be seen to what extent the intention indicated by the soviet government's reply, which is directly contrary to 'the fixed policy' declared in its pledge, will be carried into effect. If the soviet government pursues a policy of permitting activities on its territory involving interferences in the internal affairs of the United States, instead of 'preventing' such activities, as its written pledge provides, the friendly and official relations between the two countries cannot but be seriously impaired. Whether such relations between these two great countries are thus unfortunately to be impaired and coöperative opportunities for vast good to be destroyed, will depend upon the attitude and action of the soviet government."

SUNDAY TRIBUNE STARTS REVIEW OF NEWS WEEK

Gives Simple Digest of World Events.

formed the habit of keeping abreast of the times.

3. Young people to whom newspaper reading often is confusing.

News may often confuse readers in all of these classes. It may confuse the busy reader since he may neglect some important sentence or paragraph or even a whole article. The studious person can forget on Friday the article of last Monday. Since news is a fast flowing current it happens that the daily reports of a continuing situation must take for granted that the reader is informed of the early facts. If this were not so it might be necessary to repeat every day what has gone before. Of course this would become tedious to some readers and an endless job for the printer.

Pleasing the Most Readers.

Since there are many classes of readers it is impossible to suit them all. A few prefer long and exhaustive articles. Some like extreme brevity. Most prefer a middle ground. This probably explains why THE TRIBUNE has the largest standard circulation in America.

If the only duty of an editor is to put everything in type leaving the reader to wade through until he finds what he wants perhaps the editor isn't performing much of a function. But if the training of an editor imposes the obligation of sorting out the important from the trivial, of sorting facts from fiction and of sorting the constructive from the destructive perhaps he is not wasting his life.

In a niagara of propaganda which pours out from every kind of agency ranging from the individual through clubs, societies and associations to a bewildering regimentation of governmental departments it is the rule of good journalism not to allow any organization to insinuate columns on one side of a debatable question thus giving an unbalanced impression.

Writers Will Assemble News.

It is an extension of this kind of editing that THE TRIBUNE presents in the news review. Trained writers assemble and co-relate all the facts of a news situation. Something may happen in Washington on Monday, in Seattle on Tuesday, in New Orleans on Wednesday. These happenings together with a background of explanation will be assembled and stated with clearness and brevity.

International news often has echoes in a dozen capitals. In the course of seven days there may be a flood of reports from the state department in Berlin, from the French chamber of deputies, from the British foreign office, the Italian dictator, the Japanese diet and the Russian embassy in Spain.

These reports may come on different days. They may be contradictory one day and clear the next. The average reader is not inclined to assemble and digest these cross currents of official and unofficial reports. But this is done by THE TRIBUNE'S news review.

"Whatever happened to the Jones case?" Or, "What was done about that war threat in the Balkans?" or, "Did they ever settle that so-and-so controversy?" Commonly asked questions are answered in THE TRIBUNE'S news review.

It is complete to Sunday morning, brief and simple.

H. BERNSTEIN, 59, AUTHOR, FORMER DIPLOMAT, DIES

Sheffield, Mass., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Herman Bernstein, noted author and former United States minister to Albania, died of heart disease today at his summer home here.

Bernstein attracted much attention in 1923 when he brought suit against Henry Ford in the New York Supreme court for libel. He charged he was libeled by an article published in Ford's newspaper, the Dearborn Independent, and by an interview sent out from Detroit in which Ford was quoted as having said he had gleaned most of his information about an alleged international Jewish conspiracy from Bernstein.

Ford Makes Apology.

The automobile manufacturer sent a letter of apology to Bernstein in 1927 and retracted the published articles.

Bernstein came to this country from Russia in 1893. He was European correspondent for the New York Times and later reported the Russian revolution for the New York Herald. In 1930 he was appointed minister to Albania.

He was the founder and editor of the national Jewish daily, The Day, and was the author of many books, including "The Road to War," and "Herbert Hoover, The Man Who Brought America To The World." He also translated and adopted many stories and plays from German and Russian.

Exposed Kaiser's Letters.

Bernstein published the "Willy-Nicky" telegrams, the secret correspondence between the Russian czar and the German kaiser which attracted universal attention. He also published "The History of a Lie," exposing the so-called "Protocols of the Wise Men of Zion" as a literary forgery.

He is survived by his widow, the former Sophie Friedman of Moscow; a son, David, editor of the magazine, the New Talent, and three daughters.

Other Fat Emoluments Are Recalled.

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—The fat fees which have been falling to the lot of Basil O'Connor, Broadway lawyer, in so-called "official favor" cases since his former partner, Franklin D. Roosevelt, became a power in national politics have become a subject of fresh comment in the legal fraternity here following the fee disclosures in the Associated Gas lobby and the Joliet, Ill., bank matters.

No one watching the accumulating evidences of the lawyer's growing prosperity seemed at all surprised that, according to the U. S. senate committee's inquiry, he should have received $50,000 from Mr. Hopson's gas corporation "for services in connection with the corporate reorganization."

Nor was there great surprise at the $10,000 charge made by O'Connor against the faraway city of Joliet for inducing the controler of currency to give priority to that city's claim of $48,000 on a busted bank deposit. Far fatter emoluments are on local record to testify to the confidence which moneyed home folk have come to repose in Mr. O'Connor's legal talents in recent years.

$35,000 Final Instalment.

Only last May—May 9 to be exact—there was entered in the documentary files of the New York Supreme court an order directing payment to him of $35,000 as the final instalment of a $135,000 fee or "allowance" for aid and counsel rendered the state superintendent of insurance in litigation involving the receivership and rehabilitation of the Globe and Rutgers Insurance company. This was in addition to a liberal allowance for expenses. The insurance department head, George S. Van Shaick, was an appointee of Mr. Roosevelt, named while the former law partner of O'Connor was governor of New York.

A feature of the case which occasioned no little comment in the profession at the time, was Mr. O'Connor's "switch" in sides in midstream of the litigation. He had entered the picture as special counsel to the company which was then endeavoring to have the Reconstruction Finance corporation convert a loan which that obliging government bureau had made to it, into a preferred stock investment. Mr. O'Connor—"former law partner of President Roosevelt" as the newspapers made a specialty of pointing out—undertook to pave the way for the conversion by persuading congress to enact legislation permitting the RFC to buy preferred stocks of insurance companies as it had been permitted to do with bank stock.

O'Connor "Presents Idea."

While the matter was pending, the court was informed in one of the numerous hearings on the insurance company's case that "Mr. Basil O'Connor had presented the idea" in Washington and that the "principle had been accepted by the administration." Eventually, the proposal, an amendment to the RFC act, went through and the government "corporation" took up $3,500,000 worth of the embarrassed company's stock, a step which led finally to the concern's "rehabilitation" and release from state custody.

In the meantime however Mr. O'Connor had agreed to transfer his services from the cause of the company to that of the state superintendent who was seeking to liquidate it and his switch over was in due course made a matter of court record. As the New York Times in its account of the proceeding said, "It was decided that Mr. O'Connor could not continue to represent at one and the same time Mr. Van Shaick who approved the legislation and the Globe and Rutgers company so the latter was forced to retain new counsel."

The result was that subsequent hearings witnessed the rare spectacle of Mr. O'Connor in the rôle of "prosecutor" or counsel for the plaintif, battling the defendant company's lawyers so lately his professional colleagues.

Consents to "Whittling."

Mr. O'Connor's fees were paid out of the treasury of "the rehabilitated" company which eventually passed to the control of new interests. Order for the payment was signed by Justice Alfred Frankenthaler of the Supreme court, before whom most of the litigation took place. In his final bill, by the way, O'Connor had asked for $60,000 but consented to whittle the amount down to $33,000, or $135,000 all told, exclusive of expenses.

At the moment there is on file with the United States District court of the southern district of New York an O'Connor bill for $35,000 "on account" for services as special master in an angle of the Interborough Rapid Transit receivership case, services which the opposing counsel, Charles Franklin, informed the court had consumed actually only 72½ hours of the "master's" time. In other words, as Mr. Franklin pointed out—in an answer duly written into the official records of the case—President Roosevelt's former law partner was asking the stockholders of the bankrupt corporation, already bled white by litigation and mismanagement, to pay him at the rate of $482 an hour for the time he spent in hearings on the case. The bill has not been paid as yet, due mainly to Attorney Franklin's opposition.

$14,000 in Month.

In another proceeding in the same tangle of traction litigation, O'Connor presented a bill for $14,000, for services as a special master, extending over a period of less than a month, but Judge Julian Mack, sitting at that time, ruled the claim to be out of reason and cut the amount to $5,000.

The O'Connor appointment as special master in that famous case was an "official favor" of Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton, an appointee of President Wilson. Judge Manton has since retired as the officiating judge in the case, but his resignation did not come until after Lawyer Franklin had petitioned the United States Supreme court to remove him from further participation in the proceedings on the ground that his conduct of the case had "created a public scandal which has brought and is bringing great discredit upon the historic traditions, integrity, and public reputation of the federal judicial system."

"Official Favors" Continue.

"Official favors" continue to come the way of Basil O'Connor and his associates. On April 3 last the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, acting under provisions of 77 C of the bankruptcy act, appointed O'Connor as one of five members of the bar to sit as referees in the reorganizations of railroads in this district.

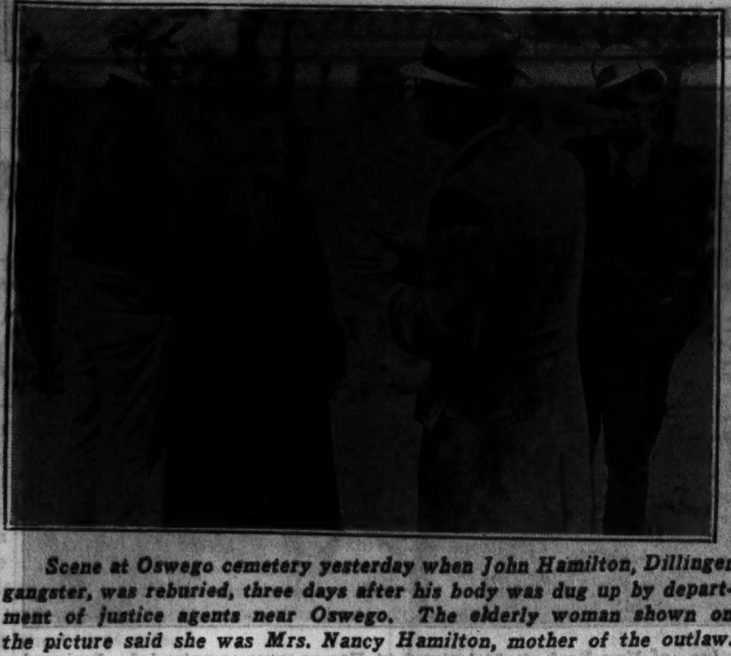
On Feb. 2, last, O'Connor appeared as counsel for State Superintendent of Banks George W. Egbert, in argument on the superintendent's application for permission to appeal from the judge's decision, taking the affairs of the Prudence company, Inc., out of the hands of the state banking department.

"Roosevelt and O'Connor."

All through Mr. Roosevelt's stay at Albany as governor, his law firm continued to carry his name at the masthead of its stationery, despite the fact that he took no outwardly active part in its affairs. The name "Roosevelt and O'Connor" continued to flare across the heads of letters sent out by Mr. O'Connor for months, even after the senior partner had moved to Washington as the nation's President. One such, bearing a date as late as May 15, 1933, was exhibited by an amused correspondent the other day.

Eventually, however, the President's name was dropped and the firm changed its nomenclature to O'Connor and Farber.

"Mother" at Reburial of Hamilton



Scene at Oswego cemetery yesterday when John Hamilton, Dillinger gangster, was reburied, three days after his body was dug up by department of justice agents near Oswego. The elderly woman shown on the picture said she was Mrs. Nancy Hamilton, mother of the outlaw.

Interment at Dawn

John Hamilton's body was reburied with due form yesterday in the Oswego cemetery, which lies not far from the gravel pit chosen for the gangster's original grave. John Dillinger, Hamilton's chief, is supposed to have chosen the spot near Oswego, Ill., after Hamilton died of wounds incurred in a brush with the police. Wednesday, department of justice agents dug the body up.

Yesterday's interment was almost as secretive as the first. At daybreak Undertaker J. B. Thorsen of Oswego and two assistants took the body in a cheap gray coffin to the cemetery. The Rev. John Klein of the Oswego Presbyterian church said a few words. The casket was lowered into its wooden box. Everybody scurried home.

As the burial party was leaving the cemetery Dr. A. H. Churchill of Oswego drove up, accompanied by a gray haired woman, 70 years old. She said she was Mrs. Nancy Hamilton, mother of the outlaw. The coroner's records showed that Hamilton's mother's name was Sarah. The visitor said she reached Oswego at 3 a. m. alone. At 5 o'clock she encountered Dr. Churchill and asked him to drive her to the cemetery.

BAND CONCERTS CLOSE TUESDAY IN GRANT PARK

The final concert in the regular series of free band performances in the Grant park band shell will be presented Tuesday night, closing a program that opened on July 1.

During the last week the concerts were attended by 95,000 persons, according to James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, one of the sponsors of the concerts. The total attendance for the season so far is 1,895,000.

As a grand finale to the open air season a special concert will be given next Sunday night. At that time the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the orchestra of the Chicago Opera company, and the Chicago Women's orchestra will appear in a program under the direction of Dr. Frederick Stock, conductor of the symphony orchestra. It is expected that more than 100,000 will attend the event.

CORN-FED GIRLS PREFERRED, SAYS EARL CARROLL

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Earl Carroll's portals, through which the sign says "the most beautiful girls in the world pass," may have to be enlarged if he is successful in picking his next chorus along the lines—or curves—he charted today.

"The corn-fed type of girls are, in my estimation, in greatest demand by American connoisseurs of pulchritude," he said. Here are measurements listed by Carroll:

Height, 5 feet 7 inches; weight, 125 pounds; hips, 35 inches; waist, 25 inches; ankles, 7¾ inches, and wrists, 5 inches.

'Peach Capacity' Leads to Quarrel.

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Shortly after the body of 4 year old Elizabeth Vonderhofen was found tonight in the desolate section of Classon Point, the Bronx, not more than a quarter of a mile from her home, police arrested her 9 year old playmate who they said admitted the murder because he was "mad at her."

The accused boy, Phillip Oehler, who lives with his father, a boatbuilder on the grounds of the Classon Point Amusement park, admitted, according to the police, having struck the child on the head with a rock after he had become incensed over an argument concerning her capacity for peaches.

The boy told the police he had been playing in the high grass with the Vonderhofen child and several other children. Someone brought up the subject of peaches and each one claimed to be able to eat just a few more than the next.

Throws Large Stone.

The boy said the other children gradually withdrew from the debate leaving just himself and the girl to argue it out. As the argument progressed, the Oehler boy, according to the police, suddenly lost his temper and began to abuse the girl. He searched around until he found a stone about four inches in diameter and without warning, police said, he threw it, striking the girl on the head.

He proceeded to strip the clothing off the girl until all that was left was a pair of red socks.

The boy then partly covered the body with leaves and ran home where he changed his clothing.

Found at Home.

The first clew the police received was from one of the girls who had engaged in the argument over the peaches. The Oehler boy was found in his home and after questioning by the police and his father readily admitted the crime, according to the police.

The girl had been away from her home since 1 p. m. during the late afternoon when she did not return, the family and neighbors began a search through the neighborhood. Later as darkness came on, the number of searchers increased. More than 200 persons with flash lights and flares tramped through the fields and marshes within a half a mile of the house. At 7 p. m. after the police had been notified, Acting Sergeant George Maiberger of Emergency Squad 9, accompanied by two 13 year old boys, discovered the body.

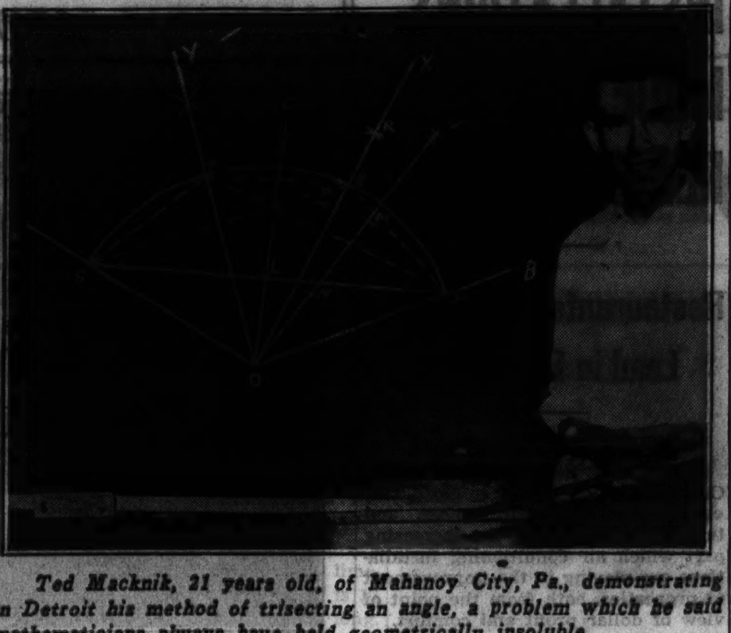
YOUNG STUDENT SHOWS HOW HE 'TRISECTS ANGLE'

Mathematicians Stirred by Demonstration.

ASSERTS HE TRISECTS ANGLE



Ted Macknik, 21 years old, of Mahanoy City, Pa., demonstrating in Detroit his method of trisecting an angle, a problem which he said mathematicians always have held geometrically insoluble.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Ted Macknik, 21 year old Pennsylvanian, stirred the interest of Detroit mathematicians today with a demonstration of the method by which he contends he is able to trisect an angle, using only a straight edge and a compass.

The Mahanoy City youth, using a blackboard before an intent audience in a hotel ballroom, explained the geometrical formula which he says solves a problem mathematicians have always held geometrically insoluble. No measurements were indicated on either the compass or ruler used.

Angle of Any Size.

Macknik said his method applied to an angle of any size and that by geometrical analysis of the angles made by the connecting points in his diagram any mathematician can prove that his method of trisecting a given angle is infallible.

Macknik is attending the national Ukranian youth conference here.

Using O as a center, Macknik drew two straight lines to form an obtuse angle, labelling the extreme ends A and B. With his compass he drew an arc, using O as the center, the arc reaching the lines AO and AB near the extreme ends at points labelled S and T.

With A and B as centers, he made intersecting arcs to bisect angle AOB, cutting it into two equal angles along line OC. He then bisected angle OCB, labelling the new line OV.

Returning to the starting center, O, Macknik took a radius at random and drew point L on the line OC and point N on the line OV. With the same radius, but using N as his center, he drew point M on the line OV. Using L and N as centers and the same radius he made intersecting arcs at a point P between the diverging lines OC and OV. Then with P and M as centers he made intersecting arcs at point R.

A line was drawn from point O, cutting through the arc ST at Z and continuing through R to a point X. He bisected the arc SZ, using S and Z as centers, at point K, then drew a line through K and out to point Y. Arcs SK, KZ, and ZT were equal, he said, thus trisecting the original angle AOB.

National Parent-Teacher Board Meets Here Sept. 16

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Mrs. J. K. Pettengill, acting president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, announced today that its board of managers would meet in Chicago Sept. 16-19, instead of in Rapid City, S. D. Mrs. Pettengill said a telegraphic vote showed that only half the board members could be present at Rapid City.

YOUNG WOMAN INVADES PARTY, SHOOTS MATE

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 31.—[U. P.]—Her stylish red jacketed dress crumpled and soiled, Mrs. Lorraine Walsh, 24 year old dress designer, was arrested today cowering in a doghouse in the rear of the home of her secret husband, Joseph Walsh, 39, whom she was suspected of shooting.

Mounting guard over her was a fierce police dog.

Suddenly the door flew open, Ennis told police, and a fashionably dressed young woman entered, exclaiming: "This is a fine how do you do."

Police went to Walsh's home, where they found her doubled up in the doghouse with the dog on guard outside.

She denied she had shot Walsh, but declared she and the liquor salesman had been married secretly in Yuma, Ariz., five months ago.

"The Tribune helped us find the kind of apartment we wanted—"

HOWARD F. DE GRAVES

AIR PILOT, CAPTAIN IN THE CHICAGO NAVAL AIR RESERVE

"Until recently we had been living in an apartment which didn't suit our requirements. So my wife decided that we were going to move as soon as we could find a more satisfactory place.

"After driving around in several neighborhoods, we found that we were making no progress at all. After wasting a lot of time, we started checking the apartments in the Sunday Tribune want ad section.

CHECKS TRIBUNE WANT ADS

"There we found what seemed to us the most complete listing of apartments anyone could ask for. They were listed according to the section of the city, and according to the size of the apartment. Frequent mention of the price made it easy for us to find exactly the kind of apartment which would fit our desires as well as our pocketbook.

"We checked off several ads, one of which described a four-room apartment on Glenwood Ave., a street which we knew to be in a quiet residential section.

FINDS THE RIGHT APARTMENT!

"We went over to see the apartment and liked it so much that without looking farther we called at the office of the advertiser, the John C. Bowers Company, 4642 Broadway, and talked to Mr. Kirkpatrick. We agreed on the decorating to be done, and paid a deposit before we left.

"Mr. Kirkpatrick made out a lease and sent it to us within a few days. We signed it and moved in. We like the apartment very much and think that Tribune want ads are by far the quickest and most satisfactory way of finding the kind of place you want."

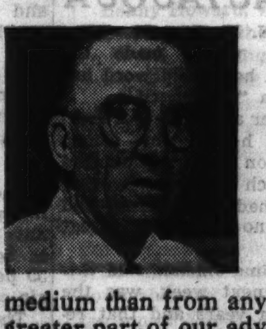
Chicago's apartment surplus is a thing of the past. An expanding population, coupled with the fact that there has been practically no building since 1930, has created a shortage. If you wait until the last minute you may be disappointed.

Attractive apartments in practically every price range and in every neighborhood are advertised in the Tribune. Rental agents list their best values in the Tribune because they have found that their best prospects are Tribune readers.

Start reading Tribune want ads today. Check a half dozen offers which appeal to you. Take your list and make some calls. You will soon find the apartment you want, at the price you want to pay.



"WE GET QUICKER AND BETTER RESULTS FROM THE TRIBUNE"

"We have been using Tribune want ads steadily for the past 10 years and have found them unquestionably the best source of leads not only for the sale of real estate offerings but for the renting of apartments as well. We get quicker and better results from this medium than from any other available in Chicago. So in placing the greater part of our advertising money in the Tribune we feel that we are serving the best interests of our owners and patrons."

SOCIAL CREDIT APOSTLE HAILED AS 'MAN OF GOD'

Story of Alberta's New Premier Told.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 31.—"The best school teacher in Alberta and a man of God."

That is how his admirers describe William Aberhart, Social Credit leader and premier-elect of the province of Alberta. For years this Calgary school teacher has been known widely in Alberta through his religious work, but his recent sweeping victory at the polls has brought him world-wide notice.

It is only three years since he first became interested in the theories of Social Credit as propounded by Maj. C. H. Douglas, British economist. He was in Edmonton marking examination papers at the time. After examining the theory, he became enthusiastic in its support.

Began Campaign in 1933.

His campaign to elect a provincial government pledged to carry out Social Credit theories was begun in 1933. Aberhart put into the campaign all his tremendous evangelistic fervor and great organizing skill. He promised everybody a credit of $25 a month to spend, in accordance with the Social Credit program. As a result, though two years ago Alberta knew virtually nothing of Social Credit, today the province has given Aberhart an overwhelming mandate to put it into effect by electing fifty-six Social Credit men to a legislature of sixty-three.

The new leader was born in Huron county, Ontario, in 1878, and educated in the public schools there. As a youth he wanted to become a minister, but circumstances led him to become a teacher. He taught at Brantford, Ont., from 1900 to 1910, then obtained a specialist's certificate as a commercial teacher after studying at Seaforth college, Queen's university, Kingston, Ont., and the Normal school, Hamilton, Ont.

In 1910 he came to Alberta as principal of Alexandra school, Calgary. That city has been his home and the main scene of his professional and religious activities ever since. For the last twenty years he has been principal of the Crescent Heights High school.

Starts Bible Teaching.

After coming to Alberta he devoted considerable time to religious work. He took a Bible class at Trinity church, then organized a similar group at Grace Presbyterian church. In 1913 he joined the Westmount Baptist church and organized a Bible class there. This class soon outgrew the space allotted to it in the Sunday school room, and had to go into the main auditorium of the church, which also became too small to accommodate the hundreds who attended.

Aberhart next took the Grand theater which for some time was crammed to the doors and then it also became too smoll. In 1923 he moved to the Palace theater, a larger building, and filled that to capacity.

In 1927 he built the present Prophetic Bible institute, which has the largest auditorium of any building in the province. Here 5,000 young men and women, boys and girls are given religious instruction each week. All this time he continued his classes in the largest high school in Calgary.

Uses Radio.

Aberhart was one of the first to use the radio to broadcast his religious addresses. Much of the recent political campaign was carried on in broadcasts and his tremendous success is largely attributed to this medium.

Aberhart is tall, portly, with bald head fringed with white hair. He has a ruddy complexion and quizzical blue eyes. Always well dressed, he is a commanding figure on or off the platform. His style of oratory is a bit too ecclesiastical for the usual political speaker, but his voice is deep, pleasant, and reminds one more of the prayer meeting than the political arena. His sincerity is beyond question.

His campaign was conducted with a semi-religious atmosphere prevailing throughout. All meetings were opened with the singing of the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past." This took the place of a campaign party song.

Names Alberta Cabinet.

Eight men who have never had legislative or cabinet experience were named today as Alberta's cabinet, headed, of course, by Aberhart as president of the council and minister of education. The rest of the cabinet follows: Attorney general, John W. Hugill; minister of agriculture, trade, and industry, William N. Chant; minister of lands and mines, C. C. Ross; minister of public works, railways, and telephones, W. A. Fallow; minister of health, Dr. W. W. Cross; provincial treasurer and minister of municipal affairs, Charles Cockroft; provincial secretary, E. C. Manning.

The government will be sworn into office next Tuesday.

162 County Board Aids Sue for $43,423 Salary

A bill for a writ of mandamus to compel the county board to pay $43,423 to 162 present and former employes who allegedly were compelled to take two weeks' vacation and work overtime without pay while attached to the county treasurer's office in 1932, was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by the firm of Collins, McKenna & McCullough, legal counsel for the clerks.

5 Pct. Increase in Students Seeking U. of C. Courses

Applications for admission to the University of Chicago's freshman class are 5 per cent ahead of the figure at the same time last year, Roy W. Bixler, director of admissions, announced yesterday. A corresponding increase in applications in the higher classifications also was noted.

100 YEARS OLD

Isaac Pelin ran a firm hand through his thick white hair, took a long draught of beer and decided yesterday, on the eve of his 100th birthday, that it was "liking the girls and liking to work" that brought about longevity.

"Hard work never killed a man," Pelin declared as he sat in the yard of the home he built at 1942 North Neva avenue. "I did manual labor until I was nearly 90 years old, and I'm not dead yet."

Mr. Pelin was born in Ottawa, Canada, on Sept. 1, 1835, and came to the United States as a farmhand at the age of 14, later becoming a carpenter. He served in the Union army during the Civil war, was in Chicago during the fire of 1871 and later moved to Standish, Mich., where he married. He has two children—a son, Harry Pelin, with whom he lives, and a daughter, Mrs. Edith Ferguson, 734 Melrose street.

MEXICO RADICALS IN SADDLE; OPEN CONGRESS TODAY

Plan Greater Benefits for Workers.

The "left wing" designation, while signifying to a certain extent radical political tendencies, was originally chosen by a small group of deputies and senators to distinguish supporters of President Cardenas, in contrast to the majority groups which were known as followers of former President Plutarco Elias Calles.

Since Calles' fall from political power in June and his retirement into voluntary exile in the Hawaiian Islands, members of former majorities have flocked over to the leftists, who now count more than 95 of the 170 deputies and more than 30 of the 50 senators.

More Benefits to Workers.

Agarian and labor problems and the question of putting an end to monopolies existing in various industries are the principal subjects to be studied by congress.

A modification of the labor law of 1931 to give workers even further benefits than those they now enjoy is expected to be enacted before the session ends Dec. 31. Legislation to make illegal the organization of "white guards," or company unions, is also on the program and the law of coöperatives is to be reformed to give workers additional chances to operate their own business.

Program of President.

In his address at the opening meeting Cardenas is expected to present proposals for the establishment of a federal insurance fund to protect farmers against the loss of their crops due to natural causes, and to guarantee them against occupational disablements. The insurance projects form a principal part of the President's program.

By a recent decree the president put an end to the monopoly on newsprint, which has been maintained by a Spanish controled company for many years, and congress is planning action to end similar monopolies in other industries, most of them operated by foreigners.

FUNDS RAISED FOR PROTECTION OF CHAUTAUQUA

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The institution which made the "chautauqua" a household word has been saved from "the sherif."

Operating under a friendly receivership because of heavy debts, Chautauqua institution today announced the $125,000 which creditors demanded by Sept. 1 had been raised and that there was no immediate threat of foreclosure.

At the same time officials said this season, closing next week, was the best attended in years and that receipts were $21,434 better than last year.

Chicago Printed School Magazine Barred in Topeka

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 31.—[U.P.]—The Topeka board of education tonight voted to bar the "National Scholastic," a publication indorsed by the National Association of Secondary Education, from the Topeka High school.

"We will not permit anything in the schools encouraging communism," the board said in explanation of the action. Members contended the publication opposed government. It had a circulation of 500 in the Topeka High school and was used as a supplementary text in English classes.

Chicago Spends $1,300,000 in Seven Months to Air Condition Properties

INSTALLATIONS MADE THIS YEAR REACH 254 TOTAL

Restaurants and Offices Lead in Equipment.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

With one of the hottest summers in Chicago's history about to close, real estate men, property owners, and tenants are observing the increasing part which air conditioning installations are playing in the improvement of properties, both from the point of view of dollar profit and comfort.

Statistics compiled by the Commonwealth Edison company show that in Chicago there were 254 installations from Jan. 1, 1935, to the present, which brings the grand total for the city to 878. These installations range from air conditioning of homes and apartments to offices and industrial establishments, with theaters and restaurants accounting for a large part of them. Restaurants with 44 installations and private offices with 43 led this year's business.

The amount of business involved in the installation of the 254 air conditioning units in the first seven months of this year was approximately $1,300,000 of which local labor received approximately $500,000 and local engineers, salesmen, and office personnel approximately $250,000. The supplying of power to run Chicago's 878 air conditioning installations is adding approximately $500,000 to the annual revenues of the Commonwealth Edison company.

The largest installation for comfort cooling is in the Field building, which has a plant capable of producing the equivalent in cooling energy of 750 tons of ice a day. The first four floors of the Field building are air conditioned. Second in size is the plant of Tribune Tower, which is rated to have a cooling capacity of 624 tons of ice a day.

Armour & Co.'s air cooling equipment, which serves both industrial and comfort purposes, is listed as having a capacity of 1,500 tons of ice a day in cooling effort. This is the largest cooling plant in the city. Among other large installations the A. B. Dick & Co. plant has a 500 ton capacity and the Wrigley company plant a 400 ton capacity.

Among the advantages claimed for air conditioning is that its use in older properties enables them to compete with more modern buildings. Usually the installation of air conditioning equipment is accompanied by other improvements such as modern fronts and interiors and better lighting systems.

Makes Property Desirable.

Then, just as has been found in railroad experience with air conditioning, the accompanying suppression of noise and the elimination of much of the dirt from the outside have done much to make properties so equipped more desirable. These qualities have made it possible to utilize some properties which otherwise would have been empty.

An example cited in this connection is the Morton building, at the northwest corner of Washington and Wells, which was completed in 1927. The entire second floor of this structure, embracing 15,000 square feet, was vacant from the time it was put up until 1933 because of its proximity to noisy elevated and street car tracks.

Aldis J. Browne, agent of the building, determined to see if equipment of the space with air conditioning and sound excluding devices would enable him to rent it. This was done and the entire second floor, unoccupied for six years, was leased for an extended period to the Burroughs Adding Machine company of Detroit on a profitable basis.

Half of Theaters Equipped.

The manner in which air conditioning has brought patronage to theaters and restaurants during hot weather is becoming an old story. Already 50 per cent of Chicago's theaters are air conditioned.

There are comparatively few residences and apartments in the city which have this equipment, but the exceedingly hot weather of the last two seasons is expected to add impetus to home instalments. Officials of the Commonwealth Edison company estimate that the cost of power for the individual room coolers will run from $7 to $10 a season, figuring that there will be some days when the machines will not be in use and that the machines will not be running for an entire twenty-four hour period.

ADDING TO CITY'S INDUSTRIAL FACILITIES

Above is a new plant being erected for the Air Reduction Company, Inc., of New York on 31st street at Homan avenue extended. Designed by Benard R. Klekamp, Chicago architect, the building and machinery it will house will cost approximately $250,000. The plant will manufacture oxygen from the air, largely for use in the metal trades.

FHA Boosts Staf to Help Home Owners

CARROLL H. SUDLER.

Carroll H. Sudler, district director of the Federal Housing administration, announced yesterday that because of the increasing interest among lending institutions making FHA Title II. insured mortgages, a number of additional interviewers have been put to work to take care of applicants.

"Borrowers in good credit standing who own or desire to build dwellings of one to four family apartments and who have not found satisfactory banking accommodations in their communities may apply directly to the FHA district office, where full information will be given beginning Sept. 3," Sudler said. "However, the FHA does not assume any obligation to arrange mortgage loans for applicants."

25 Loans Made in Week.

Sudler said that for the week ending Aug. 27 a total of 25 FHA insured mortgages under Title II. amounting to $106,000, were made by lending institutions in the northern Illinois district. Of these 17, totaling $58,300, covered refinancing of existing mortgages and 8, totaling $48,200, were for new construction.

In addition to this, 67 Title II. mortgages were approved for insurance in the amount of $307,550, of which 45, totaling $192,650, were for refinancing, and 22, totaling $114,900, covered new construction.

There were fifty-seven new mortgages offered for appraisal during the week. These totaled $377,800. Of this number forty-seven, in the amount of $292,450, were for refinancing, and ten, totaling $85,350, were for new construction.

490 Mortgages Approved.

To date 490 mortgages, totaling $2,526,120, have been approved for insurance in the northern Illinois district. The total number of mortgages offered is 818 for $4,285,508.

The total number of FHA insured modernization loans made under Title II. by banks and other lending establishments in the northern Illinois district is 11,607 for $4,496,137.

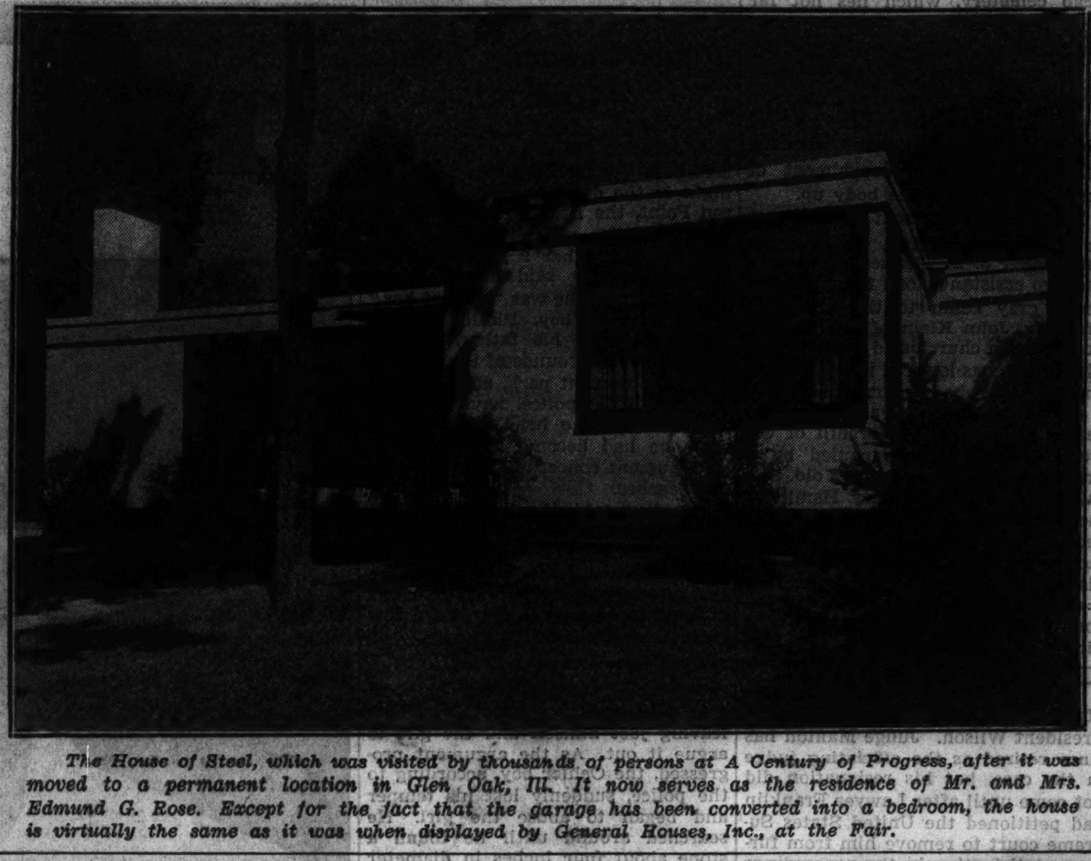
A HOUSE ONCE VISITED BY THOUSANDS



The House of Steel, which was visited by thousands of persons at A Century of Progress, after it was moved to a permanent location in Glen Oak, Ill. It now serves as the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund G. Rose. Except for the fact that the garage has been converted into a bedroom, the house is virtually the same as it was when displayed by General Houses, Inc., at the Fair.

GROUP OF NEIGHBORS PUTS UP FABRICATED HOUSE IN THREE DAYS

A five room house on which work was started Friday morning is scheduled to be finished and ready for occupancy this evening, according to George R. Meyercord, president of the Haskelite Manufacturing corporation, its builder. Meyercord said the house, which is being erected on the Walsh farms near 159th and Kedzie, is being put up by a group of neighbors on a coöperative basis just as people helped each other to build homes in colonial days.

The sides and roof will be constructed of fabricated wood paneling. The paneling is made waterproof by having a cotton cloth glued over it and coated with a synthetic rosin. It is treated to make it more fire resistant than ordinary lumber. The building is strengthened through the use of 3½ tons of steel in the columns and beams.

Meyercord said his company has about seventy-five designs for houses of this type, which will cost from $1,500 to $2,500, exclusive of foundations and interior fixtures. The house being erected is 24x36 feet and will cost its owner, Fred J. Walsh, about $2,500.

Gasoline Station Group Leases Exhibition Space

Arthur Rubloff & Co. report the leasing of the entire second floor of the Petroleum building, 616 South Michigan avenue, to the Chicago Service Station Operators' association, which is affiliated with the American Service Station institute and the Illinois Petroleum Retailers' association. The space will be used for the exhibition of products of gasoline and oil service station manufacturers.

REALTY CONCERN TO MARKET HALF ACRE FARM LOTS

Some increase in subdivision activity was reported from two sources yesterday. L. B. Andersen & Co., Inc., announced the opening of the first of several close-in half acre subdivisions in the Park Ridge district. The company has established its first field office at Dempster street and Milwaukee avenue. The first offering consists of land in a truck garden district which largely will be sold for small farms. L. B. Andersen says his firm sold over 800 farms during the depression and the demand is growing.

The Frank De Lugach Real Estate company said that to stimulate sales it is offering its property on a hundred week sales plan. Lots selling for $50 will be sold at 50 cents down and 50 cents a week, with corresponding terms for higher priced property. The company reports it missed the customary August lull and business is now active.

REPORTS HOME BUILDING GAIN IN AUSTIN AREA

The Miller Mortgage company, headed by Hobart G. Miller, is opening a branch office at 6717 West North avenue in connection with the offices of Leonard W. Besinger, contractor and builder, for the purpose of getting closer to building activities in Oak Park and Austin.

Miller reports considerable home construction activity in the district. He said work is to be started shortly on a model house at 1627 North Rutherford avenue which is being financed through the FHA. It is to be of studio type and will contain five rooms. The cost is $9,000. Miller said he had participated in the financing of five residences this season.

ELEVEN RESIDENCES NOW BEING ERECTED IN SAUGANASH AREA

Considerable residential construction is reported under way in Sauganash, a residential area bounded by Devon, Cicero, Bryn Mawr, and Kostner avenues, within the city limits. Eleven single family residences are being erected, the largest number since 1931.

The homes range from five to nine rooms and the average cost is $12,500. During the year Aug. 1, 1934, to Aug. 1, 1935, work was started on nineteen residences, all of brick construction, for which the average cost was $15,000. Seven of these homes were built without the aid of mortgage financing.

It was pointed out that each of the homes now under construction is being built by an individual owner for his own occupancy. The speculative home builder is not yet a factor in this building spurt, it is said.

The owners of the nineteen new Sauganash residences are classified as follows: 1 physician, 2 dentists, 1 judge, 2 publishers, 3 engineers, 1 cartage contractor, 3 food products dealers, 1 railway supply dealer, 1 engineers' supply dealer, 1 lumber dealer, 1 paint manufacturer, 1 police officer, and 1 housewife.

AIR REDUCTION BUILDS $250,000 FACTORY HERE

Will Manufacture Oxygen for Metal Trades.

Manufacturing facilities in Chicago are being increased by a new plant for the Air Reduction Company, Inc., of New York, which is being erected on West 31st street at the southwest corner of Homan avenue, extended. The cost of the building and machinery which will be installed in it will be approximately $250,000.

The new structure, which is to be ready for operations in about three months, will be used for the manufacture of oxygen. While some of the oxygen will be used for medical purposes, by far the greater part of it will be employed in the metal trades in conjunction with acetylene gas, principally in welding and cutting.

Benard R. Klekamp, Chicago architect, designed the new plant, which measures 100x243 feet. The structure will be of reinforced concrete and steel construction, and will be faced with Chicago common brick. Offices will be located on the second floor.

Extracted from Air.

Machinery for the factory will be brought here from the east, Klekamp said. This machinery, consisting largely of compressing units, extracts the oxygen from the air and processes it. The oxygen is stored in tanks and is delivered to jobs in heavy cylinders. Because of the weight of these cylinders, the Air Reduction company locates its plants where they will be most convenient to the markets for oxygen.

The Air Reduction company is one of the largest concerns of its kind in the United States. According to its last annual report its assets were in excess of $36,000,000. The concern was formed in 1915 and since then has expanded its operations through purchase of smaller concerns throughout the country.

At the end of last year the company owned 116 plants and 400 warehouses at strategic points throughout the nation. Most of these plants are devoted to the manufacture of oxygen and acetylene, although a few produce rare atmospheric gases, including argon, helium, and neon.

Interested in Other Lines.

In addition to these activities the company has a substantial interest in concerns engaged in the industrial alcohol and carbonic field. The manufacture of dry ice, which was started by the company last year, furnishes an outlet for carbon gas by-product.

Klekamp said that in the erection of the Chicago plant 70,000 workmen hours are being consumed by labor. Under present labor conditions a workman now works thirty hours a week. The E. L. Archibald company has the general contract. M. M. Weist is manager of Air Reduction's Chicago plant. On the same property is located a factory for the manufacture of acetylene gas. Seventy-five persons will be employed in the new plant.

REPORTS MAKING 30 WHOLESALE AREA LEASES

Winston & Co. report they have had a sharp increase in leasing business since the first of the year, covering both business and residential properties. More than thirty leases were arranged with tenants for quarters in the wholesale district, covering quarters in the buildings at 234 South Market street, 210-14 West Van Buren street, and other locations. The Cambridge Wheatley company, Cleveland tile concern, leased the entire five story building at 29 West Austin avenue.

Apartments in the building at 229 Lake Shore drive were leased to Mrs. Olive B. Miller, Louis C. Sudler, and Mrs. Ernest I. Mitchell. Ballard Moore, attorney, leased residential premises at 942 Lake Shore drive. Virgil Quadri, artist, leased the house at 1258 Lake Shore drive.

Washington

Washington was in turmoil last week. The trouble started Monday night when Senator Huey Long of Louisiana talked congress to death. Exactly at midnight, with Long in his sixth hour of speechmaking, Vice President John N. Garner called an adjournment.

Senators and representatives, tired of seven months' work, dashed for home to reassemble on Jan. 3. A few leaders remained behind. New Deal chiefs also stayed. Postmaster General James Farley, ending a Hawaiian vacation, sped to the capital. The President delayed plans for a trip to California.

Much work remained for the New Dealers. One of their big concerns was to find projects on which to spend the 4 billion dollar public works fund. The President wants 3,500,000 men at work by Nov. 1. But the trouble was that there were not enough projects. Some jobs were held up by politicians who wanted their own schemes approved. Others, already approved, were tied up by strikes on the part of the workers. This was true in New York where several thousand white collar workers refused to work.

All this pointed to indecision on the part of the New Deal. The country showed a reaction to the Washington turmoil. On Thursday Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau admitted the government had sold only $85,592,000 of a 100 million dollar issue of farm mortgage bonds. "Not so good" was his comment. It was the second time in history—both times under the New Deal—that the government was unable to float the full amount of one of its bond issues. [See financial section.] Congress.

Congress had expected to adjourn a week ago yesterday. On that day, however, the senate added amendments to the 93 million dollar third deficiency bill providing 67 million dollars for old age and railroad pensions and welfare work. The amendments sought to force the government to make loans of 12 cents a pound on cotton and 90 cents a bushel on wheat. Last year the government paid that rate. If a cotton farmer, for instance, grew 1,000 pounds of cotton he could expect to borrow $120 upon harvest of his crop.

Under the 1935-'36 AAA new policy the loans were reduced to 9 cents, plus a 3 cent subsidy. The 3 cents would be paid when the cotton had been sold in export. This meant that the farmer with 1,000 pounds of cotton could expect only $90. If exports were good then he would get the 3 cent subsidy, or $30. The grower preferred the straight 12 cent loan.

Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina put through the amendment to restore the 12-cent cotton rate. President Roosevelt did not like this. The cotton and wheat amendments were sent to the house. There they were blocked by Chairman James P. Buchanan of the house appropriations committee. He said the amendments would cost the nation $500,000,000 a year. Meanwhile the President compromised with cotton senators. He agreed to raise the 9 cent loan to 10 cents. The export subsidy would be cut from 3 to 2 cents. This meant the farmer with 1,000 pounds of cotton could be certain of a $100 loan, which was $10 more than under the 9 cent rate.

This was acceptable to the cotton senators. The wheat senators already had given up their fight for 90 cents a bushel loans. Meantime the fight over the amendments had delayed adjournment over the week-end. Last Monday congress prepared for its final business. The amendments, which still were in the house, were to be recalled from the house and then killed in the senate. The senate would vote on the $93,000,000 deficiency bill and then go home.

But up rose Senator Long. He insisted that the house vote on the amendments. Fellow senators tried to stop him. But Long talked on.

"I've no place to go, anyway," he said at one point.

Long spoke for 5½ hours. At midnight, while he was still talking, Vice President Garner adjourned the senate. The house had adjourned. The $93,000,000 bill had failed to pass. Long had killed it with his filibuster.

Representative Roy O. Woodruff [Rep., Mich.] estimated that the congress had raided the American pocketbook of 10 billion 350 million dollars. Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.] figured that the congress, by new appropriations, had made for a 40 billion dollar national debt by July 1, 1936. Lewis W. Bailey, senate executive clerk, said the President had broken all nomination records by submitting 14,998 names for appointments. Of these 14,926 were confirmed.

President.

On Monday the President signed the public utility control bill. On Thursday he signed the Frazier-Lemke mortgage moratorium bill and the railway pension bill. On Friday he signed the Guffey coal bill and the tax wealth bill. [See news section for other bills signed yesterday.]

The utility bill, which strong lobbies fought for and against, regulates gas, electric and water management, service, rates and investments. Its most important section, called the death sentence clause, bars holding companies more than twice removed from operating companies after Jan. 1, 1938. [A holding company is usually formed to hold the controling interest in a company which operates, for example, a power plant.]

The Frazier-Lemke bill helps farmers who are in debt. They may file petitions in bankruptcy in the federal court. For three years creditors cannot take away their properties. The farmers need only to pay rent during the three year grace.

The railway pension bill allows employés to retire at the age of 65. They must retire at 70 or if they

Strange

A Hopi Indian woman saw a white woman wearing shorts at the snake dance at Walpi, Ariz., Monday. "We don't like to have people come here in diapers," she said.

M. J. Higley, of Spokane, Wash., bought a sealed envelope for $1.90 at a coroner's auction on Sunday. The envelope contained two gold watches—and a $10 bill.

Mrs. Corinne Call, a widow, filed a petition in the United States court at Anchorage, Alaska, on Sunday, to adopt an Eskimo girl. Mrs. Call has already adopted six other Eskimos.

Walter Harvey, 20 months old, fell into an 18 foot dry well at Rock Island, Ill., on Sunday. He was rescued two hours later.

A 10 year old boy ran into the Annapolis Emergency hospital at Annapolis, Md., on Sunday. He pointed to his tongue. It was swollen. He could not talk. Doctors applied ice to the tongue. It soon became normal. Then the boy explained. "I was eating and a bee flew into my mouth and stung my tongue," he said.

MILWAUKEE ISSUE.

Many politicians want to abolish the city government of Milwaukee and put the city under the rule of the county of Milwaukee. On Thursday the legislature sent a bill to Gov. Philip F. La Follette outlining a plan whereby this may be done. The bill provides that Wisconsin voters go to the polls next April on two questions: 1. Shall the official duties of the city be turned over to the county? 2. Shall the city end its government and operate under the county board?

FINANCE-SPORTS

Reviews of the week in finance and general business and also of sports are to be found in the finance and sports sections in this part.

Astrid

Flags were placed at half mast throughout Belgium on Thursday. Astrid, 29 year old queen of Belgium, was dead.

She was killed Thursday noon near Lucerne, Switzerland, when a large open car, driven by her husband, young King Leopold, left the road and crashed into a tree. Leopold, injured about the head, picked her up. She died in his arms.

Queen Astrid's body was put aboard a special royal train Thursday night and taken to Brussels. On Friday Leopold looked upon her for the last time. He left in tears. Later he went to the royal home at Laeken, seven miles away, where his children were told their mother was dead. The children are Princess Josephine, 7 years old; Crown Prince Baudouin, 3, and Prince Albert, 14 months old.

Astrid's parents, Prince Carl and Princess Ingeborg of Sweden, were notified of her death at Fridhem, Sweden. They chartered a plane and flew to Brussels. The news shocked Stockholm where Astrid was a favorite. Queen Mother Elizabeth of Belgium was notified in Naples. She and her daughter, Marie-José, wife of Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, also hurried to Brussels.

Astrid's death was the second to strike the Belgian royal family in less than two years. On Feb. 17, 1934, King Albert was killed when he fell while climbing a mountain at Marcheles-Dames, Belgium.

MORTALITY.

More people died in 1934 than in any year since 1918, the census bureau at Washington announced Friday. Last year 1,396,903 persons, 11 per 1,000 of population, died. In 1933 there were 1,342,106 deaths, 10.7 per 1,000. In 1918 the toll was 1,471,367, 18.1 per 1,000. But the birth rate also increased. In 1934 2,167,636 babies were born and in 1933 2,081,232. Suicides totaled 18,280, or 14.9 per 100,000, continuing a decline begun in 1932.

The City

President Roosevelt Tuesday approved of a $32,544,000 grant to Chicago by the Works Progress administration, to employ 38,000 relief men on 170 projects, including repair of 1,000 miles of streets. [See Washington.]

50 Cent Votes.

"He knocked me down while I wore my glasses, tore my jaw, injured my ear and bruised me." This was Ira J. Shipley's reason for charging John Burns, Democratic captain of the 53d precinct of the 27th ward with assault and battery.

Shipley was election judge at 837 West Madison street. He reported the failure of clerks to remove 65 names of persons not living in the precinct. Shipley said that Chief Investigator Mark O'Leary told him he could not serve as judge. Shipley threatened to "let the press and public know it." "On the night before election, however, I received a special delivery registered letter advising me that I would not be allowed to serve," said Shipley. "The Woman's Civic organization had me appointed by Judge [Edmund K.] Jarecki as a watcher. I saw voters paid $1 a vote and later 50 cents and finally a quarter."

Five election officials were arrested, Reginald Franklin, Charles Bodine, George B. Grant, Louis Eipers and George Wood. Shipley will be a witness against them when they are tried before County Judge Jarecki on Sept. 11 for violation of election laws.

Tuesday Shipley was assaulted. After being sewed up and bandaged, he brought charges against Burns. Thursday, Shipley pressed the case before Municipal Judge Holland but the hearing was continued until Sept. 10, the day before the election fraud hearing.

Friday Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, election board commissioner, said, "Our records fail to show that Mr. Shipley made any complaint" (about any fraud). She explained that Shipley was removed as judge because he did not qualify and disobeyed registration rules. O'Leary said he didn't handle Shipley's case.

Crib.

During many past summers the water faucets on third floors barely trickled on Chicago's west side. The first water tunnel was built in 1864 and since then the city has steadily enlarged its waterworks system until now it has 65 miles of tunnels from Lake Michigan feeding 3,600 miles of pipe. But city engineers were well aware of the growing need on the west and northwest sides and in 1924 began to build one of the world's largest tunnels. Dug through limestone at a depth of 185 feet, it is 17 feet in diameter and 11½ miles long. It runs from an intake point 2⅝ miles out in the lake straight west under Chicago avenue to Central Park avenue, where it branches north and south to feed pumping stations. The tunnel will be opened this fall when its intake, the new William E. Dever water crib, is ready for use.

The cost of the water tunnel is $13,600,000 and the lives of eight workers. An explosion in the shaft of the Dever crib last Monday caused the seventh and eighth deaths, Thomas Cleary, 53 years old, 1319 West 97th street, was thrown from the crib deck into the water, from which his body was recovered by a diver. Six of the thirteen city laborers on a scaffold at the top of the shaft were burned. One was Inaseti R. Ferretti, 48 years old, 2142 Congress street, who died Tuesday in Passavant hospital, where all the injured were taken.

Three dead and six injured was the toll of a water tunnel accident on Sept. 6, 1932. This occurred in a 185 foot shaft into the tunnel at Chicago avenue and Halsted street.

The other three deaths were isolated cases.

The tunnel fire disaster of April 13, 1931, killed four firemen and seven laborers and injured fifty-four.

Santa.

The benefactor of thousands of unfortunate Chicago children who wrote letters to Santa Claus died Thursday when John T. McGrath, 69 years old, succumbed to a sore throat that developed into pneumonia within a week. As assistant postmaster since 1920 McGrath opened as many as 8,000 letters from children every Christmas. From his own pocket he paid for stamps and contributed as much as he could before turning the letters over to charitable organizations in the senders' neighborhoods. Officially McGrath was in charge of the money order and stamp divisions of Chicago's postoffice. McGrath served under 12 postmasters since he

The Dionne quintuplets of Callander, Ont., were 16 months old on Wednesday. Dr. A. R. Dafoe said the five babies were in excellent health.

When Vincent Astor, New York millionaire, goes to Coney Island, he goes on his big yacht the Nourmahal. President Roosevelt has been his guest on the vessel on several cruises. Mr. Astor and a party of friends, among them Consuelo Vanderbilt Smith and her divorced husband, Earl E. T. Smith, visited Coney Island on Monday night.

The department of justice at Washington announced on Tuesday that it would not prosecute former Mayor James J. Walker of New York on income tax charges if he returns home. Walker has been living in Europe for the last three years. Walker heard the news on Wednesday at Killarney, Ireland, where he and his wife, the former Betty Compton, are visiting. He hinted he plans to return home soon. On Thursday Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York was asked whether he would give Walker a big reception on the latter's return. The mayor said: "We're always glad to see Americans come home."

Health

Chicago public schools will open Sept. 16. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, last Monday urged medical and dental examinations for all school children before the opening. This, he said, would help prevent epidemics and reduce the cost of reëducating laggards. Since "more than three-fourths of all school children have physical defects," said Dr. Bundesen, "there is a great need for insuring the good health of the child during the school term. If your child has not been vaccinated against smallpox and diphtheria, these things should be done without delay. Every child should be fed cod liver oil every day from September to June."

Tuesday, Fall River, Mass., announced that schools would remain closed because of the spread of infantile paralysis. Haverhill, Mass., postponed opening of schools from Sept. 9 to 23. New York City schools and health authorities debated whether the disease was dangerous enough there to delay a Sept. 9 opening. New York reported 63 new cases. This brought the year's total to 1,007, with 42 deaths. New York will decide postponement next week. Fall River and Haverhill, both near Boston, have barred children from public places. Fall River reported 70 cases of paralysis, highest since 1910, and Haverhill had 18 and two deaths. Massachusetts counted more than 400 cases for August.

WAR GAMES.

The war games of National Guard and regular army troops at Pine Camp, N. Y., moved swiftly last week. Close to thirty thousand men from the eastern and New England states participated. An interested spectator was Secretary of War George Dern. On Tuesday with Maj. Gen. Dennis E. Noland, the army commander, and Maj. Gen. George H. Simonds, he flew above the lines of a sham battle. Army experts are reported as saying that the war games have shown lack of training, lack of equipment, and a need for more officers.

BROKEN ROMANCE.

Princess Rospigliosi, the former Marian Snowden, confirmed reports in New York on Tuesday that she and her Italian husband, Prince Girolamo Rospigliosi, have separated. She hinted that a friendly divorce would be sought. The Rospigliosis were last together at Hamilton, Bermuda, with her mother, Mrs. Walter H. Davidson. Difference in dispositions was suggested as the cause of their estrangement. They were married in November, 1931.

Foreign

All week European diplomats scurried about Europe piously hoping and working for peace. In spite of their efforts the following definite moves toward war were made:

English warships sailed from the strategic Island of Malta and prepared to concentrate near the Suez canal. Preparations for air defense were ordered rushed at home. Senior officers of the army council were ordered to remain near London.

Italy countered England's ships with orders on Friday that sixty submarines be made ready for duty. The Italian fleet was ordered to sea in the Mediterranean last Monday. Supplies and troops, including two of Mussolini's sons and his son-in-law, were shipped to Africa as fast as ships could be loaded. Five hundred thousand men took part in play war all week in northern Italy.

The battles became so realistic on Friday that one man was killed by fragments of a bursting shell and two others were wounded. Mussolini practically confiscated everything in Italy when he ordered the conversion of foreign exchange, limited dividends to 6 per cent with a 10 per cent tax, ordered excess profits invested in government bonds, and ordered other fuels to be used for gasoline in automobiles and trucks.

Emperor Haile Selassie meanwhile sent off rifles to arm 80,000 savage Galla tribesmen on Tuesday. Italians started leaving Ethiopia, taking with them official Italian papers. Other foreigners were leaving as fast as they could buy their own money in Ethiopia.

The German fleet on Monday went through gunnery practice in the Baltic sea. The German government announced that big war games would be held this coming week while the league of nations tries to settle peacefully the Italian-Ethiopian mess.

France sat on the fence and did nothing but talk in an effort to keep on good terms with both Britain and Italy.

There was also plenty of talk among other diplomats of Europe. The week's developments indicated that England is determined to keep Italy from going to war if it is at all possible, even to the point of demanding sanctions [penalties] against Italy by the league.

Reports printed Monday in England of an interview with Premier Mussolini said that closing of the Suez canal or an economic blockade would result in Italian action. Norman Angell, English winner of the 1933 Nobel Peace Prize, issued a statement in which he said that England must get between Italy and Ethiopia sooner or later.

On Tuesday France's premier, Laval, talked to the Italian and English ambassadors and produced the idea that by calling an attack by Italy on Ethiopia a "colonial expedition" rather then war there would be no war and hence the league would be out of an embarrassing situation.

The next day the French cabinet gave Laval permission to develop this plan further at the league meeting on Sept. 4 and requested him to oppose the use of sanctions against Italy. Pope Pius and four Scandinavian countries—Denmark, Sweden, Finland, and Norway—meanwhile issued pleas for peace.

From Switzerland came the reminder that Italy had sponsored the entry of Ethiopia into the league of na-

Flying

The United Air Lines announced in Chicago on Thursday that flying time between here and the west coast would be reduced from 17 to 16 hours. This is the third time reduction in four months. Improved Boeing planes will be used. The ships have a cruising speed of 189 miles an hour and a top speed of 202 miles.

The British government on Thursday was reported to have approved a new idea in trans-Atlantic commercial flying. One of the drawbacks to oceanic flights is the cost. Experts have figured that if a plane can carry 1,000 pounds of mail its trip will be profitable. This very weight, however, makes it dangerous for a ship to take off. The new idea now is to have a double takeoff. The regular mail carrying seaplane will be started aloft on the back of a powerful flying boat. The flying boat will carry the seaplane up 5,000 feet and then launch it. The seaplane, carrying its 1,000 pound load of mail, keeps on going westward. The flying boat returns.

On Thursday a huge bombing plane flew from Dayton, O., to Cincinnati and back, a distance of 120 miles, without a hand at its controls except at the takeoff and the landing. Army air corps engineers at Wright field, Dayton, controled the ship by radio. The engineers explained that the tests were not to fly without a crew for bombing purposes. They said the tests were to give greater safety to the crew during long distance flights or in bad weather. The officers did not say what the make of the plane was. Ten days ago three specially made bombers, a Boeing, a Martin, and a Douglass, went through stiff tests at Wright field. Army officers looked on. The Boeing was said to have caught their eye. It is 75 feet long and has a wing spread of 104 feet. It flew 2,100 miles, from Seattle to Dayton at a cruising speed of 233 miles an hour, a record.

Benny Howard, veteran Chicago air mail pilot, won the 2,042 mile Bendix trophy course flight from Los Angeles to Cleveland on Friday in connection with annual national air races. His time was 8 hours 33 minuates and 16.3 seconds. Roscoe Turner came in second, only 23⅓ seconds behind. Next places went in order to Russell Thaw, Roy Hunt, and Amelia Earhart. The winners split $10,000 prize money, Howard getting the lion's share of $4,500. Pilot Thaw is the son of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. Nine planes started in the Bendix race. One of them crashed a few minutes later, killing its pilot, Cecil Allen. Another one was forced down at Wichita, Kas. A third stopped at Kansas City, and a fourth at Kingman, Ariz. On Thursday Mrs. Grace Prescott of San Diego, Cal., won the Ruth Chatterton Los Angeles to Cleveland Air Derby. [See main news section for latest air news.]

Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, famous Australian flyer, stopped in Chicago Friday on his way to Cleveland for the air races. He said he will soon give up flying and look for a desk job. He is 38. He said he would make his last long air trip next March—a good will flight from Australia to Japan. Sir Charles has been flying 19 years.

Science

Four persons sat on the platform. Over their eyes were queer looking spectacles with lenses thicker than the bottom of a milk bottle. Dr. William Feinbloom said each was 95 per cent blind and had lived for years by sound and touch. His listeners at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Optometry [science of measuring and magnifying eyesight] last Sunday in New York realized that Dr. Feinbloom had done a great deed when all these persons read rapidly from newspapers.

Dr. Feinbloom's experiments with one of these patients resulted in the "microvision" lens which all four wore. Two years ago Isadore Cohen, 46, Brooklyn attorney, visited Dr. Feinbloom, who does optometrical research at Columbia university. Cohen, blind since he was 6, had struggled 30 years of his life to earn a law degree by using Braille system books. This method, invented by a French teacher of the blind in 1829, enables sightless persons to read by running their fingers over a series of dots jutting above the surface of the paper. Dr. Feinbloom found that objects would have to be enlarged 23 times before Cohen could see them clearly. The strongest lens for spectacles fell far short of that. Then the doctor started experimenting on Cohen with lens he made. After a year of grinding, Dr. Feinbloom perfected a lens that Cohen could see through.

Dr. Feinbloom told the optometrists that his "microvision" lens would restore at least partial sight to 20,000 children in schools for the blind and to 120,000 blind adults in institutions. The first lenses produced on a large scale would go to school children. They would have to go through a period of adjusting their minds to their eyes instead of their finger touch.

FIRE PREVENTION.

Gov. Henry Horner, in a proclamation at Springfield on Wednesday, called on city officials, fire chiefs and all citizens to help observe fire prevention week, Oct. 6-12. The week is observed at that time because of the Chicago fire of Oct. 9, 1871.

have completed 30 years of service. They will get pensions based on their pay, not to exceed $120 a month.

The Guffey bill is often called the little NRA. President Roosevelt some time ago urged that it be adopted, even though there was some doubt as to its constitutionality. The bill applies to the soft coal industry. It will allow the producers to fix their prices under federal supervision. It sets up a national commission and twenty-three district boards. It will put various mining districts in price zones. Illinois, Iowa and Indiana are put in the same zone with Pennsylvania and West Virginia. This means that Pennsylvania and West Virginia operators can compete in Chicago with Illinois, Iowa and Indiana operators. It will cost more to sell eastern coal in Chicago on account of the freight expense. But the local operators will not be permitted to sell below the eastern operators. According to Senator William H. Dieterich of Illinois, Illinois, and in particular, Chicago, coal buyers will now have to pay $2 to $3 more per ton.

The soak the rich tax bill raises income, estate, gift, corporation and stock taxes. The increased income thus brought in is expected to amount to $80,000,000 in estate taxes; $21,000,000 in gift taxes; $45,000,000 in income taxes; $35,000,000 in corporation taxes, and $44,000,000 in stock taxes. In addition a higher tax on intercorporation dividends is expected to yield $29,000,000.

Works.

Harry L. Hopkins, national administrator of the federal Works Progress administration, sent out word on Monday that Chicago would get $32,544,000 from the 4 billion dollar Public Works fund. The money is to be used for resurfacing and improving nearly 1,000 miles of city streets. It is an outright gift. The street program will give work to 38,000 men for ten months. Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt said that work will start in 30 days, but WPA officials said on Friday that work might start next Tuesday. Close to 61 per cent of the 32 millions will be spent for labor. The rest will go for material. There will be 130 separate jobs.

Mayor Edward Kelly said he hoped to get 119 million dollars more of federal easy money. He talked about this on Wednesday with Ralph H. Burke, deputy Illinois chief of WPA. The island airport, the lake front permanent fair, and many other projects would be taken care of by the additional funds. All told, 90,000 men and women would be put to work.

The jobs will go to people on relief. Leo M. Lyons, Cook county administrator of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, gave out a warning on Thursday that the IERC work relief program will stop as soon as the federal PWA projects get going.

This is one of President Roosevelt's concerns. The PWA isn't moving fast enough. On Monday the President set deadlines beginning on Sept. 12 in which to file applications. Secretary of the Interior Ickes earlier had made the first deadline Sept. 17. So far only 3,809 applications are on file, and only 200,000 men at work. In Milwaukee, on Monday, Mayor Daniel W. Hoan said the PWA was too slow in getting work started. On Thursday Howard O. Hunter, a relief agent, promised Milwaukee its funds in two weeks.

On Thursday President Roosevelt listened to complaints from his friend, Arthur F. Mullen, Democratic leader in Nebraska. Mullen is the lawyer for two $7,000,000 power plants in his state, both approved by the PWA. It is said there isn't enough water power to keep both plants going. But now comes Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, also a friend of the President. Norris is fighting for a third power plant, this one to cost $20,000,000. It was against this that Mullen complained. On Friday George Johnson, an engineer friend of Ickes, said "Mullen is employed by the power interests."

Politics

Hugh White, a wealthy lumberman, won the Democratic nomination for governor of Mississippi on Tuesday. The Democratic nomination is as good as election. White defeated Paul Johnson, a lawyer. The main issue in the campaign was Senator Huey Long of Louisiana. White, supported by Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, charged that Long was trying to elect Johnson and control the Mississippi delegation to the next Democratic national convention. Johnson denied it. On Friday Long received another setback. Three federal judges, sitting together in New Orleans, declared illegal an employés' pension act put through the 1934 special session of the Louisiana legislature by Long. And on Tuesday the United States house of representatives voted to investigate his control of Louisiana.

Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia may set President Roosevelt's first test at the ballot box [the presidential primary] in February or March. Talmadge is a bitter foe of the New Deal.

W. R. Hearst said on Wednesday that he believed Al Smith would make a powerful presidential candidate on a true Democratic ticket. In 1928 he opposed Smith for Hoover. He also said that Gov. Ritchie, Gov. Byrd or Gov. Talmadge should run with Smith. Smith said nothing. Ritchie, in London, regarded the Hearst statement as hint for a third party. He said he would not join a third party. Byrd spoke in the same vein. Talmadge said his only desire was to elect a real Democrat.

The Young Democrats left Milwaukee on Sunday, ending a two day convention in which they promised to support Roosevelt. The President had addressed them by radio on Saturday night. At Des Moines, Ia., on Tuesday, George Olmstead, national head of the Young Republicans, said his organization was ready for a fight with Roosevelt for support from the nation's youth. Earlier, Representative Bertrand Snell, New York Republican, replied to the President's radio talk. He said the 1936 campaign issue will be the New Deal's economic policies. He said the New Deal is threatening destruction of everything worthwhile in American life.

Speaking at a Republican rally in Kokomo, Ind., on Friday, Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa said that if the people reëlect Roosevelt they can expect a dictator. Hiram Bingham, former senator, speaking at Groton, Conn., on Sunday, said there was too much despotism in government today.

Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, issued a statement at Madison, Wis., on Wednesday, that he is not a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Legion

Quincy, Ill., was host to 10,000 members of the Illinois department of the American Legion on Saturday, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

On Saturday Legionnaires held services in Woodland cemetery at the grave of Brig. Gen. Henry R. Hill of Quincy, who was killed in action. More than forty drum and bugle corps paraded. Gov. Henry Horner addressed the ex-soldiers at night.

On Monday John Thomas Taylor, the Legion's chief lobbyist at Washington, said congress will vote to pay the bonus in 1936. In the afternoon the Legion paraded. In this connection it is to be noted that Spanish-American war pensions are to be resumed tomorrow.

On Tuesday the Legionnaires adopted resolutions. The resolutions demanded full payment of the bonus and demanded deportation of unnaturalized aliens who are on relief. They urged the spread of Americanism and also recommended that Grover Bergdoll, wartime slacker, be shown no mercy in his plea to return to America. He is now in Germany. National Commander Frank N. Belgrano said that all other isms but Americanism should be driven from the country. In the afternoon the delegates elected James B. Murphy of Bloomington state commander and Matthew J. Murphy, a Chicago policeman, senior vice commander.

The Michigan and Indiana state departments of the American Legion also met last week. On Monday at Flint David V. Addy of Detroit was elected state commander of the Michigan department. On Tuesday at Indianapolis Dr. A. R. Killian of Lafayette was elected state commander of the Indiana department. Both conventions, like the Illinois convention, attacked communism. The Indiana Legionnaires criticized Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam, president of De Pauw university, for allegedly committing the school to a program of radicalism and communistic activity.

BIRDS.

Henry Kelso Coale of Highland Park made bird collecting his hobby for more than fifty years until his death in 1926. One of his collections went to the British museum in 1880, a second to the Field museum in 1900. A more recent collection numbered 17,000 stuffed specimens, half of them from foreign lands. Part of this group were old world birds. Half of these went to the University of Michigan. Tuesday the Field museum received the other half, about 2,500. The Emily Crane Chadbourne fund paid for it.

Aliens

In 1897 Illinois passed a law which forbids an alien over 21 years old to hold title to real estate for more than six years without forfeiting it to the state. Joseph W. Nosek, assistant Chicago city attorney and junior vice commander of the Dorman-Dunn post of the American Legion, world war artillery captain and native of Czechoslovakia, discovered the statute and called it to the attention of Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Americanization section of the Illinois Bar association. Tuesday Gen. Clinnin announced that he would write a letter to State's Attorney Courtney asking how the law is being enforced. Nosek said that thousands of aliens are owners of real estate in Illinois and that they are more interested in wealth than in citizenship. Thirty-five per cent of the Slovakians who have their mortgages financed are aliens, Nosek found. Clinnin declared that there are 5 million aliens in the United States who cannot become citizens because they entered illegally. Deportation of such would reduce unemployment by half, he said. Recent figures issued by Chicago naturalization officials showed that an increasing number of aliens have become citizens during the depression.

The sharp rise resulted from the government's financing of naturalization instruction and the employment and relief pressure brought to bear.

Sky Ride.

A spectacular part of A Century of Progress Exposition, 1933-'34, was the Sky Ride. Its two steel towers were 628 feet high and 1,850 feet apart. More than 5,000,000 persons rode across the linking cables in rocket cars at a height of 219 feet or took elevators to the observation decks. These were the highest structures west of the Allegheny mountains. The cost of building the towers was $1,183,000. The Barker-Goldman-Lubin Engineering company started wrecking the World Fair buildings on Feb. 14. On June 8 at 5 a. m. the west tower came to earth, pulled down by the weight of its horizontal cables after its supporting cables had been cut almost through, then dynamited. The explosion shattered windows and alarmed a section of the city. On Friday at 3 p. m. the east tower was in its last minutes of life. Around its north legs had been built fireboxes 10 feet high, in which were 750 pounds of thermite, a mixture of aluminum and iron oxides [rust]. Set off by electricity, the mixture flared up, reaching a temperature of 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The steel legs melted. The top of the tower wavered gently, then the entire 1,500 ton mass plunged to the ground. Except for the area where the twisted steel buried itself, there was no disturbance. Hundreds of thousands of persons near and far saw the tower fall. It took a year to build the east tower and 42 seconds to destroy it. On Friday the work of wrecking the Fair was 95 per cent complete. The company has spent $400,000 at the task and has until Sept. 30 to complete it.

500 Year Candle

Antonio Ajello, 75, is one of the finest candle makers in the world. Last Wednesday in his New York shop he said he had been given an order for a giant candle to burn 500 years as a thank offering to the saints for getting Mme. Galli-Curci, operatic soprano, safely through a goiter operation in Chicago. Another order was for a candle to burn 1,000 years in memory of Russ Colombo, a singer who was accidentally slain last year.

Reds

The United States and Russia took turns in being amazed at each other during the last week. Two University of Chicago co-eds added local color to the Red dispute.

Russia was amazed first. That was on Sunday when the American ambassador, William Bullitt, protested that Red uprisings against the United States government were being planned in Russia. When the United States recognized the Russian government in 1933 a part of the bargain, sealed by a personal letter from Maxim Litvinov, soviet commissar for foreign affairs, to President Roosevelt, said that Russia would not allow any one in Russia to plot to overthrow the government or the social system of this country.

Starting July 25 there was a 27 day conference of the international communist party in Moscow. Americans and Russians urged the members to work for communism. The United States protest said that this was plotting to overthrow the American government and that this plotting violated the agreement Litvinov had made. George Dimitroff was said to have made the most violent speech.

On Tuesday the Russians refused to accept the protest. Undercommissar for Foreign Affairs N. N. Krestinsky said that the American protest had shown no facts that the Russians had violated the 1933 agreement.

Yesterday the United States lodged a second protest with Russia against interference with this country's internal affairs. This note was not as sharply worded as the first, but it did warn the soviets it should prevent communists from plotting to overthrow the American government. The note added that if Russia did not stop this "meddling" by the Reds, relations between the two countries would be damaged. With this warning dispatched to Moscow, the United States decided to let the matter drop. (See main news section.)

Two University of Chicago junior girls who had been arrested for picketing in front of a closed relief shelter were taken into court on Monday. Judge Green continued the trial of the girls, Margaret Hayward and Virginia Miller, and the four colored men arrested with them until the next day. He also issued summonses for President Hutchins of the university and three professors to be in court next day. They did not appear. Tuesday Judge Green let the girls go with a warning not to associate with communists and labor defense people any more. The four colored men were held for trial on Sept. 4 on charges of disorderly conduct and unlawful assembly.

Lese Majesty

The prince of Wales sat alone at a table in the Carleton hotel barroom in Cannes, France, Sunday night. Those who know said he was blue because his American friend, Mrs. Simpson, was not with him. The prince soon became jovial, however. He discovered a length of rope. He made it into a lasso. Then he stepped outside the barroom and spun the lasso in circles. He had learned the trick from the cowboys on his Canadian ranch.

London magazine dealers on Monday put on sale the magazine Time. Page 19 was missing. The dealers had torn it out. This page contained a story about the duke and duchess of Kent, son and daughter-in-law of the British king and queen. The story said, among other things, that the duchess—the former Princess Marina of Greece—knew how to get around Queen Mary. It also hinted the duchess is an expectant mother. The newsdealer said the story was in bad taste. It is an unwritten rule in Great Britain that nothing offensive shall be printed about the royal family. A similar rule holds true in Japan.

tions in 1923 over the protests of England.

Italy Wednesday issued a cabinet warning about sanctions meaning trouble and at the same time assured England that Italy has no desire to trouble England's interests in Ethiopia or elsewhere.

The next day France was sent into a flutter as England announced that she still intended to ask for sanctions against Italy at the league meeting. In Ethiopia army officers wanted to know why they weren't allowed to go after the Italians. Emperor Selassie told them to be quiet and wait.

On Friday reports from England said that she was prepared to exert pressure on Italy to stop her war plans by getting out of the European balance of power pyramid and allowing Germany to ally herself with Austria. This would of course hurt both Italy and France. Italy, as well as France, fears the strength of an Austro-German combination.

In France the English ambassador was trying hard to find out whether France would support England in asking sanctions against Italy at the league meeting. Ethiopia sold important oil rights in the eastern half of the country to the Standard Oil interests and English capitalists. The minerals are one of the things that Italy wants most in the country. Britain's new interest in oil is now added to that of Lake Tsana, the headwaters of the Blue Nile, important to British Egypt.

The oil rights deal stunned Rome. Officials there said yesterday that it violated three treaties. At Trento Mussolini, in an unscheduled speech, told 50,000 listeners that it was a political trick from abroad. He asserted it would not halt Italy's Ethiopian plans. "Any attempt to put obstacles in our way will prove futile," he shouted. Earlier he addressed 180,000 officers and men at Bolzano. King Victor Emmanuel stood beside him. Mussolini told the soldiers they would not be disbanded, as has been the custom after maneuvers. Instead, he announced, 200,000 more troops will be mobilized in September. [See main news section for latest details of the Ethiopian situation.]

The fierce Mohammedan hill tribes along the northwest border of India have long considered it great sport to raid the lowland plains people. When they raid now they are raiding British subjects. On Tuesday came the latest report of one of their raids. Sixty tribesmen were killed and forty-six wounded as they were driven back into their hills by British troops. Five British were killed and twenty-one wounded.

Prof. Boris Ilyich Zbarsky is one of the two men who invented the method of preserving the body of Vladimir Ilyich Ulyanov Lenin. The body, now called that of Nicolai Lenin, has been kept in a tomb in Moscow since Lenin's death in 1924. The process which keeps it from decomposing is a Russian secret. Prof. Zbarsky predicted that the body would keep for at least a hundred years in the newly air conditioned tomb, to be opened again to the public on Sept. 1.

Crime

Federal agents on Wednesday dug the body of John Hamilton from a shallow grave near Oswego, Ill. Hamilton was a robber and a murderer and a close pal of Outlaw John Dillinger, who was killed in Chicago on July 22, 1934. Agents said that Hamilton was fatally wounded by a deputy sherif near Hastings, Minn., while fleeing from federal men who raided the Little Bohemia resort near Mercer, Wis., on April 22, 1934. An agent and a bystander were killed and three other men were wounded. Hamilton was brought to Chicago, where he died about May 3. The finding of Hamilton's body accounts for every important member of the Dillinger gang, all of whom are now dead or in prison.

Department of justice agents in Chicago began an investigation last week to arrest the writer of two letters demanding $35,000 from Edwin D. Krenn. Krenn, a Swiss architect, was at one time a partner of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick in real estate operations.

The commissioner of internal revenue in Washington on Friday assessed $120,000 in unpaid taxes against Al Capone, former Chicago gang boss. Capone now is serving a 10 year sentence in Alcatraz prison, on an island in San Francisco bay, for income tax evasion. The new assessment covers 20,000 barrels of beer which the government says Capone owned and sold during the prohibition era without paying taxes on them. The government will try to collect the $120,000 by a civil suit. So far, the government has not taken any of Capone's money, but has taken three years and four months of his time.

Frau Charlotte Juenemann, 24 and bob haired, laid her head on a wooden block in the yard of Pletzensee prison in Berlin at dawn Tuesday. Immediately August Grober, Germany's official executioner, brought down a shining ax and chopped off her head. Grober, 67, and tall, wore a full dress suit as usual, liberally sprinkled with perfume. As they took away Frau Juenemann's body Willy Gehrke, a robber and killer, knelt at the block. He, too, was beheaded. Grober was at the prison yard again on Wednesday morning. With another swing he chopped off the head of Lieut. Mueller-Heinecke of the aviation corps, convicted as a spy.

Of the three persons executed, Frau Juenemann was the most widely known. She was convicted of murdering her three children, one 4 months old; another 18 months old, and the third 4 years old. Early this year her husband was sent to an insane asylum and the city gave her money to support the family. But Frau Juenemann spent the money for cigarets and liquor. The children died from starvation and cold.

Kingdon P. [Piccolo Pete] Murray, an ex-convict of Covington, Ky., was arrested in his home town last January. He was charged with kidnaping John S. Labatt, a millionaire brewer of London, Ont. Labatt was kidnaped in August, 1934, held prisoner for several days and released on the payment of $25,000 ransom. He and three other witnesses identified Murray at a hearing before United States Commissioner Edward W. Pflueger in Covington last February. Murray, aided by a dozen friends and relatives, testified he was in Covington when Labatt was kidnaped. Commissioner Pflueger ruled, however, that he must stand trial in London. Meanwhile, Dave Meisner, also of Covington, and a friend of Murray's, was convicted of the Labatt kidnaping in London and sentenced to prison for 15 years. Last week Canadian police arrested Michael McCardell, Jack Bannon, and Gerald Nicholson in connection with the Labatt crime. McCardell confessed. He said he, Bannon, Albert Pegram, and Russell Knowles were the actual kidnapers of Labatt. He said that Meiser and Murray were innocent. On Tuesday the Canadian government dropped the case against Murray and ordered him returned to the United States. It is expected Meisner, too, will be freed.

Lord Edward Montagu, son of the duke of Manchester, was held for trial in Old Bailey court, London, on Tuesday. He was charged with forging the name of his wealthy employer, Mrs. Violet van der Elst, to a check for $35. . . . On Wednesday Lord de Clifford was held at Kingston, near London, for trial on a charge of manslaughter. Lord de Clifford struck and killed a man with his automobile. Lord de Clifford will be tried by the house of lords, it is indicated. The last time the house of lords ever tried one of its members was in 1901. The defendant, Lord Russell, was charged with bigamy. He was found guilty and sentenced to three months in jail. Theoretically the king will attend the trial of Lord de Clifford.

Strikes

A strike of 4,500 employés of the Wabash and Ann Arbor railroads was called off by union officials at St. Louis on Friday. The strike was to have begun yesterday. The dispute will be taken before the United States mediation board in Washington. The unions charged that the railroads cut their wages in 1933 without first taking it up with the employés, and have since refused to correct the situation.

Police arrested 38 striking car men in Omaha on Monday for violating the state picket laws. The men were released the next day. The strike began on April 20 when the union men demanded higher wages, shorter hours, and a closed shop.

Union men in Coshocton, O., home town of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, threatened a general strike on Wednesday. About 125 employés of the Novelty Advertising company walked out ten days ago. It was Coshocton's first strike. A general strike would affect 622 union workers.

About 15,000 members of the Ladies' Apparel Shipping Clerks' union went out on strike in New York's garment center on Tuesday. They are asking higher pay. Violence began on Friday when strikers were struck and beaten. The union charged the employers with hiring thugs.

A policeman and a bystander were hurt on Thursday in a fight outside the strike bound plant of the Lindeman-Hoverson company in Milwaukee, Wis.

GLENNA VARE TAKES NATIONAL WOMEN'S GOLF TITLE, 3 AND 2

LAST STRIKE SAILS ACROSS AND IT'S A NO HIT GAME!

Vernon Kennedy pitches a called strike to Joe Vosmik of the Cleveland Indians for the third out in the ninth inning of yesterday's game which the White Sox won, 5 to 0. Kennedy did not allow the Indians a hit, the only ball labeled for a safe drive being Milt Galatzer's drive to center field with one out in the ninth. Al Simmons made a diving catch and then Kennedy disposed of Vosmik on strikes to march off the field with a no hit victory, his tenth triumph of the season. Vosmik is the American league's leading hitter and Cleveland is second in team batting.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 31.—(AP)—For the sixth time in 14 years of competition Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare won the national women's golf championship today, turning back the 17 year old Patty Berg of Minneapolis, 3 and 2, before a record gallery of 6,000.

Determined to prove to golf that a champion can marry, care for two children and still come back, Glenna swept through a great field that lacked only the defending titleholder, Virginia Van Wie of Chicago.

Her triumph, gained against a red haired, freckle faced youngster who fought her with sub par golf in a last desperate rally over the closing holes, added to one of the most brilliant records in the game.

In Finals Eight Times.

Since she first competed in the national at Shawnee on the Delaware, Pa., in 1919, Mrs. Vare has won the title six times, lost in the finals twice and been in the thick of the title rush almost every year except in 1933, when she did not play. She is the wife of Edwin H. Vare Jr., and mother of a girl and a boy born in 1933 and 1934.

Glenna's victory today was achieved at the Interlachen Country club, Miss Berg's home course, and the same layout that saw Bobby Jones score the third trick of his "grand slam" in 1930 by winning the national open.

Iron Shots Spectacular.

Cool, calculating and precise with her beautiful iron shots, Glenna was far too steady for her little rival today. Usually out driven by 10 to 20 yards, she repeatedly broke up Patty's brilliant rallies with iron shots that split the pin from all angles and distances. On the final two holes, after Patty had rallied to reduce her margin from 4 to 2 up by scoring a par and a birdie, Glenna matched her birdie 4 on the 395 yard 33d and then ended the duel by banging a No. 5 iron shot only six feet from the cup on the 34th to collect another birdie.

For today's 34 holes Glenna was only 3 over par. For the 109 holes she had to travel to beat the field, she was 13 shots over perfect figures on one of the game's most difficult courses.

Glenna Gets Early Lead.

Patty really lost the match in the morning, as Glenna, shooting a 79, or one over par, raced away to a 4 up lead. She won the third and fourth holes as Patty missed the third green and three putted the fourth. Mrs. Vare was 2 up for the first nine. Patty then grew erratic with her woods and Glenna increased her lead to 4 up. This she held on the home green by laying her iron third shot within two feet of the cup to match Patty's birdie.

The afternoon round, which saw Miss Berg playing superbly, was a heartbreaker for the little freckle face who has been playing golf only three years. She won the nineteenth as Glenna three-putted, and then

Mansco Wins Joliet Stake; Thatagal 2d

Mansco, son of Polymelian and Griselda, carried the maroon and white dotted silk jacket of Tom Worden of Chicago to victory in the $5,000 Joliet handicap at Lincoln fields yesterday afternoon.

He won by a length and a half from Dixiana stable's Thatagal and Joseph E. Widener's Rushaway after running over horses coming down the stretch. His stable companion, Nedrow, had weakened after making the early pace and it was up to Mansco to make good or Owner Worden and his big group of friends would have filed out of the track sad and extremely light in the pocket book.

Mansco didn't let that happen, and from the way he came smashing down the stretch he is the best 2 year old now racing in the Chicago district and well deserves the Lincoln fields juvenile title which was dished out to the winner of the Joliet.

Shows Plenty of Speed.

He earned $4,790 for Worden when he stepped to town in such determined fashion, and ran the six furlongs in 1:12 2-5, faster time than some noted older horses had been able to make for the same distance earlier in the afternoon.

On a last minute plunge the Worden entry was made the favorite. In the betting Mansco paid $5.20 to win, $2.80 to place and $2.20 to show. Dixiana entry of Thatagal, First Class and Erin Torch paid $3.00 to place and $2.40 to show. Rushaway, which also rallied gamely and came from far back in the stretch to be third, paid $2.60 to show.

It was one of the heaviest betting races of the Lincoln fields season, with the Dixiana entry ruling as the favorite until the well organized plunge was made on the Worden entry just before the field lined up in the starting gate.

Nedrow Breaks On Top.

Nedrow flew into the lead soon after Starter Hamilton gave the eleven youngsters the word to go. His life as the pacemaker was extremely short, for Thatagal rushed up and conquered him so quickly and so thoroughly that he dropped back and finished last.

Thatagal and her running mate, First Class, took turns at heading the parade for the next half mile. In one instant Thatagal's nose was showing in front and in the next First Class would move up to snatch the lead away from her.

As the field rounded the lower bend and headed into the stretch Thatagal raced out into a lead of nearly a length. The backers of the Dixiana color bearers began to cheer loudly. First Class still was second and it began to look as if the Dixiana juveniles would finish one-two, with Kentucky Moon third. The latter moved dangerously near the two leaders soon after the run down the stretch started.

Mansco had been back in the sec-

PENNANT TALK BUZZES LOUDLY IN PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP)—They've got it in Pittsburgh now—the pennant fever.

The Pirates, fourth in the National league standings and a sluggish ball club most of the season, have hit a stride that has most of the fans of the steel city excited.

Pie Traynor's club today won its tenth straight game by beating the Cubs. They beat the Giants three games in a row and trumped the Cards twice. The team is clicking and getting great pitching.

Pennant talk is buzzing all over town. Everywhere except in the clubhouse of the Pirates. There, the players seem to have an unwritten agreement against talking about their spurt.

The Pirates' scorching streak of the last couple weeks has reduced the margin separating them from first place from 11 games to five and a half.

The conservative fan thinks a Pittsburgh pennant is just a pipe dream, but Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis club, in town with the Cards yesterday, gave out this warning:

"The Pirates have got to be stopped."

Kennedy's Old Coach Hails Him as Star Athlete

Warrensburg, Mo., Aug. 31.—[U.P.]—Warrensburg's sports followers tonight sent congratulatory messages to Vernon Kennedy, who today pitched the Chicago White Sox to a no hit, no run victory over the Cleveland Indians.

While attending Central Missouri Teachers' college here eight years ago Kennedy was a star all around athlete. Coach Tad Reid considers him perhaps the greatest athlete ever produced by the local college, and tonight recalled that he was one of the "easiest athletes to handle" that he ever coached.

After completing his college work here he chose professional baseball over a teaching career. He started with Burlington, Ia., and in 1930 was sold to Pittsburgh at the end of the season. He was farmed out to several clubs, and played at St. Joseph, Mo., and later at Oklahoma City. After failing to make the grade with the Philadelphia Athletics he went back to Oklahoma City, and was bought by the White Sox last fall.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 31.—The third place Cubs were just so many mechanical toys today in the hands of Ralph Birkofer, a rotund leftie. They couldn't hit him. Neither could they field in a fashion befitting pennant contenders. So the Pirates, soft picking for the Chicagoans early in the season, went tearing along to their tenth straight triumph and their seventh over the Cubs in 19 games. The score was 5 to 0, making the first shutout for the third placers since Aug. 7, when Cy Blanton, whom they'll face tomorrow, turned the trick.

The defeat, doubly stinging because of the general feebleness of the Cubs, tossed complications into the latter's percentage column. They dropped to two and a half games behind the leading Cardinals. They slipped back to one and a half games behind the second place Giants. And the Pirates, by adding another trimming to the Cubs' loss column, which already is overburdened, projected themselves to a point only three and one-half laps back of the third placers.

French Was Fair.

Not much fault can be found with the pitching of Larry French, who went seven innings before conceding his tenth trimming of the season. Except in one instance, and that would have been enough to beat him, French was the victim of unorthodox happenings, one by himself, Gabby Hartnett was guilty of a passed ball and that meant a run. Bill Jurges made a bad throw on which he was given no error and this led to a run. Freddy Lindstrom let an easy chance escape him and this blossomed into a run. And finally French made a bad throw that

Lloyd Vernon Kennedy, White Sox right hander rounding out his first full year as a major leaguer, yesterday pitched a no-hit no-run game against the third place Cleveland Indians, the first ever pitched in the present Comiskey park and the first registered by a White Sox pitcher since Ted Lyons turned the trick against the Red Sox on Aug. 21, 1926, at Boston.

The last no-hit game in the American league was pitched by Bob Burke of Washington on Aug. 8, 1931, against Boston.

The Sox won yesterday's game, 5 to 0, and the last three Chicago runs were scored on Kennedy's triple with the bases full in the sixth inning.

To interviewers after the game the 26 year old Missourian said that he did not know he had a no-hit game in the making until after he had struck out Vosmik to end the game. It must have been that he was so thrilled about making a triple with the bases full that he became a little absent-minded about his pitching excellence. Anyhow, Vernon says he didn't know about it, and he went to Central Missouri Teachers college where young teachers are taught to teach young uns that they mustn't tell a lie.

Sox Make No Errors.

Unlike some of the no-hit games in the record book, Kennedy's superlative performance was made without the aid of any benevolent scoring. The White Sox were charged with no errors, thus removing all possible suspicions of non-witnesses that some fielder had taken a rap in Kennedy's behalf. As a matter of fact, there was only one instance in which the fielders had to exert themselves in Kennedy's behalf. That one time was a hair raiser. With one out in the ninth Milt Galatzer lined the ball toward left. It looked like a certain hit.

Rip Radcliff, who has played every game this year until yesterday, might have made the catch. No one will ever know. The positive thing is that Al Simmons was, for the day, back in the sector in which he gained his fame as one of baseball's greatest fielders. Al made a great diving catch of Galatzer's drive and the only threat to Kennedy's big accomplishment had passed.

Called Strike Ends Game.

The game ended shortly afterward when Joe Vosmik, the American league's leading hitter, was called out on strikes after a count of three balls and two strikes.

Rising to athletic heights is not entirely new to Kennedy. He won the decathlon championship at the Pennsylvania relays in 1927, setting a new record. At Missouri Teachers he was a ten sport man and among other honors won four letters in football.

He was purchased from the Oklahoma City team of the Texas league last fall and joined the Sox a year ago today.

Vernon was born in Kansas City, Mo., but now makes his home in Mendon, Mo. Before becoming a Sox regular Kennedy had two tries in the majors, very brief ones, with the Pirates in 1930 and three years later with the Athletics.

Hughes Gets to Second Base.

In winning his tenth victory of the season yesterday, thus putting the White Sox back in the first division, Kennedy set the Indians down in order in the first two innings. He walked Ed Phillips to start the third inning, and Phillips promptly was forced by Hughes, who stole second as Willis Hudlin struck out. Hughes thus became the only Indian to advance as far as second base. Appling threw out Galatzer to end the inning. It was three up and three down for the Indians in the fourth and fifth innings. In the sixth Hughes walked, but went down with Hudlin in a double play. Galatzer flied to Simmons.

Vosmik walked with one out in the seventh, then Hal Trosky and Bad

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—In one of the most sensational finishes in Saratoga racing history, C. V. Whitney's Red Rain today scraped his way along the fence to win the $44,100 Hopeful after he had appeared a hopeless last in a field of seventeen.

Twenty-five thousand cheered the Pennant colt which looks more than ever to be the 2 year old champion. Jocky Sonny Workman urged him home. The Hopeful was the getaway feature of the month long meeting.

Half a length back E. R. Bradley's Bien Joli was second, a length before Warren Wright's Sun Teddy. Behind these three finished the best juveniles of the east and west, vanquished in what was admittedly the nearest thing to a race for the 2 year old championship was possible to have.

Favorite Lost in Shuffle.

Lost in the shuffle was the well backed favorite, Admiral Cary Grayson's Bold Venture, which finished ninth after breaking well. The entry of the Fighter and Sangreal, second choice, brought up seventh and twelfth, respectively, with the six and one-half furlongs run in 1:19 4-5 over a fast track. The winner carried 124 pounds, returned 7 to 1 and earned $38,400.

It was a glorious victory for the east, but the west came in for its share of laurels when Mrs. John Hertz's Count Arthur, a son of Reigh Count, was first at the end of the mile and three-quarters of the Saratoga cup. He duplicated the 1928 feat of his sire but his time of 2:58 2-5 was much slower than Reigh Count's track record of 2:55.

Esposa Runs Second.

Count Arthur was an even money favorite in a field of seven with Middleburg stable's Esposa second, a length and a half back of the winner and eight lengths before Faireno. This long grind had a value to the first horse of $7,145 plus the cup, which was presented to Mrs. Hertz by President George H. Bull.

The third stake of the day was the Saratoga Steeplechase handicap, which went to Mrs. Payne Whitney's Jungle King, the 11 to 5 choice for the two and one-half mile chase worth $2,900 to the winner. The veteran Fred Williams rated behind the pace for most of the distance only to drive on hard to victory in the last half mile. Jungle King was a length and a half before Red Flash with Amagansett third.

PARK DISTRICT FISHING SEASON OPENS SEPT. 14

The Chicago park district lagoon fishing season will open on Sept. 14, Evan I. Kelly, chief of the special service division, announced yesterday. Kelly stated that early in the year park lagoons were stocked with bass, carp, pickerel and perch. The lagoons in which fishing will be permitted are those located in Lincoln, Jackson, Columbus, Humboldt and Douglas parks. Kelly pointed out that all fishing must be done from boats in park lagoons. "Last year we allowed people to fish from the banks and in many cases our lagoon banks were broken down," he explained.

Review of Week's Sport Events

The Chicago Bears, the nation's greatest professional football team, defeated the College All-Stars, made up of the greatest of last season's college players, 5 to 0, in the second annual charity football game sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, at Soldiers' field on Thursday night. . . . A crowd of 77,450 saw Jack Manders, Bears' full back, kick a goal from placement from the 27 yard line in the first period, and Bill Shepherd, the All-Stars' left half back, fumble behind his own goal line for a safety in the closing period, to give the Bears their five points.

John Dixon of Evergreen, captain of the Tilden Tech golf team, won the Illinois State Junior golf championship by defeating John Morrell of Glen Oak, 3 and 2, in the final match. . . . Fred Haas Jr. of New Orleans defeated Keith Johnson of Bloomington, Ill., one up in the finals of the Chicago district amateur golf tournament to win the Joe G. Davis trophy and the district championship. . . . Jimmy Christy, C. Y. O. lightweight, defeated Lew Feldman of New York in a ten round bout at Mills stadium. . . . Buddy Baer, brother of former Heavyweight Champion Max Baer, stopped Jack Doyle, Irish crooner-heavyweight, in the first round of their scheduled six round bout at Madison Square Garden.

Jimmy Dykes, who lifted the White Sox from last place in 1934 into the fight for a first division berth this season, signed a contract to manage the club in 1936. . . . The National league race developed into a three-way battle for first place among St. Louis, New York, and the Chicago Cubs, with Pittsburgh a possible fourth contender, as a result of the week's play, which saw the Giants dislodged from the lead for the first time since last April. . . . Pittsburgh by winning eight consecutive games led the National league in the week's play while the league leading Detroit Tigers and the eighth place St. Louis Browns had the best records in the American league with seven won and two lost. . . . The week's records of games won and lost:

NO. 1 HORSE IN NO. 1 RACE FINISHES IN NO. 1 SPOT

The field in the first race at Lincoln Fields is closely bunched soon after the start with Look Out Below (No. 1) leading the pack of nine down the back stretch. Ridden by L. Haas, Look Out Below set the pace for the five and a half furlongs and won by two and one-half lengths with Opening Night second and Bushmaster third. Look Out Below was second choice, paying $3.20 to $1.

ond division, but was under restraint while all this was happening. Finally Jocky Haas gave him his head. He picked a path in near the rail and saved some ground. Then he drove toward the leaders. He did it like any good game horse would go about his work. He rushed up into third place. Then he whipped Kentucky Blues and only the two flying Dixiana youngsters were in front of him.

First Class was already showing distress signals, so Mansco moved past him and so did Kentucky Blues. Kentucky Blues then faltered, but Mansco kept right on charging forward and in the last forty strides dashed by Thatagal and was going away when the race ended.

Betting Nears $400,000.

A crowd of 14,000 watched Mansco score his triumph. The track was lightning fast and the weather conditions perfect. The betting neared $400,000, the high mark of the season at Lincoln fields.

One of the biggest plunges of the season came on the 3 year old Elteebee, a daughter of Wise Counsellor, in the fourth race. She ran like her old daddy used to run and won without much trouble by a length and a half from Thistle Ress and Lisa Belle. She paid $7.40 after running the six furlongs in 1:12 4-5. She is owned by the Southland stable of New Orleans.

The favorite players got a going over in the fifth when Chief Pilot turned up as the winner, with Smuggled In second and the choice, Broad Meadows, third. Chief Pilot paid $13 to those who wagered $2 on him. He won handily. Broad Meadows lost ground racing on the outside all the way.

PREPARE SALT SPEEDWAY FOR SIR MALCOLM

Bonnieville Salt Flats, Utah, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Miles of glittering marble hard salt flats were dressed down today for the run Sir Malcolm Campbell hopes will boost the world's automobile speed record to 300 miles an hour.

Workmen scraped the surface and prepared to lay down a jet black line 13 miles long, a ribbon along which the Englishman will guide his six ton mechanical monster, Bluebird.

Sir Malcolm, 50 year old holder of the present record of 276.816 miles an hour, will transfer his headquarters from Sale Lake City to Wendover, about ten miles from the flats, tomorrow and expects to make a trial run some time Monday.

General belief was that he would roar down the straightaway during the morning hours. A run before 10 o'clock would enable him to escape annoying cross winds. The glare of the sun would be less intense then.

He will push his 40 foot long speedster up to around 250 miles an hour in the trial spin.

Joel Thorne Stone Harbor Gold Cup Outboard Race

Stone Harbor, N. J., Aug. 31.—[U. P.]—Driving his Blue Prelude to victory in two consecutive heats, Joel Thorne, of New Rochelle, N. Y., today won the Stone Harbor gold cup for outboard racing. Paul B. Sawyer Jr., of Pocono Lake, Pa., last year's winner, finished second. The Gov. Hoffman cup for inboard competition went to Edison Hedges of Atlantic City, N. J., who triumphed in the 135 hydroplane class with his eagle.

LOOK OUT BELOW took command under strong pressure, saved ground throughout and, when again strongly preserved with in stretch, came away. OPENING NIGHT, also saving much ground and displaying speed from the start, held on with good courage. BUSHMASTER, forced to lose ground throughout, was under pressure the final three-eighths and also gave a game performance.

BOILING POINT, a factor from the start, lost much ground and, standing a hard drive gamely, outfinished NO MORE at the end. Latter, probably best, bore out badly when beginning to move up on stretch turn, came up with a rush when straight and held on well, but failed to hold the winner. FITKIN, given a badly judged ride and having speed from the start, also lost ground on stretch turn and rushed into a ridiculously big lead when approaching the final eighth, gave way badly thereafter.

THIRD RACE—One mile, out of chute. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25. [Daily double, 2d and 3d races, paid $43.60.]

BEGINNER'S BAIT, much the best and taken back repeatedly the first five-eighths, took command easily when called upon and had something left. ENELLA, reserved off the pace, had to race wide in late stages where she stood strong riding gamely. BOSOPI, badly outrun for three-quarters, came with a rush thereafter.

ELTEEBE, quickest to begin, drew away steadily the first five-eighths and weakened thereafter, but held the race safe without need of strong urging. THISTLE RESS, fractious at post and away slowly, failed to get through on inside the first three-eighths, came out entering stretch and closed with fine speed. LISA BELLE displayed speed from the start and, though failing to hold THISTLE RESS, held on with good courage.

CHIEF PILOT, fractious at post but away well and lucky to keep up when racing on inside the first half-mile, came around SMUGGLED IN in stretch and, overconfidently ridden after almost drawing clear, was placed to strong pressure suddenly when within a short distance of the finish to save the race. SMUGGLED IN displayed fine speed from the start, saved ground after first quarter and held on well after losing the lead, but was lucky to escape a more decisive defeat. BROAD MEADOWS had to lose ground throughout; gained steadily.

THATAGAL, hustled to the front but taken under restraint on the turn, saved ground the final three-eighths and held on with fine courage in the drive. Match Race at Lincoln Fields Stirs Interest

A dispute between two race horse men—John F. Clark Jr. of New Orleans and Brownell Combs of Lexington—over the relative merits of their star 3 year olds will give the huge crowd that is expected for the closing day of the Lincoln Fields meeting tomorrow an opportunity of watching a race such as has not been seen in Chicago for more than forty years.

The two 3 year olds are Clark's Clang, a gelding which a month ago equaled Old Rosebud's world's record of 1:22 for 7 furlongs, and Combs' Myrtlewood, a filly which set a new world's record of 1:09 2-5 for 6 furlongs a short time later. The two will meet in a special match race at 6½ furlongs for the $3,000 purse which Col. Matt Winn hung up just as soon as he learned how serious their argument had become.

Match Races Once Common.

Match races, with owners "running their horses at each other" for wagers running into many thousands of dollars, were once fairly common upon the American turf. But in recent years they have grown exceedingly rare. The Labor day contest will be the first that has been staged in Chicago since the sport came back.

The conditions of the race were left to the two owners and inasmuch as Myrtlewood holds the 6 furlong record and Clang the 7 furlong mark the intermediate 6½ furlong distance was hit upon as fair to both. Clark and Combs agreed likewise that each horse would carry 110 pounds, although under standard racing conditions Myrtlewood would be entitled to a 5 pound allowance as a filly.

Mrytlewood has defeated Clang in their two previous meetings at Lincoln Fields. In the Peabody Memorial handicap at a mile she gave him a pound and beat him a length and a half. In the Lincoln handicap at a mile and a sixteenth she again finished ahead of Clang, but he carried her along at so fast a pace for the first six furlongs that she herself was beaten at the wire by Sweeping Light.

Myrtlewood Will Be Favorite.

That these two performances will make her the favorite over Clang is a certainty. But experienced horsemen are not so sure she will be able to outrun Clang at six and one-half furlongs when there are no other horses in the race for Clang's rider to worry about. They point out that Clang is the faster breaker, and his ability to stay in front of Myrtlewood in the Illinois handicap shows that she has no more early foot than he. In a race where he need pace himself to only one rival, many of them hold that Clang will go to the front and never be headed.

The two will set a track record for six and one-half furlongs, for no race at that distance has ever been run over the Crete course. Col. Winn is hopeful that they will set a new world's record by lowering the record of 1:16 1-5 that Gallant Knight set at Churchill Downs in 1931.

Racing Scene Shifts Tuesday to Hawthorne

The gates swing open at the historic Hawthorne race course Tuesday for a 29 day meeting which will run through Oct. 5, and which promises to be one of the most successful the track has seen since its opening in 1891.

A change in policy which resulted in a guaranteed purse minimum of $1,000 has brought together more horses than for any recent meeting, and the offering of five valuable stakes will bring the leaders of the American handicap division to Hawthorne at one time or another.

Most important of the stakes is, of course, the $15,000 added Hawthorne Gold Cup at a mile and a quarter. As one of the few weight-for-age races for older horses still run upon the American turf, its previous runnings have never failed to attract the year's handicap champion in defense of his laurels. This renewal will be no exception, for Alfred G. Vanderbilt definitly has promised his great 4 year old Discovery will start in the stake.

32 Nominated for Gold Cup.

With 32 nominations, the Gold Cup has drawn virtually every fit thoroughbred of top handicap class. Among them are A. A. Baroni's Top Row, which defeated Discovery at Narragansett a week ago, F. M. Alger's Azucar, which won last winter's Santa Anita handicap, C. H. Knebelkamp's King Saxon, Calumet Farm's Hadagal, the Starmount Stable's Gold Foam, the recent Travers winner, and F. A. Carreaud's Time Supply.

The race will be unique in that four holders of world's records will be matching strides. Discovery holds world marks for a mile and three-sixteenths and a mile and an eighth; Top Row has run the fastest mile and a sixteenth in history; John F. Clark's Clang holds the world's record for seven furlongs; and Brownell Coombs' Myrtlewood recently set a new world mark for six furlongs.

Illinois Owners' Race Draws Interest.

Second in interest only to the Gold Cup will be the $5,000 added Illinois handicap, the mile and a sixteenth fixture in which only horses owned by residents of Illinois may race. Handicap horses will have another chance at a $5,000 purse in the Hawthorne Handicap at a mile and a furlong while the sprinters among them can come together in the $5,000 added Hawthorne Sprint handicap at six furlongs.

Changes in officials will see Chris Fitzgerald, C. Bruce Head, and general manager C. W. Hay as stewards, Will Shelley as racing secretary, and Bill Hamilton as starter.

Sept. 7—$5,000 added Hawthorne Sprint handicap; for 3 year olds and up; six furlongs.

Sept. 14—$5,000 added Hawthorne Handicap; for 3 year olds and up; one mile and a furlong.

Sept. 21—$5,000 added Hawthorne Juvenile handicap; for 2 year olds; six furlongs.

Sept. 28—$5,000 added Illinois handicap; for Illinois-owned 3 year olds and up; one mile and a sixteenth.

Oct. 5—$15,000 added Hawthorne Gold cup; for 3 year olds and up; one mile and a quarter.

RICE AIMS AT MIDGET AUTO MARK TONIGHT

Lou Schneider's new track mark for ten laps is endangered tonight when Everett Rice, defeated in midweek races, attempts to recapture his lost prestige in the midget car races at the Chicago Midget speedway, Lincoln and Devon avenues at McCormick boulevard. Competition starts at 8:30 o'clock.

Rice, Hoosier pilot, sent his car over the course in close pursuit of Schneider last Wednesday night, when he lost the record. The pair will be given competition from such drivers as Ronnie Householder, Jimmy Rogers, Johnny Baldwin, Ernie Carlson, Wally Zale, and Ted Tetterton in the events on the ten race card.

A three way struggle is in store in the 35 lap main event, when Householder meets Carlson and Zale. All will have several other speedy foes with which to contend.

Qualifying trials will start at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

Maj. C. A. [Doc] Wilkinson of Fort Sheridan, will boast the top rating at five goals. Lieut. Col. Harry D. Chamberlain and Capt. Larry G. Smith are three goal men while the fourth member of the Fort Sheridan quartet, Capt. E. C. Greiner, has a rating of one goal.

Chicagoans Fail to Hit in Pinch.

scored one. Outside of this the Cubs were all right.

The Cubs hitting was just about on a par with their inaccuracies afield. They had one on second with one out in the first inning. They had two on with none out in the second. They had men on third and first with none out in the third. No runs came of these opportunities. Then, having had no success, they wilted completely before Birkofer's southpawing. Only two of them reached base in the last six innings, one on a single by Lindstrom in the seventh and the other on a double by Hartnett in the ninth.

Off to Lead.

The Pirates got off to a one run lead in the first inning mainly because of the infirmities of Hartnett. Jensen led off with a single to center. Demaree had to race so far into center for Hafey's fly that Jensen was able to go to second after the catch. He went to third while Jurges was throwing out Waner. Then Hartnett committed a passed ball and, being unable to run because of his bad ankle, couldn't recapture it and throw to French in time to keep Jensen from scoring. Vaughan followed with a single to Cavarretta and Suhr lined to Demaree.

The Cubs faced excellent prospects in the first two innings, but faded out in each instance. Herman doubled to left with one gone in the first, but Stainback fouled to Padden and Birkofer threw out Hartnett. The second began with Demaree singling and Cavarretta being hit on the left wrist by a pitched ball. Two on with none out didn't mean a thing. Lindstrom popped to Suhr, and Jurges and French flied to Waner.

Another Fade Out.

The Cubs fade out in the third came after Galan had opened with a double against the left field scoreboard and gone to third on Herman's looping single into short right. The first to tumble in this promising setting was Stainback, who swung three times in vain. The remainder of the damage was done by Hartnett. He bounced to Vaughan, whose toss to Young forced Herman at second. Then Young tossed to Suhr and Hartnett, who was doing the best he could about getting to first base, was doubled.

The initial happening in the home third, when the Pirates scored twice, was Hafey's two bagger against the left field wall. He hugged second while Waner was being thrown out by Jurges, but went loping home when Vaughan arched a single over first. Suhr beat out a hit off Jurges' chest. Traynor grounded to Herman, whose throw to Jurges forced Suhr at second. Jurges shipped the ball to first, but it was wide and Cavarretta had to dive in the dust to get it. Vaughan went home from second before Cavarretta could recover. Jurges should have had an error, but the official scorere was penitent. Young fanned to end the inning.

The Pirate fifth began with Hafey sending a low bounder straight at Lindstrom, but the veteran didn't stoop over soon enough so the ball whistled its way between his ankles. The scorer ruled it a hit, mainly because Hafey needs 'em. Waner's sacrifice sent Hafey to second, and Vaughan's infield out put him on third. He charged home with the Pirates' fourth run when Herman fumbled Suhr's grounder. Traynor rolled to Cavarretta for the third out.

In the seventh French took his turn at doing the wrong thing and another Pirate scored, making it 5 to 0. Jensen led off with a single to right. French tried to catch him off base, but threw wild past Cavarretta and Jensen strolled to second. Hafey fanned and Waner dropped a single in front of Demaree, Jensen stopping at third. He scored on Vaughan's long fly to Demaree, after which Suhr fanned.

Hartnett's double, the second hit for the Cubs after the third, came with one out in the ninth. English ran for him, but didn't have to exert himself. Demaree popped to Young, and Cavarretta was thrown out by the same gentleman.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—The Cubs will make their final 1935 appearance at Forbes field tomorrow with tiny Roy Henshaw in charge of the pitching. The ex-Maroon southpaw boasts five victories over the Pirates this season. Cy Blanton, who has sixteen triumphs and nine defeats, starts for the Buccaneers.

The Pirates will have to get along for about a week without the services of Lloyd Waner, their center fielder, who had been going at top speed. The younger of the brothers suffered a twisted left knee yesterday in a slide at the plate.

Branch Rickey, the guiding genius of the St. Louis Cardinals' chain store system, before leaving here late last night gave Charley Grimm, the Cub manager, a sales talk on some of the outstanding youngsters now owned by the Cardinals. Grimm wasn't interested.

Manager Grimm was optimistic right up to the finish. He had Root warming up in the bull pen most of the game and toward the finish had Bill Lee, Lon Warneke, and Tex Carleton doing the same thing. But Fabian Kowalik was called on to conclude the unhappy show after French had been removed for a pinch hitter, who fanned in the eighth.

News Hale went out on fly balls. Knickerbocker fanned to start the eighth and Phillips and Hughes flied out.

And Vosmik Is Out.

Walter Carson batted for Hudlin in the ninth and struck out on four pitches. Simmons then made his circus play on Galatzer. Averill walked. Vosmik ran the count to three and two then slashed one along the right line that was foul by a foot. The next one caught the corner of the plate and Vosmik was out and the no hit game was over.

Jocko Conlan, the dynamite kid who may some day grow up to be even a greater ball player than he now is, scored the run that would have been enough to win. Jocko opened the Sox offensive with a single to right and later scored on a single by Appling.

Dykes' Single Scores Bonura.

With one out in the fourth Zeke Bonura doubled, the first of three successive hits and scored on a single by Dykes. Washington singled to right, putting Dykes on third, but Sewell hit into a double play.

The sixth was the inning in which Kennedy took a part in the offense. With one down Bonura singled and went to third on another single by Dykes. Washington fouled to Hale, but Sewell walked, filling the bases. Kennedy ran the count to two balls and two strikes, then tripled to the center field wall, scoring Bonura, Dykes and Sewell. Conlan flied to Galatzer. From then on everybody focused on Kennedy's pitching, for the crowd knew he had allowed no hits, even if, as Vern said, he didn't know it.

MYER REPLACES GEHRIG AMONG BIG 6 BATTERS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Buddy Myer of Washington supplanted Lou Gehrig of the Yankees as the last man in the Big Six standing yesterday when he hit safely twice in three attempts against the Red Sox. That added two points to Myer's average while Gehrig, who made only two hits in eight attempts, dropped two points. Arky Vaughan drew another point nearer to his .400 goal when he smacked two hits in four times up to bring his mark to .399. Joe Vosmik, one of the victims of Vernon Kennedy's no hit pitching, lost two points, while Hank Greenberg and Gabby Hartnett dropped one each. The standing:

THREE YALE MEN WILL BE LATE TO FOOTBALL DRILL

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 31.—[U. P.]—Despite the use of airplanes, Yale's football squad will be late in assembling for opening practice Sept. 15, Raymond [Ducky] Pond, head coach, reported today.

Bernie Rankin, Dick Cummins and Tom Curtin, backs, and Larry Kelley, end, are returning from Japan with the Yale baseball squad and will not reach San Francisco until Sept. 27. Phelps to Hurl Cleveland Final for Sox Today

Babe Phelps will pitch for the White Sox this afternoon in the second and final game of the series with the Cleveland Indians at Comiskey park. He will be opposed by Oral Hildebrand.

Fred Tauby, an outfielder from Dallas, reported to the Sox yesterday and probably will play tomorrow, because of the absence of Rip Radcliff. Rip was out of the lineup yesterday for the first time this year. He has been ill for some time, but his physician let him play till yesterday.

It will be Tony Piet day this afternoon. Tony will be given an auto and other gifts.

The last no hit game in the majors was pitched by Paul Dean when he and the Cardinals shut out Brooklyn, 3 to 0, Sept. 21, last season.

Italo Chelini, left handed pitcher of the Keokuk team of the Western league, has been secured by the Sox and will join the squad today. Monte Stratton, St. Paul star right hander, is due to join up today, too.

AMATEUR NINES OPEN CITY TITLE PLAY TOMORROW

Thirty-two ball teams, league winners in the Chicago Baseball federation, will start play tomorrow in a series of games to determine the champion Chicago amateur baseball team. Games will be played in four sections—at Humboldt park, Sacramento and Augusta; Waveland park, 3700 North and Outer drive; Calumet, 99th and the lake, and Hamilton park, 72d and Normal. Eight teams will play at each of the four parks, beginning at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. At 1 p. m. two games will be played at each place, with the final game to determine the sectional winner scheduled for late that afternoon.

Tomorrow's winners will meet on Lincoln park diamonds Sept. 15 for the city championship. The champion team will be sent to Dayton, O., on Sept. 21, to play in the national series of the American Baseball congress, national organization of amateur baseball teams.

South Dakota Promises Good Pheasant Year

BY BOB BECKER.

There will be plenty of pheasants this year for the hunter who goes to South Dakota, according to the reports from the northwest. Not only have the ringnecks done well this year, but the ducks that nested in South Dakota also have had a good breeding season.

Dr. W. A. Rothschild of Madison, S. D., president of the South Dakota division of the Izaak Walton league, sends us the following report on the pheasant season, the duck crop, and other items of interest to the sportsmen who like to hunt in the northwest. He writes:

"The pheasant season opens here Oct. 21 and closes Nov. 11. Shooting in the afternoons only. The bag limit per day is six birds, two of which may be hens. The license fee has been cut down to $15 for a full time nonresident license, with the privilege of taking out 25 birds. I believe nonresidents can ship out birds, too, by purchasing shipping tags which cost 25 cents each. We also have a new type of nonresident license this year. Cost is $5 for a two day shoot, but the holder can only take out 12 birds.

Duck Hatch Is Good.

"Our duck hatch is fine this year, but we feel that they are our tame birds and we hate to see them killed. Settin' hens are too scarce to kill them off."

If Illinois or other hunters want further details about hunting pheasants around Madison, S. D., we suggest they write A. T. Hagen, the game warden there. Mr. Hagen knows all of that country very well, can help plan a pheasant roundup, and will be glad to advise nonresident shooters. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope with your inquiry.

Another source of information for the nonresident shooter contemplating a trip is Paul Myers, secretary of the chamber of commerce of Huron, S. D. We have hunted around Huron. When we were there on a shoot there were plenty of birds, too. Myers will be glad to help visiting shooters make arrangements for hunting in that vicinity.

Take Your Retriever Along.

If you have a retriever take him with you on a pheasant shoot in the Dakotas. Just one trip out there was enough to show us how important a good dog is to locate down birds in the heavy vegetation. One can use a dog ahead of the gun to spring game, or keep the dog at heel to make retrieves. The trouble with Dakota hunting is that so many birds flush and there is so much shooting that you can't keep your down birds in mind! Thus a well trained retrieving dog [springer, Chesapeake, Labrador, or other breed] can help a lot to pick up the game.

Hornsby Picks Tigers to Win World's Series

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, who gets a good perspective from his place in the basement of the American league, tonight picked the Cardinals to win the National league pennant and the Detroit Tigers to win the world series.

Hornsby, whose Browns just took a sound thumping from the Tigers in their pennant spree, recovered sufficiently to remark, "I believe this year's series will go six or seven games, and I look for the Tigers to win." Experience, he thinks, will turn the trick for Detroit.

The "Inside" Count.

"In a race of the kind now being staged in the National league, it's the team with the 'insides' that wins; and that is what the Cardinals have. Then the schedule which brings them home Monday and keeps them home for the remainder of the season is all in their favor."

The former boss of the Chicago Cubs nodded this year's edition into third place.

"True, the Cubs also will be at home but, in my opinion, the real sprint for the flag will be between the Cardinals and the Giants."

Experience Aids Tigers.

"The Cardinals' punch is greater than that of any of their rivals, and after all a great offense will make up for a mediocre defense. And I don't say the Cardinals' defense is mediocre either."

But here's why he picks the Tigers as the next world champions:

"With an added year of experience they're not likely to be nervous this year. We've played the Tigers quite a few games and we can notice they are much tougher this year. Cochrane has welded some fine individuals into a fine team."

TIGERS DEFEAT BROWNS, 5-1, AS KNOTT IS WILD

Bunch Extra Base Hits with Seven Passes.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers capitalized on Jack Knott's wildness today to hammer across a 5 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Browns. It was the second triumph for the leaders in their four game series which closes tomorrow.

The veteran Al Crowder yielded ten hits, while his Detroit teammates were able to collect only seven off Knott and Jim Walkup. The Tigers, however, bunched four extra-base hits with seven passes—six of them off Knott—to push across their runs.

Brilliant fielding by Detroit held down the St. Louis scoring. Bill Rogell shone especially on defense and in the third and seventh innings started double plays that saved Crowder considerable difficulty. Score:

YANKEES WIN PAIR.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The effective pitching of Lefty Gomez and Walter Brown enabled the Yankees to take a double-header from the Athletics today, 6 to 2 and 3 to 1, and ran the A.'s losing streak to six straight.

Gomez pitched five hit ball in the opener to record his 100th major league victory with the effective aid of Lou Gehrig. Lou broke a tie with a double in the eighth with the bases filled and knocked in one other run. George Blaeholder gave the Yanks only seven hits, but made a couple of costly errors.

Brown got the better of young Carl Doyle in the second game, although the A.'s had a 7 to 6 edge in the hitting. Pinky Higgins' homer in the fourth was the only Philadelphia run. Score:

Shining up her amber sunglasses. This Sox fan isn't going to miss a thing.

Really enjoying himself. A Sox fan who lets his hair blow where it will when the bases are filled and the day looks bright for the south side club.

Yacht Yankee Badly Damged in Final Race

DARTMOUTH, England, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The American racing yacht Yankee, competing in the last race of the English yacht season under the colors of Gerard B. Lambert of New York and Boston, was badly damaged today when she was dismasted during a heavy squall.

The Yankee, victorious in eight of the 35 races in which she has sailed since the beginning of the season at Harwich June 1, was leading by two minutes when a gust of wind snapped her steel mast 40 feet above the deck. As the mainsail went the remainder of the mast broke off two feet below deck level. All of the canvas rigging fell into the sea and the heavy mast damaged the deck.

Two members of the crew narrowly escaped drowning when they were thrown overboard. They were rescued with life buoys attached to lines. Lambert waved the competing yachts on, but the skippers of Endeavour, Velsheda and Shamrock, the British boats, immediately lowered mainsails and went to the aid of the American boat.

NONUNION TEAM AROUSES MINERS; CANCEL GAME

Uniontown, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP)—A threat of union miners to picket a proposed Labor day football game between the Pittsburgh Pirates professional team and the Colonial Tornados caused its cancelation tonight.

William Shaw, manager of the Tornados, asserted he had been warned by union miners not to attempt the game because all of his players—most of them miners—were not affiliated with the union.

The leaders explained, Shaw said, they planned an entirely union day and that such a game would be an "undesirable part" of the program.

Art Rooney, president of the Pirates, notified Shaw that rather than cause any disturbance he would not bring his team here.

The John D. Hayes softball team will play two games over the holiday week-end on their home grounds, Farwell avenue and the lake. This afternoon, starting at 1:30, they meet the Rep. World Softball Title Tourney to Open Saturday

When approximately 30 state softball championships are decided by tomorrow night the field for the world's amateur title meet, which starts in Chicago next Saturday, will be nearly complete.

Both men's and women's titles are to be decided in the tournament, to be held here under the auspices of the Amateur Softball Association of America at Lincoln park. Between 35 and 40 men's teams and about 16 girls' teams from 35 states will take part in the meet.

Competition is limited to amateur teams which have won either the state title or the championship of a metropolitan area of more than 500,000 population.

Entries already have been accepted from winning teams in Connecticut, Arizona, Kentucky, and the metropolitan areas of Chicago and New York, where tournaments already have been completed under the sanction of the Amateur Softball association.

Play will begin in the title meet on Saturday morning. The title games are scheduled for Monday afternoon, Sept. 9. Losers in the first round will play in a consolation bracket unless Sunday's games are prevented by rain, in which event the consolation games will be eliminated.

FILES PROTEST AGAINST DUCK SHOOTING LAWS

"The regulations," he said, "are inconsistent, absurd, and ridiculous. Illinois sportsmen with millions of dollars invested cannot understand this movement. Thousands upon thousands of people are dependent solely upon the hunting for a livelihood during the fall and winter. The economic crisis through which we are passing demands leniency. Solely upon economic grounds do I respectfully urge you to abolish the present regulations."

Elizabeth Wins First Leg of Yacht Race

The first boat to reach Michigan City in the Jackson Park Yacht club's first leg of the triangular race was Lynn Williams' schooner Elizabeth. Skipper Williams crossed the finish line last night in a light east northeast wind after sailing 9 hours 16 minutes and 30 seconds from Chicago.

For being first of the 37 windjammers to finish Elizabeth won the Commodore Noble trophy. The Q class companion to Elizabeth, Princess, led the fleet almost the entire way across yesterday in the light winds. At the start the air was moving from the west, and by the finish it was north of east so that the Williams schooner slipped in ahead of Princess at the last by less than a minute.

Princess Heads Universals.

Princess had such a good lead on the other Universal racing sloops that it was given first in its class. The third yacht to finish, in 9:27:50, was Bob Conklin's schooner Blue Moon.

Blue Moon won in the Universal schooner division and established its best record of the season against larger yachts. The rest of the fleet was strung out in the lake, but finished within a few hours. The Dart-Conover owned 10 meter cutter Tar Baby held an easterly course, while the majority of the fleet sailed off the Indiana dunes beaches. Tar Baby was headed by the wind shift and finished in the midst of the fleet.

Gossoon II. Wins.

Gossoon II., the Vail-Morton-Moller syndicate R class sloop, won the Chicago Yacht club's series race in light westerly breezes. Its time for the 12 miles was 2 hours 15 minutes and 51 seconds.

Dr. George Davis' Orn won the opening race of a three day series for the E. Ross Gamble trophy at the Chicago Yacht club. Dr. Davis' Eagle boat covered the 12 miles in 2 hours 51 minutes and 36 seconds. H. W. Bordner's Ri Ri was victorious in the opening contest of the pup class Gehrman trophy race. Ri Ri's time was 1:32:51 for the 5½ miles.

The winning Star class sloop in the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's Shipping Board series regatta was Sagitta, a boat that was launched only last week. Skipper Bradbury sailed his brand new yacht to defeat 22 other Stars in 2:09:29.

WHO'S WHO in National Tennis

WILMER ALLISON.

Wilmer Allison is the most reliable player America has had for the last eight years. An all-around athlete, Allison did not start to play tennis until he was 18 years old.

As a boy he didn't care for tennis. He would much rather play football, baseball or basketball, the three sports which he played so well in high school.

Allison entered the University of Texas at the age of 18. It was then he decided to play a little tennis. After one year under the coaching of Dr. Penick he entered the national intercollegiate tournament and walked off with the title. From that time on he was recognized as a ranking player, and after years of big time tennis he made the Davis cup team.

With John Van Ryn. Wins World Title

In 1929 Allison paired with John Van Ryn to win the world's doubles championship at Wimbledon. The following year he beat Henri Cochet at Wimbledon, losing only to William T. Tilden II. in the finals, and with Van Ryn retained the doubles championship.

In 1932 Allison reached the semifinals of the American championships, losing to Cochet after a terrific five set battle. He lost to Fred Perry in the finals of the American championships in 1933, another five set match.

In 1934 Allison did not sail with the Davis cup team to England. Tennis officials figured he was through. They preferred Les Stoefen's game to Allison's, but when they arrived in England they found out that they were in need of Allison's services. So Allison was sent for.

Receives Shock on His Arrival.

Happy to receive the belated invitation, Allison got to England as quickly as he could, but when he reached the team's headquarters near Wimbledon, he received the shock of his life.

Dick Williams, the non-playing captain, said: "I'm sorry, old man, we can't use you. I trust you enjoyed your trip."

Allison blew up. Many an unkind word was said about the U. S. L. T. A. before he sailed.

The only way he could get revenge was to beat the Davis cup players and that he did at the nationals only a few months later.

Allison's game is the soundest of any of the top notch players in the tournament. His ground strokes, both forehand and backhand, are hit with lightning speed. His service is not always a cannon ball but it carries a deceptive twist.

Start Playoff for Cup in Chicago Suburban League

The first round of the cup series play-off of the Chicago-Suburban Baseball Booking league will be played at Lincoln park, diamonds No. 4 and No. 6, this afternoon. The following teams are in the play-off:

Welterweights Head Chicago Boxing Cards

Welterweights will top this week's Chicago boxing program. George Engel, light haired Plymouth, Ind., farmer-boxer, and Bob La Monte, swarthy Chicago slugger, will be opponents in an eight round conflict at Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Laddie Tonelli, gangling Marseilles, Ill., fighter, will oppose Billy Celebron, the solidly built Rockford protegé of Sammy Mandell, at ten rounds at Western stadium Tuesday.

In addition to those welterweight fights a wrestling card will be presented at Marigold Gardens Wednesday and amateur boxing shows will be offered at White City Wednesday, C. Y. O. stadium Thursday and Northwest stadium Friday. George Dusette and Ivan Rasputin will be the windup principals on the mat card. Howard [Kid] Carr, veteran Chicago boxing promoter, will conduct the show at White City, the first of a series he contemplates holding during the indoor season.

Engel will attempt to continue a recent winning streak at the expense of La Monte tomorrow. The Hoosier boxer showed improvement in beating Billy Miller Aug. 12, and Puggy Weinert July 24, under the management of Sam Buxbaum. Consequently La Monte is getting into tiptop condition in his endeavor to win. The Chicagoan suffered an attack of pleurisy following his conquest of Patrick Henry in July. Prior to that accomplishment Bob whipped Nick Ellenwood, April 1.

Tonelli and Celebron are perhaps two of the most popular fighters to perform at Western stadium. Thus Promoter Sam Abruscato's ability to bring them together may result in the biggest crowd to attend a show there this season. Tonelli, 1930, 1931, and 1932 Streator, Ill., sectional Golden Gloves king, fought a ten round draw with Petey Mike Aug. 6 in his first Chicago battle in some months. Laddie was kept reasonably busy boxing in California. He returned from the coast without suffering a defeat.

Celebron, 1933 International Golden Gloves and National A. A. U. monarch, intends to make amends for his defeat at the hands of Babe Marino recently by beating Tonelli. It was his second pro loss in more than two years and halted his most recent victory string at 14. Billy had triumphed over Ernie Kirchner, Petey Mike, Billy Miller, Sherald Kennard, Carl Duva, Puggy Weinert, Toots Bernstein [twice], Jim McFarland [twice], Bob La Monte, Frank Misko, Peewee Jarrel, and Mickey O'Shea previous to his clash with Marino.

Bouts on this week's boxing and wrestling schedule include:

MONDAY.

At Marigold Gardens—Bob La Monte vs. George Engel [8], Jackie Sherman vs. Mickey Nolan [4], all welterweights; Jackie Sharkey vs. Tony Michaels [6], Jimmy Richards vs. Joe Wiley, and Johnny Campbell vs. Wilmer Van, each four rounds, all junior lightweights; Paul Miller vs. Al Williams, light heavyweights [wrestling].

At Pittsburgh, Pa.—Bob Olin, light heavyweight champion, vs. John Henry Lewis [15], title.

TUESDAY.

HOEFT, FORMER ILLINI ATHLETE, TAKES A BRIDE

Julius Hoeft, former University of Illinois football and baseball player, and Miss Imogene Belton, 6730 Jeffery avenue, also a former Illinois student, were married yesterday in Waukegan. The wedding was performed in the rectory of the Immaculate Conception church by the Rev. Francis M. Shea.

After a reception in Waukegan at the home of Corporation Counsel and Mrs. George S. McGaughey, 1607 Grand avenue, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, the couple departed by automobile for a three weeks' tour of the east. They will live in Columbus, O., where Hoeft is athletic director for the Owens-Illinois Glass company.

Schumacher Has Shutout Until Ninth.

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Giants defeated the Phillies, 9 to 3, today in the opening game of their series.

Hal Schumacher had an easy time ringing up his eighteenth victory of the season as his mates belabored three pitchers for 16 hits. Hal had a shutout in his grasp going into the ninth inning. He had allowed only four hits in the first eight innings and only one Philly reached third. Then John Moore and Dolph Camilli singled and Johnny Vergez, the former Giant, hit a home run into the left field stand. Score:

Baker neither started nor finished the contest but shut out the Braves through most of it. George Earnshaw, who opened for the Dodgers, suffered a broken little finger on his right hand when he knocked down Les Mallon's liner in the second inning. Baker relieved him and hurled until the ninth when he loaded the bases with none out and Emil Leonard was called in to snuff out the rally. Earnshaw may not be able to pitch again this season. FOOTBALL FANS GET BREAK; NO RULE CHANGES

Columbus, O., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The head of the national football rules committee told fans today they would not have to worry about rules changes this year.

Walter R. Okeson, chairman of the committee, told the thirteenth annual meeting of the Ohio Association of Football Officials:

"The average fan won't notice a single major change this fall. The game will appear much the same to him as it did in 1934."

BOWLING SEASON HERE; NORTH END LEAGUE OFF 1ST

Opens Tuesday; Classic Teams Start Saturday.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Can it be that autumn already has crowded its way into the September picture? Any way, the bowling season is here and that is as good a sign as any that fall and winter are creeping up on us.

First to get the bowling ball a-rolling with major league competition will be the North End Traveling league, which will launch its 19th season Tuesday evening with the same officers at the helm and the same ten houses entering teams. Because of Labor day this year's inaugural comes on Tuesday, but beginning next week a regular Monday evening schedule will be put into effect.

Almost every team will present new faces. The champion Milfords have obtained Rudy Pehrson to replace Pete Peterson; Bob Pekie has been dropped by the Birk Brothers to make room for Joe Sinke, and the Michelobs have taken on Larry Dunn, formerly of the Mineralites, in place of George Miller. These are some of the most notable changes.

Roy Davis will have an entirely new team at the Lincoln Square, the Birks having moved from that recreation to the Willow alleys. Jack Samuelson also will have a new lineup, as will the Idle Hours. Matty Faetz will present at least two new men at the Bryn Mawr, while Alex Bartock will be a newcomer on the Gold Coast team.

Chris Kaad is expected to have the same lineup as last year, but will present the league with a new Kaadland establishment at Lincoln avenue and Roscoe street in October. His team meanwhile will travel for its games. Tuesday's schedule:

Kaadland at Gold Coast, 9 p. m.; Milfords vs. Michelobs at North Town, 7 p. m.; Samuelsons vs. Birks at Willow, 7 p. m.; Westers at Idle Hour, 9 p. m.; Harry Kaads vs. Reed Butterscotch at Lincoln Square, 7 p. m.

Classic League Shakeup.

New sponsors and many new faces is the setup for the Classic league, which opens next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the Lorraine alleys. This season the teams will pair off at the various alleys holding memberships on Wednesday evening for what will be known as a Wednesday Classic league and on Saturday evenings the entire personnel will get together at one alley in the Classic league proper. Separate standings will be kept for each branch of the league.

After the game each Wednesday and Saturday evenings individual matches will be held between a bowler from each team. Eight teams have been lined up and two more are expected to be in the fold before the inaugural. Here's how they will line up:

Ben Beys—J. Kulik, George Weissensell, Tom Chyzy, J. Skovie, and Al Rankin.

Pabst Blue Ribbons—Herb Freitag, Ed Zajac, Ernie Schanz, Ed Krems, and Adolph Carlson.

Baby Ruths—Jack Bishop, George Theel, Pete Petersen, Rudy Pehrson, and Lloyd Strouse.

Moulding-Brownells—Bill Heerman, Curt Pagel, Al Lange [not certain about two other men].

Combines Two Leagues.

Various alleys are rushing arrangements for their leagues which will open this month. At Woodlawn Recreation, Tom Crocombe has decided to combine his Major and Junior leagues into teams averaging 925. Already 11 quintets have been signed and it is expected that 16 will go to the post about Sept. 18. Crocombe also is organizing an all-star individual league for bowlers with 200 averages. He plans prize money totaling $1,360 for this Sunday evening group. . . . The first meeting of the Woodlawn Women's Tuesday afternoon league will be held Tuesday. . . . Eight teams have been lined up for the Woodlawn Women's Major league which will start about Sept. 19.

Silver Anniversary.

A committee of Pete Howley, Jule Lellinger and Bill Wernicke has been appointed to arrange a program for the Silver anniversary opening of the Randolph league on Sept. 19. In the 25 years of this league's existence there have been only four presidents, Judge Howard, past president of the American Bowling Congress, David Luby, E. H. Baumgarten, and now Charles O. Collier, captain of the Mineralite team and superintendent of installation of alleys for the American Bowling Congress tournaments. . . . Collier predicts that more than 3,000 teams will roll in the 1936 A. B. C. at Indianapolis.

More Openings Near.

Art Meier has set Sept. 10 for the opening of the Gold Coast Major league, one of the best organizations in the city. . . . On Sept. 10 the Windy City Major league will begin its 31st season with sixteen teams shooting for $3,150 in prize money. The teams will roll abreast across sixteen alleys every Monday night thereafter. . . . Because of changed conditions bowlers are wondering if they will be able to hold their averages of last year. They're worrying about the installation of the smaller quarter round gutter mouldings. The new strips are 7-8 inch high by 3-4 inch wide at a point opposite the No. 1 pin spot and enlarge to 1½ inches high by 3-4 inch wide opposite the 7 and 10 pin spots. . . . Many of the better bowlers are predicting that averages will diminish three to five points because the pins do not hit and roll out on to the alleys so easily after bouncing into the gutters. . . . And the 10 pin will stick more often on good hits, it is said.

PARROTS DRILL TUESDAY.

WOOD RALLIES TO DEFEAT HALL IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Advances to Third Round with Five Set Victory.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Sidney Wood, Davis cup alternate and former Wimbledon champion, was forced to put on a strong finish today to beat J. Gilbert Hall, ranked 12th nationally, in a second round match of the national tennis tournament at Forest Hills today. The score was 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Wood was erratic in the first two sets, while Hall was hitting well.

Wood's Play Improves.

At the start of the third set Wood recovered his form. He found the touch of his backhand and used it almost exclusively to square the match at two sets apiece. Hall broke Wood's delivery in the fourth and sixth games of the final set to lead, 4-2. Then Wood bestirred himself again and swept four straight games for the set.

In today's matches the men's field was reduced to 32, the women's to 16, and the veterans' to 32.

Christian Boussus, France's No. 1 and third seeded foreigner, and Eskell D. Andrews of New Zealand, seeded seventh, were defeated. The Frenchman lost to Robert Harmon of Oakland, Cal., 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1, while Andrews' elimination was accounted for by Martin Buxby of Miami, Fla., 5-7, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Fred Perry Wins.

Fred J. Perry began defense of the crown he won in 1933 and again last year by defeating Arthur S. Fowler of Pleasantville, N. Y., 6-3, 6-2, 6-1. His chief American rivals, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., and Don Budge of Oakland, Cal., moved into the third round with him.

Budge defeated Donald Hawley of Orange, N. J., 6-1, 6-0, 6-1, while Allison was winning, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1, from Tom Flynn of Bayside, N. Y.

Miss Jacobs Advances.

In the women's division Helen Jacobs, the defending champion, disposed of Norma Taubele, former indoor titleholder, 6-1, 6-2, and Mrs. Sarah P. Fabyan downed Kay Winthrop, 6-2, 6-3. Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King registered her second straight shutout, winning at love from Beth Lancaster of Fairlee, Vt., while Kay Stammers dropped only two games to Edith Moore of Montclair, N. J.

CHAMPION AGAIN

Mrs. Vare's Victory Doesn't Surprise Eastern Golfers

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Although 32 year Glenna Vare's march to her sixth national women's golf championship drew cheers in Philadelphia today, many conceded they weren't surprised.

For, they reasoned, didn't she reach the semi-finals last year, less than four months after her second child was born and at a time when her physical condition was noticeably impaired? Also, hasn't her game this year shown itself to be above that of 1934? She was particularly impressive in regaining the eastern crown last spring.

May Go to England.

The only question was why Virginia Van Wie did not defend her title this year. Many contended Glenna would have proved her supremacy. They said the semi-final match of last year's tournament, when a very tired Mrs. Vare was defeated by the then titleholder on the sixteenth green, was no criterion on which to basee the relative merits of two of the greatest women golfers in the game.

Others meantime held that Miss Van Wie is the better of the two, and that if she had been at Interlachen she undoubtedly would have held her crown despite Mrs. Vare's great game.

At any rate, by adding the 1935 championship to her previous quintet of titles, Mrs. Vare established herself as America's No. 1 woman golfer, a linkswoman who has set up records that are destined to stay for years to come.

And these records may become more marvelous if Glenna carries out her reported plans for trying once more to lift the British crown. Local golf circles have heard that she has thought of going abroad to seek English honors if she won this year's national.

Wins at 19.

Mrs. Vare won her first national crown in 1922 at the age of 19, scarcely older than Patty Berg, the Minneapolis girl she defeated in today's finals, to become the youngest player ever to win the championship.

In 1925 she again won, but in the next two years she failed to reach the finals. From 1928 through '30 she made it three straight, winning from Miss Van Wie, 13 and 12, in 1928 and 6 and 5 in 1930.

Helen Hicks, who has since turned pro, took the 1931 crown with a 2 and 1 decision over Glenna shortly after she had become Mrs. Edwin H. Vare Jr. In 1932 Mrs. Vare lost to Miss Van Wie.

Duties of motherhood kept her from the game the next two years until her comeback attempt in 1934.

LESS DRINKING SOLEM'S PLEA TO IOWA ALUMNI

Iowa City, Ia., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Ossie Solem, University of Iowa football coach and athletic director, today appealed to 25,000 Hawkeye alumni and football fans to curb drinking at the Iowa games.

Referring to the homecoming game with Minnesota here last year, Solem said: "As you know, last fall we were confronted with a new and unusual situation which became very embarrassing to everyone concerned. I refer to the excessive drinking which some people seemed to feel was necessary in order to enjoy a football game. I am asking your coöperation in eliminating this drinking problem for all time."

Giants Buy Richmond Pitcher, First Baseman

New York, Aug. 31.—[U.P.]—The New York Giants today announced the purchase of first baseman Leo Marion and pitcher William Jeffcoat from the Richmond, Va., club of the Piedmont league. They will report at the close of the Piedmont league season.

CHARLES JONES, TED ALLEN HOLD HORSESHOE LEAD

Moline, Ill., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Frank Jackson of Blue Mound, Kas., and C. C. Davis of Kansas City, both world champions, made a strong bid today but failed to disturb the first place tie of Ted Allen, defending champion, and Casey Jones of Waukesha, Wis., in the national horseshoe tournament.

Allen was beaten by Jackson, 51 to 41, for his first defeat in the tournament, and Davis trimmed Jones, 51 and 46. The two young pitchers rallied after those reverses, however, and finished the second day still tied for the lead with 11 victories and one loss apiece. Davis and Jackson were in a tie for third with ten victories each out of twelve games.

Allen and Jones were scheduled to meet in the final game tomorrow afternoon with the championship possibly hinging on the results of the match. Competition in the men's division will be completed Monday with the women's division tournament scheduled to begin tomorrow. Caroline Schultz of Harvey, Ill., was expected to defend her title.

KUNES CAPTURES CANADIAN OPEN WITH 280 SCORE

Finishes 2 Strokes Ahead of Strong Field.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Tene Kunes, Norristown, Pa., today won his first big golfing prize, the Canadian open crown. The 26 year old professional shot a 68, two under par, on the final round of the 72 hole tournament at Summerlea to set up a total score of 280 that a high class field failed to beat.

Victor Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., started off as Kunes finished and set his gallery wild with excitement as he almost overtook the Norristown boy. He faltered on the 17th hole, however, and finished with a 69 that gave him a total of 282 and second place. They had started the final tour only a stroke apart, the tall, black haired Ghezzi having spanked out a 68 in the morning round while Kunes was taking 74.

Dudley and Manero Tie.

Summerlea, which had thwarted the efforts of most of the players to break its par for the first two days of the tournament, took a lacing as the 64 leaders made their final drive to get out front.

Ed Dudley of Philadelphia and Tony Manero of Greensboro, N. C., tied for third money with aggregates of 285, five strokes behind Kunes. Jimmy Hines of New York was fifth, with Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., and Ray Mangrum, Pittsburgh, tied for sixth.

The first Canadian to finish in the tournament, in which the title has been carried across the south border every year since the war, was Jules Hout, Kent, Que., 1934 Canadian professional titleholder. He scored a 67 in his final round for a total of 288, tying Paul Runyan of New York and Walter Hagen of Detroit.

Leads from Start.

Kunes put together rounds of 70, 68, 74, and 68 to take top spot in the three day event. He led from the start, firing in a manner that made old timers predict that he would be one of the big money players within a few years. He has been coming along for five years, winning minor tournaments but missing in the big time play.

Glenna Vare Wins National Title, 3 and 2

reeled off five straight pars without winning a hole. Stymied on the twenty-sixth, she lost it and was 4 down again.

On the twenty-eigth and twenty-ninth, Glenna left the door open with short shots, but Patty couldn't cash in, and joined her by slipping a shot over par on both holes.

Patty Makes Rally.

On the thirty-first green, still 4 down and only six to go, Patty opened her final bid for the title. She won the thirty-first as Glenna missed a three foot putt and trimmed her disadvantage to only two holes by sinking a 10 foot putt for a birdie four on the 447 yard thirty-second.

Patty shot another birdie on the thirty-third with the aid of a six foot putt, but there Glenna banged a beautiful iron second shot to the green for a duplicate 4. Then she ended it on the next hole with her trusty No. 6 iron, arching her ball 100 yards to within six feet of the cup for a birdie 3.

United System First, American Second.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Out of the confusion in the aviation industry that resulted from the Farley air mail fiasco of 1934 and the congressional attempt to remodel the industry on a new basis have emerged four dominant air transport systems. Corporate titles have been changed slightly, a few prominent names have been eliminated from the executive personnels, stocks have been split up and exchanged, and the manufacturing branches of the industry have been legally segregated from the transport operating units.

The changes that have been brought about are more apparent than real. Today the bulk of the country's air mail, passenger trafic, and express business is being carried by the four transport systems. The routes flown, the type of equipment used, the pilots flying the planes, the financial backing of the companies, the stockholders, and the operating personnel is for the most part the same as before the air mail act was passed.

Four Leaders by Rank.

The four leading companies in the transport industry, in the order named, are:

1. United Air Lines Transport corporation, operating over the "midcontinent" route—New York, Chicago, Salt Lake City. At the latter point the system branches out with service to Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, and Portland.

2. American airlines, Inc., operating over the southern transcontinental route from New York to Los Angeles by way of Dallas.

3. Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., operating over the "central" transcontinental route—New York, Chicago, Kansas City, Los Angeles.

4. North American Aviation company [Eastern Air lines], operating along the Atlantic seaboard from New York to Miami and New York to New Orleans. It also operates from Chicago to Miami and New Orleans, via Atlanta.

These four systems carry 88 to 90 per cent of the country's air mail and receive approximately 85 per cent of the air mail appropriations. They also handle the bulk of the passenger business and the express trafic. In point of revenue received from all sources they rank in the order named.

United Aircraft Is Split Up.

United Air Lines was formerly a unit of the United Aircraft and Transport corporation, a management and holding company with important interests in both the manufacturing and air transport branches in the industry. United Aircraft was split three ways under a reorganization completed last year. United Air Lines Transport took over the operating branch of the business.

The manufacturing properties were divided between two new companies, United Aircraft corporation and Boeing Airplane corporation. To the new United Aircraft corporation went the Chance Vought corporation, Hamilton Standard Propeller company, Sikorsky Aviation corporation, and the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft corporation. To the new Boeing Airplane company went the old Boeing Aircraft corporation and the Stearman Aircraft corporation.

United Air Lines still buys most of its equipment from the concerns with which it was directly affiliated. While a complete legal divorcement was effected, the exchange of stock left the ownership of the transport concern and the two manufacturing companies with the same interests.

Handles 45 Per Cent of Air Mail.

United Air Lines is currently handling 45 per cent of the air mail of the country and leads all companies in passenger miles flown and express trafic handled. W. A. Patterson, leading executive of the old United Air Lines, is president of United.

Before the breakup of the original United group it had close financial relationship with the National City banking interests of New York. Since the reorganization, the new companies have not had the same close financial alignment, officials assert.

Stock of the present United Air Lines is widely distributed. In the main the present owners are the former holders of old United Aircraft stock. Shifts, however, have occurred. The Rentschler family of New York retains its interest in the manufacturing branches of the old company, but has sold out its holdings in United Air Lines. W. E. Boeing, former chairman of United Aircraft, has also sold out. It is understood that only twenty persons own more than 5,000 shares of United, and the largest block held by one individual amounts to 13,000 shares.

Quarter's Revenue $2,340,233.

In the three months ended June 30 United Air Lines reported total operating revenues of $2,340,233 and a net profit of $107,326.

American Airlines, Inc., is the old American Airways, Inc., dressed up in a new corporate title. Control of this line before the reorganization rested with E. L. Cord of Chicago, and his interest has not been disturbed. Aviation Corporation of America, which held direct control of American Airways, has gone through reorganization.

The stockholders are being given new shares to represent their proportionate interest in the transport line. Under the reorganization Pan-American Air Lines stock was trusteed

Grains Stage Sudden Rally as Week Ends

The reactionary price trend that prevailed most of the last week on the Chicago Board of Trade gave way to a sudden recovery yesterday in all grains. Wheat rose 1¼ cents a bushel, gains in corn futures extended to a cent a bushel, and other grains closed fractionally higher.

The first of the monthly private crop reports was released, showing reductions in the estimated production of all principal grain crops as compared with forecasts by the government on Aug. 9. This bullish appraisal of crop conditions, coupled with strength in wheat prices in Winnipeg and Minneapolis, furnished the basis for the reversal in the market trend.

Wheat Contracts Transferred.

In the wheat pit there was heavy transferring of commitments from the September future, under which deliveries will begin Tuesday, into the later contracts. The price of September wheat lagged behind the new crop futures. Although there is still a comparatively large open interest in September corn, there was little evidence of any heavy short covering. The trade in the corn and oats pits was slow.

While short covering contributed to the advance in wheat, the basic strength of the market position is in the high premiums being paid for wheat in the cash markets and the improved relationship of Canadian prices to the quotations prevailing in the foreign markets.

Canadian Price Policy Awaited.

Announcement of the new Canadian minimum price is expected this week and the trade anticipates substantial expansion of exports from the dominion.

Closing prices on December futures, with comparative quotations, were:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$0.89⅞	$0.88⅝	$0.90⅞
Corn	.57⅝	.57	.56¼
Oats	.26⅝	.26¼	.27⅝
Rye	.43⅝	.42⅝	.44½

The week's closing quotations on wheat, oats, and rye were about a cent a bushel below the level of prices on the preceding Saturday. September corn also closed lower, but the new crop futures were up more than a cent a bushel.

While the corn prospects in the middle west are favorable the condition of the crop on the western fringe is not promising. It is generally expected final production figures will be below the government's last estimate of 2 billion 272 million bushels.

The speculative interest in oats and rye is unusually small. Big crops of both grains were harvested and there is a plentiful supply of other grains which may be substituted for them.

PRIVATE REPORT CUTS ESTIMATE OF WHEAT, CORN

Wheat production in the United States for 1934 approximated 559 million bushels while the prospective corn crop will amount to about 2,144 million bushels, according to the estimates made yesterday in the monthly report of James E. Bennett & Co., compiled by Mrs. E. H. Miller. The estimates on both crops are considerably below the department of agriculture's forecasts made three weeks ago. The government predicted a corn crop of 2,272 million bushels and total wheat production of 608 million bushels.

The Miller-Bennett report found that further deterioration took place during the month in the spring wheat belt where the harvest is now about completed. The total spring wheat crop was estimated at 152 million bushels compared with the government's earlier estimate of 176 million bushels. No change was made in earlier estimate on winter wheat of 407 million bushels. Most of the crop losses of the last month occurred in the bread wheat in North Dakota, the firm found.

The Bennett estimates made Aug. 1 were considerably below those of the other private forecasters as well as the government's figures.

Only slight changes were made in the Bennett report in production estimates for oats and barley. The oats crop was placed at 1,160 million bushels as compared with the firm's earlier estimate of 1,163 million bushels. Barley production was reduced 5 million bushels to 285 millions. The rye crop was fixed at 54 million bushels, the same as a month ago.

Directors of the Kaspar American State bank have elected Joseph J. Kral cashier to succeed Emil F. Smrz, who resigned, effective yesterday.

COMMODITY PRICES MOVE IRREGULARLY DURING LAST WEEK

Moderate price advances occurred in several important commodities last week, but some markets closed below the level of the preceding week. In the butter futures market November contracts sold at the highest price in six weeks and closed a half cent a pound higher at 26 cents.

Cotton prices advanced moderately after the initial relapse which followed the announcement of the 10 cent government loan for the new crop. Lard declined again, reflecting consumer resistance to the present high prices. Grains, sugar, and coffee closed lower.

The following table gives yesterday's closing quotations on a representative list of commodities as compared with final prices in the preceding week and the high and low figures for the season:

CHECKS INDICATE BUSINESS EASING; ABOVE YEAR AGO

Business activity throughout the nation dropped sharply last week from the preceding week, measured by the volume of checks drawn against individual accounts. The total, however, was well above volume during the period of last year. Debits totaled $6,519,951,000 for the period, against $7,599,324,00 in the preceding week and $5,485,776,000 in the 1934 period.

Banks in the Chicago reserve area exhibited the same trend. Statistics issued yesterday covering operations of 161 banks in 41 clearing house cities show withdrawals of $839,259,000 in the week ended Aug. 28, against $943,178,000 a week earlier. Excluding Elgin, Ill., for which 1934 comparisons were not given, volume in the 40 cities aggregated $838,003,000, compared with $713,705,000 last year.

Chicago's total was $497,357,000, against $433,347,000 last year. Des Moines reported $16,899,000, against $14,843,000; Detroit, $143,542,000, compared with $109,496,000; Indianapolis, $28,693,000, against $25,558,000, and Milwaukee, $45,476,000, compared with $41,291,000.

Bank clearings reported by members of the Chicago Clearing House association totaled $220,100,000 last week, compared with $216,800,000 in the same 1934 period. The total for August was $1,081,000,000, against $968,300,000 in August last year.

DECLINE SHOWN IN INDUSTRIES BY WEEKLY INDEX

Recessions were recorded for automobile production, steel mill activity, cotton manufacturing, and total carloadings, but residential building and electric power production rose to new high marks for 1935, placing the index at 73.6, compared with 73.7 for the previous week and 62.8 for a year ago.

The index, based on 1929-'30 as 100 and adjusted for seasonal variation, follows with corresponding index figures for its six component parts:

34 Favorable Dividend Changes Voted in Week

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Standard Statistics company reports 34 favorable dividend changes during the last week compared with 23 the week before. There were four unfavorable announcements against none in the previous week.

SEC Finds Investors Were Defrauded.

Indictment of four members of an alleged stock swindling ring, which was said to have fleeced partial payment investors for a profit of $3,000,000 to $5,000,000, was announced yesterday after the arrest of Leonard I. Sutterman at the Belden Stratford hotel.

Others named in the true bills, which were returned in New York on Friday, but suppressed pending seizure of the four accused Chicagoans, are Joseph Mendelson, Joseph Sherman, and John J. Burke. The brokerage firm carrying Burke's name and formerly at 134 North La Salle street also was named.

The indictment was the first to be returned under the securities and exchange act, and charges manipulation of the market in Stutz Motor Car company stock from January to April this year.

Charges Deal Netted $350,000.

This deal alone netted the group $350,000, according to John L. Flynn, SEC trial attorney, who conducted extensive hearings into the matter here from July 23 to 27. The indictments were obtained by Flynn through United States District Attorney Francis W. H. Adams. Warants were issued Friday night by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on behalf of Assistant United States Attorney Warren Canady on complaints signed by H. R. Rogers, attorney for the SEC here.

Sutterman was arraigned before Commissioner Walker yesterday. He was released on temporary bond of $5,000. At the hearing Attorney W. D. Bartholomew agreed to surrender the other three men on Tuesday morning, and Commissioner Walker set a preliminary hearing for the quartet for 2 p. m. Sept. 9. Flynn is expected here for the hearing.

Other Attorneys Appear.

Attorneys I. Harvey Levinson and S. D. Perlman appeared with Bartholomew yesterday when the latter was spokesman. The law firm of Sabath, Perlman, Goodman & Rein previously has been counsel for Sutterman and Mendelson, but Perlman said yesterday he was not appearing for the indicted group.

The indictment charges "unlawful use in interstate commerce of means and instrumentalities to effect unlawful ends on the New York Curb exchange." The majority of the Stutz stock marketed by the group was distributed in Minneapolis, Atlanta, and Chicago through a half dozen brokerage firms headed by McCormick & Co. and Kopald, Quinn & Co. Sherman was pictured in hearings here as the key man of the McCormick firm.

Link Schwab with Deal.

The four men are charged with entering into an option agreement to purchase 41,000 shares of Stutz stock from Charles M. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem Steel corporation, and often a benefactor of the motor concern. Negotiations were said to have been conducted by Sutterman, who was pictured with Mendelson as the master minds of the "ring," in the name of John J. Burke & Co.

The option was sought "to give the appearance that they were capable of making deliveries of all such stock sold through agent companies," it was charged.

Flynn brought out in hearings that 293,000 shares of Stutz had been sold in a "jiggle" early in 1934, when the price of the stock rocketed from 4⅝ to 10¾ in a month. Later the stock was repurchased at 5, wiping out the partial payment investors who had advanced 50 per cent of the purchase price.

There were only $132,000 Stutz shares in existence at the time.

Charges Market Was Manipulated.

The market in this operation was said to have been "run" by Edward Burke & Co., predecessor to J. J. Burke & Co., which was the wholesaler in the 1935 manipulation hit in the indictment.

In the instance covered by the present charges the defendants are alleged to have manipulated the value of the stock from $2 to $3.50 a share and then let the price fall to $1.25 between January and April of this year. The SEC contends it cut short a third jiggle in Stutz which was begun May 9.

Testimony in the hearings held here showed that 57 per cent of the buying of Stutz stock on the New York curb during the early 1935 period was done by J. J. Burke & Co. This firm, the wholesaler, stopped buying at the same time that the distributing houses ceased selling to partial payment customers.

FOREIGN MONEY VALUE FALLS; GOLD IS HIGHER

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Most foreign currencies recorded substantial losses against the dollar today, with gold block moneys and the lira especially weak. The latter dropped 4 points to 8.15 cents, the lowest since July 23, when the bottom level for the year, 8.02 cents, was reached.

French francs declined a full point to 6.60⅛ cents, boosting the value of the dollar against francs to $1.0049 from $1.0033 yesterday. In terms of the old parity of the franc, the dollar was worth 59.35 cents, against 59.26 cents yesterday.

Pound sterling sagged ⅛ cent to $4.96⅝.

Bar gold in London rose 1½ pence at 140 shillings, 1½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.78. Bar silver was unchanged.

"SUPER CHIEF," MOST POWERFUL DIESEL

Delivery of the Super Chief, 3,600 horse power Diesel electric locomotive, which is said to be the most powerful of the type ever built, was made to the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway here yesterday by its builders, the Electro-Motive corporation, General Motors subsidiary. The engine was turned over to a testing crew and if it fulfills expectations will be placed in service hauling the railroad's crack Chicago-Los Angeles train—the Chief. The locomotive has a rated top speed of 98 miles an hour. Its makers say it has much faster acceleration than a steam engine and that it can travel longer distances without servicing. It is 127 feet long and weighs about 240 tons. Initial cost was placed at $360,000.

Stocks Gain Slightly, but Trade Is Light

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 31.—With a majority of professional traders away for the holiday the stock market was dull and sales fell below the half million share mark. Prices showed a tendency to improve slightly, however. The Saturday before Labor day is traditionally a dull day, usually the dullest of the year. Last year this two hour session produced barely 100,000 shares of trading, the smallest turnover in post-war history.

With spot news at a minimum, interest centered in the overnight cables from Addis Ababa, telling of a huge territorial grant by the Ethiopian emperor to Standard Oil. A denial by the head of Standard Oil of New Jersey that the company was involved acted as a curb on speculation in the petroleum group, however, and the gains here as elsewhere were mainly fractional.

Amusement Shares Rise.

Considerable demand appeared for amusement shares due to optimistic talk of the outlook for improved fall business. Warner Brothers, Paramount, and Pathe moved ahead in trading, which assumed a fairly brisk pace at times.

Case was a strong spot in the agricultural implement group, rising more than 3 points. Deere, International Harvester, and others improved their ratings by a dollar or so a share. Other performers to attract attention included Auburn Auto and Briggs Manufacturing.

Utilities essayed some fresh exertions on the upside under the leadership of American Power and Light shares. Gains of more than a point were run up by each of the senior issues of the corporation. Most of the other power and light shares emerged a gainer on the day.

Houdaille Touches Year's High.

Houdaille-Hershey duplicated its high for the year on reports that the issue is in line for a dividend shortly. The motors did little. Chrysler showed some promise in the early dealings but closed up about where it started. Mack Truck dipped fractionally on yesterday's SEC report disclosing that the president and several directors of the corporation had been unloading their stock holdings.

Railroad shares were generally featureless. An exception was Norfolk and Western, which moved up a couple of notches for no apparent reason.

Professional opinion on the market's future course was optimistic in the view of the behavior of shares since Monday's reaction.

FIELD'S TRAIN STORE SALES PASS MILLION

Sales made on the Marshall Field & Co. traveling train store yesterday passed the million dollar mark when H. E. Edberg, drapery and curtain buyer for J. L. Hudson & Co., Detroit, signed a large order, the management reported. Edberg visited the "store on wheels" in the depot at Detroit along with other buyers of the Hudson store who placed orders for nearly every department.

H. R. Boggs, assistant sales manager of Marshall Field & Co., said that "although orders have not been fully tabulated we believe that the Detroit business will top that of any other city the train has visited. We have made more than 40 stops in the south, northwest, and east, and have found retailers enthusiastic about our store on wheels."

Boggs said that the train will return to Chicago today and will leave again tonight for a 30 day trip in which 16 cities will be visited in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Missouri.

BANKS, MARKETS CLOSE TOMORROW

Banks and other financial establishments, security exchange, and commodity markets will be closed tomorrow in observance of Labor day. Business will be resumed Tuesday morning.

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Failure of Treasury Loan Offering Comes as Shock—Prices of Government Liens Weaken—"Big Steel" Shakeup Gets Under Way—Farmers Fight "Spud" Control.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

When the secretary of the treasury of the United States offers a new block of government bonds he expects that banks and investors will go for them in a big way. Experience over a long period of years warants this expectation. A treasury offering usually is overscribed two, three, or sometimes as much as twenty times as people with idle funds compete for allotments.

Great was the consternation last Thursday, therefore, when Secretary Morgenthau disclosed that his latest offering, 100 million dollars of Federal Farm Mortgage corporation 1½ per cent bonds maturing in 1939, had elicited only 85 million dollars of tenders.

Bonds Fully Guaranteed.

The Federal Farm Mortgage corporation is a New Deal agency for lending money on farm mortgages, and its bonds are secured by such mortgages. Because an act of congress has provided that its bonds shall be guaranteed unconditionally both as to principal and interest these bonds are, in every respect, obligations of the United States and are accepted as such by the public.

Puzzled bond dealers, hurriedly searching the records, could find only one other case in which a United States government bond issue had failed. That was also under the New Deal. It occurred in August, 1934, when an offering of 150 million dollars of treasury guaranteed Home Owners' Loan corporation bonds failed to attract enough bids.

Causes Price Decline.

Announcement of the failure of a government financing operation coming three days after the adjournment of the most extravagant peace time session of congress, the estimated billion dollar deficit for this fiscal year, and the failure of congress to levy more than enough in additional taxes to offset one-sixteenth of this deficit caused a further slight decline in the market for government bonds, which had been declining since Aug. 12.

A wide open break in government bond prices at this time, however, was not anticipated by financial experts for several reasons: 1. The treasury can manipulate the market with its 1 billion, 800 million dollar stabilization fund. 2. The federal reserve banks can be made to support the market. 3. The big banks are not selling "governments" because there is nobody to sell them to and they would have no place to put their idle funds if they did sell.

The uncertainty caused by Morgenthau's new "auction" method of selling bonds was blamed for the unsettlement in the market.

Steel Shakeup Under Way.

Secrecy has always shrouded the inner workings of ponderous United States Steel corporation, whose two billion dollars of total resources make it America's biggest industrial corporation. Little information leaks out of the main office of this industrial giant at 71 Broadway in New York City, and not much more comes out of the office of its big Chicago subsidiary at 208 South La Salle street, and its various other controled corporations.

A month ago, however, it was learned that President William A. Irvin of "Big Steel" was holding momentous sessions in a room at the McAlpin hotel in New York whither operating heads from all parts of the country were summoned. A far reaching shakeup in personnel was rumored and there were reports that arrangements were being made for closer correlation of operations of subsidiary companies.

More "Steam" Desired.

Last week these reports suddenly began to be substantiated. Benjamin Fairless, who had just been taken by "Big Steel" from a vice presidency with Republic Steel corporation, was placed in charge of the corporation's two biggest steel producing subsidiaries, Carnegie Steel of Pittsburgh and Illinois Steel of Chicago. Further, it was announced that beginning Oct. 1 a unified plan of operations would be worked out for Carnegie and Illinois. The following day President Irvin said he "hoped" I. Lamont Hughes, president of Carnegie, would remain with the company. George G. Thorpe, president of Illinois Steel, is eligible for a pension.

On Friday the corporation announced that James S. McKesson, former vice president of Corrigan McKinney Steel company had been hired to take exclusive charge of selling pig iron for Carnegie. To put more "steam" behind its selling methods "Big Steel" retained the services of the advertising firm of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborne, Inc.

Still operating in the "red" after four successive years of deficits U. S. Steel proposes to revamp its business getting methods to enable it to compete more nimbly with its smaller competitors, such as Bethlehem, Inland, National, and Ryerson, which have been showing profits.

"Spud" Control Has Problem.

When Huey Long filibustered the final deficiency appropriation bill to death on Monday Secretary Henry A. Wallace was deprived of the initial handout of five million dollars which was to have launched its attempt to control the potato production of the United States. Whether the 300,000 potato growers of the country are to have their "spud" planting supervised by "G" men, therefore, hinges on the administration's finding some other source of funds.

With the housewives up in arms about the price of pork, raised to almost prohibitive levels by the drouth and the AAA pig destruction program, the New Dealers may welcome the failure of the appropriation as an alibi for not tackling the impossible potato job, which critics say is unconstitutional.

The object of the act is to raise potato prices to the average for the years 1919-1929. This is to be done by allotting each potato raiser a quota and taxing him ¾ cent per pound on all produced over his quota. After next December it would be illegal to sell or buy potatoes except in sealed packages bearing either the tax-exempt stamps issued to cover quota potatoes, or the ¾ cent per pound stamps paid for by farmers on their excess production.

Farmers Declare War.

Besides the 300,000 commercial potato growers there are 6,000,000 farmers, most of whom grow some of the tubers, in addition to millions of suburbanites who have their own gardens. Already farmers in New Jersey have declared war on the potato plan. Bootlegging is believed to be inevitable. The housewife who buys a peck of unstamped potatoes from her neighbor, under the law, is subject to a fine of $1,000 for the first offense, and for the second a year in a federal penitentiary.

Although business indices last week seemed to bear out the predictions of those who said the midsummer upturn would broaden out further into substantial improvement after Labor day, the financial markets were dominated by developments in Washington.

The final passing by congress of a stack of radical measures labeled "must" by President Roosevelt was followed by the sharpest break of the year on the stock market.

Hurt by Death Clause.

Shares of the electric utilities, coal companies, and railroads were hard hit by the enactment of the "death clause" in the utility bill, by the Guffey coal act, and the railroad pension act calling for a 3½ per cent additional tax on the carriers. Weakness in the government bond market also contributed to the setback in stocks. The so-called "neutrality" bill providing for an embargo on war

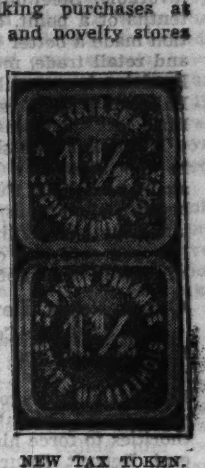
TAX PAYMENT TOKENS GO INTO USE THIS WEEK

Chain Stores to Get First Supplies.

Chicagoans making purchases at chain food, drug, and novelty stores after tomorrow will begin the use of new aluminum tokens to pay charges imposed by the Illinois retailers' occupational tax.



NEW TAX TOKEN.

The new tokens are square with rounded corners and replace the round tokens which were retired because of protests of the federal government that they constituted infringement of the power of coinage. Complaint also was made that they resembled dimes.

Congress failed to authorize federal coinage of 1 mill and half cent pieces, and the attorney general's office has given assurance that there will be no interference with use of the Illinois tokens, it was said yesterday.

Turn Out Million a Day.

The problem of production delayed placing of the new tokens in use, Robert M. Stowers, supervisor of the Chicago district for the state department of finance, said yesterday. Some 15,000,000 of the tokens are available and this number will be increased at the rate of 1,000,000 a day until the demand is satisfied.

Most of the original distribution will be in Chicago, it was understood, although a number of downstate cities are expected to have the tokens in general use within the next week or so.

Each token is worth 1½ mills, equal to the 3 per cent tax on a 5 cent purchase. The word "mill" has been omitted from stamping of the token to avoid legal complications in regard to federal power of coinage.

The pieces are being made by the Osborne Register company, Cincinnati, O. Their cost, including distribution, is approximately as much as their face value.

Schedule of Charges.

On purchase of	Tax is
1 to 4 cents	no tax
5 cents	1 token
6 to 10 cents	2 tokens
11 to 15 cents	3 tokens
16 to 24 cents	4 tokens

Alfred M. Best Company Files $200,000 Libel Suit

The Alfred M. Best Company, Inc., publishers of insurance reports, filed a bill for $200,000 damages for libel in the Superior court yesterday against the Index Publishing company, publishers of the Insurance Index. Defendants named in the bill are James E. Dunne, editor; Charles D. Dunne, vice president, and Eber S. Lusk, managing editor. According to the bill the suit is based on a cartoon and article of October, 1934, which allegedly reflected on Alfred Best, president of the Best company.

U. S. TREASURY'S LOAN FAILURE CAUSES SHOCK

materials to belligerents, too, was bearish.

The markets spent the latter part of the week regaining some of their lost ground. Business developments, largely ignored in worry over Washington happenings, were generally favorable. Steel output dropped nine-tenths of a point, but power production made a better than seasonal gain and retail trade, measured by Dun & Bradstreet, was still holding up well. Railroad freight car loadings rose a little less than seasonally.

The dollar was somewhat stronger in the foreign exchange market against principal European currencies because of nervousness over the Italian situation. Both the pound sterling and gold bloc currencies dropped slightly in terms of dollars.

Other News Developments.

J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, militant head of the highly liquid and conservative First National Bank of Englewood (Chicago), who had for two years defied the national banking authorities to force him to join the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, looked over the provision for a permanent FDIC contained in Title I. of the new banking act, declared it "less objectionable" than the original plan and consented to join, having been assured that the federal authorities would drop their demands that he pay assessments previously levied. His first annual assessment will be about $5,230.

A computation showed that FDIC assessments on Chicago banks will total about $2,187,000 per year, based on the levy of one-twelfth of 1 per cent in the new bill. Each account is insured up to a maximum of $5,000. A depositor with $10,000 can get full coverage by splitting his deposits between two banks. The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, with its 957 millions of deposits, will pay the most, its assessment for the first year being about $797,000.

Give Away Securities.

Because the increased estate tax rates provided in the "soak the thrifty" tax bill signed on Friday by the President go into effect immediately and the increases in gift tax rates are delayed until Dec. 31, 1935, wealthy persons have begun giving away blocks of securities to their families and others instead of waiting to leave them as legacies. The Securities and Exchange commission announced that except for the 27 million dollar gift in June by John D. Rockefeller Jr. total gifts of 5 millions in July exceeded the total for June. Largest July gifts were $1,470,000 by Kate Hanna Harvey of Cleveland, consisting of 70,000 common shares of M. A. Hanna company, and $1,380,000 by Andrew Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, consisting of 46,000 shares of Pittsburgh Coal company preferred.

Death Hits Reorganization.

The death on Monday of John North Willys, 61, automobile manufacturer and former ambassador to Poland, threatened to delay the long promised financial reorganization of Willys-Overland company. Willys, who sold out his common stock interest in the company at the peak in 1929, returned to control when dividends on the preferred, of which he was a large holder, were omitted. Willys-Overland, in receivership, has received court permission to make 10,000 more cars and Receiver and President John Willys was reported about to help finance the reorganization when death overtook him.

Consolidation of three railroads in receivership, Rock Island, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and St. Louis-San Francisco, into a vast new system was proposed by a preferred stockholders' committee headed by Carter H. Harrison Jr. Trustees for the C. & E. I. and Rock Island viewed the plan coldly.

PRICES OF COTTON FUTURES ARE 6 TO 14 POINTS LOWER

Evening up for the double holiday and switching from the October delivery into distant months by the pool furnished a good part of the trade in cotton yesterday. Prices held within relatively narrow limits and averaged somewhat lower. Chicago closed with net losses of 6 to 9 points while other markets were 8 to 14 points lower.

Trade reports indicate the pool has a holding of around 200,000 bales, the greater part of which is expected to be transferred into the deferred deliveries as soon as possible.

Spot cotton closed 10 points lower with New Orleans 10.55 cents; Houston and Galveston, 10.50 cents, and New York at 10.65 cents per pounds. Prices in cents per pound follow:

LARD FUTURES IRREGULAR; SPECULATIVE INTEREST LOW

Speculative interest in provisions yesterday was limited and prices held within narrow limits, lard closing 7½c higher to 2½ cents lower while bellies were 5 cents higher. Deliveries of lard are expected to be made on September contracts Tuesday and are expected to be small due to the substantial premium which prevails for the cash article as compared with futures.

The trade is looking for a reduction of 10,000,000 pounds or more to be shown in the local stocks of lard during the last month. The statement will be issued after the close on Tuesday.

Cash lard closed at $15.87; loose, $16.02; leaf, $16.00, and bellies at $18.82 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Trading in bonds on the New York Stock exchange during the brief preholiday period today was exceptionally dull. The small turnover of only $3,263,300 reflected the absence of many traders from the financial district for the Labor day holiday, and marked the smallest volume in over four years, or since Aug. 8, 1931, when sales amounted to $3,260,000. Transactions on Saturday of last week amounted to $6,311,300.

Changes Mostly Fractional.

Trading was so light and sales so few and far between that price movements in the general run of standard issues were only nominal and confined to small fractions. The corporation list displayed a steady to firm undertone and the averages of all domestic groups closed slightly higher on the day.

A few exceptions to the narrow trend included several issues which infrequently change hands. Among those were Czechslovakian 8s of 1952, which yielded 4 points; Sante Fe. Argentine 7s of 1942, off 5 points; Boston and New York 4s, off 2, and Southern Railway Memphis division 5s, off 3⅞ points. These declines were made on a turnover of only a few bonds.

Better Rails Are Firm.

Although moderate declines ruled in some of the second grade railroad liens, notably St. Paul and New Haven issues, the better class carriers held firm. Public utility and industrial loans were unchanged to a shade better on the day.

Little interest was manifest in the market for United States government obligations today, with the group working irregularly better in light trading.

Foreign dollar bonds moved within a narrow trading range on limited sales. Italian loans were firm.

Annuities.

The life annuity has been for years popular form of investment in Great ritain. Only in recent years has it ecome familiar to American invests. For that reason its characterics are not widely known here.

United System Is Leader; American Second.

for the benefit of holders of Aviation corporation. The exchange of stock is still under way. Cord's stock interest and those of his associate L. B. Manning and the Cord corporation, as far as can be learned, has not been reduced as a result of the reorganization.

Through Aviation corporation the Cord interests control Stinson Aircraft corporation, makers of the Stinson plane; Airplane Development corporation, manufacturers of the Vultee plane; Aviation Manufacturing corporation, makers of Lycoming engines, and the Smith-Lycoming corporation [propellers].

American Airlines buys equipment from the Cord companies as well as from concerns with which it has no connection. None of the transport companies follows a policy of buying equipment exclusively from concerns with which they are allied. This is shown by the sales of the Douglas Aircraft company, which built and sold 107 transport planes in the last fourteen months, more than any other concern. Douglas has never been closely tied in with an operating company.

Identified with Cord Interests.

The executives of American Air Lines are men identified with the Cord interests. C. R. Smith is president of the company. Neither Cord nor Manning appear as officers or directors of the line. The company's business is running well ahead of last year's.

The General Motors aviation interests were split three ways as a result of the reorganization caused by the air mail act. Western Air Express, controled by General Motors through North American Aviation, Inc., was sold to a group headed by Alvin P. Adams. The company's operations are confined to the west coast and it now has close working agreements with United Air Lines.

The two other lines which emerged from the breakup of the General Motors group are Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., and North American Aviation, Inc., an operating company which took over the mail contracts of the Eastern Air Lines.

Transcontinental Revenues Third.

Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., ranks third among the transport companies in total revenues. It carries approximately 27 per cent of all the air mail. General Motors corporation still owns more than 13 per cent of the stock, but is not active in the management. At present the Pennsylvania railroad and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. interests are in the ascendency in the affairs of the company.

After divesting itself of its holdings in Western Air Express corporation and Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc. [old], North American Aviation assumed the status of an operating company. Its wholly owned subsidiary, Eastern Air Lines, Inc., was dissolved and the parent company took over the mail contracts in the east. General Motors corporation continues as the dominant interest in North American Aviation, controling nearly 30 per cent of the stock. The remainder of the stock is publicly held.

BRITONS NURSE HURTS AS STOCK PRICES TUMBLE

Government Issues Drop with Gold Shares.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The stock markets are nursing their bruises this week and applying the old-fashioned theory that "things are all the sounder for the current shakeout."

The bruises are visible in every direction. From Aug. 12, when the Ethiopian crisis suddenly developed, the old 2½ per cent consols have fallen nearly 4 points in a fortnight to a new low level of 83¼, about 11 points below the year's high level in January. In placid Victorian days a spread of 4 points was considered large for a whole year.

Leading Rand gold shares collapsed to new low levels, partly on the bursting of a big speculative boom in Johannesburg, partly because the sterling price of gold weakened.

What Happened to Industrials?

The average investor, if there is such a creature, is trying to discover what is happening to leading British industrials which the newspapers have been telling him for three years are "the safest things in the world to buy."

In the spring industrials moved upward without a break for a longer period than at any time since recovery began. In the latter part of June the market got feverish and showed signs of toppling, but innumerable pools held it and after a breathing space it again got under way in August and moved up steeply until Aug. 12, when it cracked wide open.

Some criticism has developed this week regarding the decision of the big British banks to reduce gradually to zero credits advanced to Italian importers. However, London bankers plainly do not like the Italian situation and it is probably only a matter of weeks before trade between Italy and Britain is on a strict barter basis.

Watch Sears-Roebuck Invasion.

The announcement that Sears-Roebuck intends to market here some of their products, such as electric refrigerators and vacuum cleaners, through the British subsidiary, Sears International, Ltd., has been received without comment but it has probably caused considerable dismay to the "trade."

Thus far, despite the competition between British, Swedish and American manufacturers, prices have been kept very high, partly because the sales resistance is stiff and the overhead accordingly high. On the other hand, instalment selling has had no setback here such as elsewhere and the eminently creditworthy population still considers it a privilege to pay 10 shillings down and 10 shillings a month.

12 HOG RAISERS SUE PACKERS TO GET PROCESS TAX

Action seeking a return of part of the $6,000,000 in processing taxes held by eight Chicago packers, pending a court test of the legality of the AAA levy, was started in Superior court here yesterday on behalf of 12 hog producers. While the suit was brought by the group, it states it was filed on behalf of all farmers.

The bill, drawn by Robertson, Crowe & Spense, asks the court to determine what part of the tax should be returned to the producer in the event the tax is held unconstitutional. It also asks issuance of an injunction to restrain the defendants from disposing of their records of hog purchases.

Regard Tax Deducted From Price.

The action is based on the contention that the processing tax of $2.25 a hundred pounds was deducted by the packers from the price paid the producer and was not added to the price charged the consumer.

"The market for pork products resulting from the processing of hogs is highly elastic," the bill says. "Such products are in competition among ultimate consumers with various other food products, and the aggregate amount spent by the consuming public over a period of time for pork products is substantially stable."

"This is not a suit to embarrass the packers in their fight to have the processing tax knocked out," said Attorney James C. Spence. "My clients also believe it is unconstitutional. They further believe that the tax came out of their pockets in the form of reductions from the prices they received for their hogs. They want the packers to win their federal court fight. Then my clients want to recover their share of the tax held by the packers."

Packers and Amounts Listed.

Defendants and the amount the bill alleges each is withholding from the government under protection of injunctions follow:

Swift & Co., $804,686 for May and $737,189 for June; Armour & Co., $1,270,510 for May and $1,302,801 for June; Wilson & Co., $451,946 for March, April, and May, and $182,000 for June; T. M. Sinclair & Co., Ltd., $567,219 for March, April, and May, and $182,000 for June.

Illinois Meat company, $95,313 for May and $96,157 for June; Miller & Hart, $411,530, part of a total assessed from Nov. 6, 1933, to July 1, 1935, amounting to $2,384,375; C. A. Burnette & Co., $15,000 for March, $15,291 for April, $56,849 for May, and $63,808 for June, all for hogs slaughtered for the Fuehrmann & Forster company, which is also made a defendant.

U. S. TO ANSWER SUITS.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The government prepared today to answer Illinois packers and millers' attacks on the processing tax with a motion for dissolution of injunctions obtained in district courts here and at Chicago. The cases involve millions of dollars in processing taxes which federal judges ordered paid to the court instead of the collector of internal revenue pending a decision on legality of the tax law.

Howard Doyle, U. S. district attorney, announced on his return from Washington last night, that the government motions would be filed Sept. 10.

PIPE LINE WILL BRING NATURAL GAS TO DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31.—(AP)—William G. Woolfolk, president of the Detroit City Gas company, said today the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company would begin construction about Jan. 1 of a 300 mile extension of its line to bring natural gas into Detroit by July 1, 1936.

The line now ends at Dana, Ind. A 24 inch extension line to cost approximately $20,000,000 will be laid from there to Detroit. The Detroit company announced yesterday it had signed a contract with Panhandle Eastern calling for delivery of a peak load of 90,000,000 cubic feet of Texas gas daily.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

AGAINST RIGHT TURNS ON RED.

Pontiac, Ill., Aug. 10.—I wish to protest against the present agitation for a "right turn on the red light." I feel that such a policy is incompatible with public safety.

I have lived in Los Angeles and recently attended the University of Chicago. Since I live so near I am naturally interested in Chicago trafic problems. At the time I was in the former city motorists proceeded around the corner (right turn on red) with side looks to see if a "cop" was watching. Law abiding citizens felt as if they were violating a law and were a bit ashamed of themselves.

Doubtless this feeling has long since worn off and so probably has regard for the red light. Generally speaking, however, a pedestrian did not feel very safe, for there were cars moving or turning on all parts of the street at once (right turns on red, left, and right turns on green simultaneously).

I feel that such a law would endanger pedestrian trafic in the residential districts of Chicago more than it did in L. A. because of the difference in temperament of the people, etc. There is little enough regard for the red light now in Chicago, particularly after dark.

EDWARD T. MYERS.

EACH DOG SOME ONE'S PET.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—This appeal is made to the motorist who wilfully runs over a dog when just an application of brakes will save the dog's life and also save a pet for some one, and that some one may be a little child who has become so attached to his or her pet that the net result over the loss is a grief stricken child or family who has enjoyed hours of companionship of the dog.

I have seen motorists deliberately go out of their way to run over a dog and it is my opinion that that type of person does not deserve the consideration that a dog would receive.

FRED G. KOEHLER.

LOUD HORNS.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The recent general assembly passed a law prohibiting the use of automobile horns that emit excessively loud sounds and yet a legion of morons roam the city at the dead hour of midnight blowing a horn that could rival Gabriel's trumpet. If a humane law like this is not respected and enforced, no wonder prohibition was a failure. In Europe such a nuisance is not tolerated and I doubt if it would exist in Addis Ababa.

JAMES LYNCH.

DANGEROUS TRANSFER CORNER.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—I had to transfer from a Harrison street car to a Fifth avenue Madison street car this morning on my way to my office and at that point there is no indication of a car stop and the crossing is unusually dangerous.

I am sure other residents of the great west side would appreciate your printing this letter in an effort to cause the public's officials to place a safety island at that point instead of subjecting the pedestrian to hair-raising dodging amongst autos, trucks and other street cars going both east and west on Harrison street.

PRICE CHANGES IN LIVE STOCK AND MEATS VARY

Dressed beef carcasses moved into retail channels at 50 cents to $1 lower prices notwithstanding the higher costs of some of the live cattle to packers. Dressed lamb declined mostly $1 during the six days. Fresh pork at Chicago showed a recovery of 50 cents to $1, but loins still are $4 to $6 under the high point of two weeks ago.

Cattle followed an extremely erratic course, best grades of medium and heavy steers weighing 1,150 pounds and over finishing strong to 25 cents higher than a week ago, while most of the other grades closed weak to 25 cents lower. Some light medium to good grades declined 50 to 75 cents.

The average price of good to choice beef steers for the six days advanced 15 cents to $10.80, the highest week's average since May and comparing with $8.25 a year ago and with $5.75 two years ago.

The cost of hogs rose sharply for packers as supplies fell abruptly during the week. Arrivals for the week were down to 46,800, compared with 60,649 for the previous week and 72,610 a year ago.

Final quotations for hogs weighing 140 to 270 pounds indicated gains of 25 to 50 cents for the six days, while butchers weighing 280 to 400 pounds were up 55 to 70 cents and packing sows 25 to 40 cents higher.

Lamb prices were hit hard during the week, closing off 50 to 75 cents and at the lowest levels since early July.

AUTO OUTPUT HOLDS UP WELL IN LAST WEEK

Motor car production continued to hold up well last week despite curtailment in activity preparatory to launching production of 1936 models. Output of new cars and trucks in the United States and Canada amounted to 49,115 units, according to Cram's Reports, Inc. A week earlier 50,585 cars rolled off assembly lines, but in the same week last year the total was only 32,586.

The agency said that six plants increased production during the period, eight were closed, six registered declines and seven reported no change.

Start on New Models.

Meanwhile the industry plans to top off its best year since 1929 by getting a flying start on new models. Production will be launched 8 to 12 weeks earlier than has been customary.

"Many of the closed plants," said Cram's, "have started to manufacture parts for new models, although most of this departmental type of work will be done on a limited basis for a few weeks. Within the next 30 days assemblies of new cars will be started in several plants. One or two will be announced before the national automobile show opens in November.

"Sales departments of all companies which will soon bring out new models are aiding retail dealers to move stocks which in a few weeks will be obsolete. Retail sales over the country are slowing down in anticipation of the new cars."

View On Employment.

There has been considerable discussion in trade circles as to the effect earlier new model work this year will have on factory output next March and April. Most leaders believe the tendency will be chiefly to level off employment during the winter with peak production coming as usual in April and May.

In many plants men are being kept at work stocking parts for older models. One of the producers' boasts is that factories can provide parts for some of the oldest models still in operation. Most manufacturers regard this stocking of wheels, knuckles, cylinder block heads and other parts of the obsolete types as one of the best selling arguments for their newest product.

Toledo, O., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Federal Judge George P. Hahn today authorized the sale of the Willys Automobile plant in Elmira, N. Y., at public auction for not less than $300,000. Elmira industries had offered $250,000 to the receiver of the Willys-Overland company for the plant.

ILLEGAL PARKING STILL FOUND IN PARTS OF CITY

BY HAL FOUST.

In one month's enforcement of the diagonal parking prohibition, Chicago police have done much toward clearing city thoroughfares of these dangerous obstructions to trafic. However, much still remains to be done.

The enforcement is bucking long established habits of the motoring public, and for this and other reasons is still far from 100 per cent effective. For years in certain stretches of pavement there has been diagonal parking unmolested by the police. Under the city ordinance all parking must be parallel to the curb and the council has authorized no exceptions to this rule.

In addition to custom, the enforcement is bucking politics. In certain sections of the city merchants have encouraged the unlawful parking. They have been interested more in the number of their customers than in the customers' safety. The diagonal parking increases the storage capacity of the curb between 20 and 30 per cent.

Some of Them Donate.

These neighborhood merchants are influential in ward politics. Some of them donate to campaign funds. Most of them are organized in small civic groups that work with ward committeemen and aldermen. A district police commander does not care to cross a committeeman or an alderman.

The hazard of diagonal parking is not denied. On leaving such a position at the curb it is necessary for a driver to back blindly into moving trafic. Slovenly, unthinking, and reckless motorists sometimes park with the rear of the car projecting into the street where there is adequate room for parking parallel to the curb. And selfish interests with political influence encourage the diagonal parking where curb space is scarce.

The police are continuing to issue summonses to violators at the rate of about a hundred a day. The minimum fine is $2.

Still Some Bad Spots.

The Chicago Motor club made a survey one day last week and found the pavement cleared of diagonal parkers at several places that had been particularly bad for years. This was true in the narrow section of Stony Island avenue between 67th and 69th streets. It was true of Cottage Grove avenue between 57th and 63d streets. And it was true in North avenue east of Crawford avenue.

The condition of Roosevelt road was likewise improved except near Crawford avenue. There was much double parking noted in Roosevelt. In Ogden avenue near Kedzie avenue, cars were parked at all angles and in all directions.

In Madison street east of Austin boulevard, just inside the city limits, both sides of the street were packed solid with illegal parkers as if the neighborhood had never been visited by a policeman with a book of summonses.

ILLEGAL PARKING

Trafic Violations Observed

A sedan with license 958-200 was checked at 45 miles an hour southbound in Lake Shore drive in Lincoln park on Wednesday morning. After passing North avenue congestion reduced its speed, but it cut in and out of lanes to advance ahead of the crowd. The park police are trying to enforce a 35 mile an hour limit through the park. The license number was issued to Dr. S. Z. Bass, an optometrist, with an office at 2736 North avenue and a residence at 5669 Magnolia avenue.

During the evening rush hour Tuesday a car with license 1-141-714, issued to Mildred Franz, 7646½ Cottage Grove avenue, was driven near the center of Michigan avenue southbound at 20 miles an hour causing a blockade of trafic between 35th and 39th streets. The new Illinois trafic code prohibits any one to drive so slowly as to impede a reasonable use of public pavement.

Shortly before 7 a. m. on Wednesday a car with license 25-621 ran through a red light in Lake Shore drive at Schiller street. The lights had just changed but the driver had plenty of opportunity to stop. There was no cross trafic so he went through. Such violations, apparently safe until an accident results, cause a heavy toll of lives and limbs at signal controled intersections. The license number was issued to E. L. Weeks, 2036 Cullom avenue.

Going south in Western avenue at 6:29 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, a car with license 57-487, issued to Frank M. Weber, 7316 South Maplewood avenue, did not stop for a stop sign at 71st street. Motorists in stop streets expect the right of way from cross trafic. Reliance upon such protection coupled with violations of the stop order frequently cause serious collisions.

Northbound in Halsted street on Tuesday morning a car with license 1-108-725 passed to the left of three trucks and two passenger automobiles waiting for a red light at Archer avenue. To avoid a head on collision with a southbound automobile that had entered Halsted from Archer, the impatient if not grossly reckless driver swung to the extreme left of the pavement. This license number was issued to Morris Smoler, 816 South California avenue.

A car with license 1-103-620, issued to John J. Lydon, 4039 North Oakley avenue, was illegally parked with its left wheels rather than its right wheels next to the curb. In entering and leaving such a parking position an automobile is forced to drive on the wrong side of the street. The offense was observed on Monday morning in Oakley avenue between Irving Park boulevard and Belleplaine avenue.

LOOK AT THESE PICTURES IF YOU DON'T READ STORY

If you don't want to read this story, at least look at the pictures. Miss Bonnie Hunt is illustrating arm signals as prescribed by the new Illinois trafic code.

Failure to use the signals is a misdeameanor subject to a fine of not more than $100 or to imprisonment of not more than ten days. Chicagoans are adopting the wigwag practice as a convenience in facilitating trafic and as a precaution against accidents without any police enforcement.

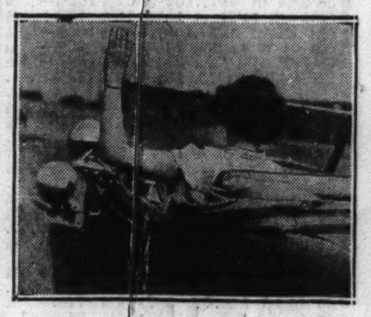
Although there is a little likelihood of arrest for failure to signal, the negligence and violation of trafic regulations constitute effective evidence in either defending or prosecuting a civil suit for damages growing out of any accident.

This is an additional inducement, if self-protection is not enough reason by itself for using the left arm.

The efficacy of the signals as a safety measure depends upon their proper execution. It must be remembered that by sticking a hand out of a window a driver does not automatically obtain an indisputable right of way. Turns are generally made subject to the prior rights of trafic continuing in one direction.



Right turn.

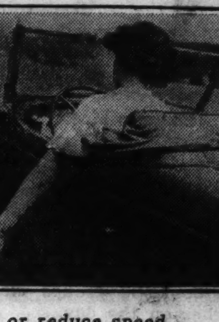
warning. The statute reads that the
The extended arm is an advance



Stop or reduce speed.

signal of intention should be given during not less than the last 100 feet traveled before turning.

The state code describes the proper signals as follows:

Left turn—Hand and arm extended horizontally.

Right turn—Hand and arm extended upward or moved with a sweeping motion from the rear to the front.

Stop or decrease of speed—Hand and arm extended downward.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Twenty-one and three-fourths miles to a gallon of gasoline and 3,000 miles on 3¾ quarts of oil were the records registered by a stock Chevrolet master de luxe sedan in a certified 3,000 mile nonstop economy run staged in California, the company reported last week. The run was undertaken to learn the actual economy performance of the motor car under routine driving conditions such as encountered by the average vacationing driver.

The route taken in putting the mileage on the car included a jaunt into Sequoia National park, elevation 8,000 feet. At the opposite extreme was Death valley, where the car passed through heat of 110 degrees. Having in mind the fact that no fair test of a car's routine economy could be achieved without speed runs, the driver cruised the floor of famous Muroc Dry lake at a pace of nearly 80 miles an hour.

Chicago's newest and most modern exposition building, the International amphitheater, at 42d and Halsted streets, has just been selected by the committee in charge as the scene of Chicago's 36th annual automobile show, to be held during the week of Nov. 16 to 23.

"I'm Sorry I Didn't Buy a Late Model Car Long Before I Did"

VACLAV F. CIPRA, 2109 WESLEY AV., BERWYN, ILL.
SECRETARY OF THE CZECHO-SLOVAK NATIONAL COUNCIL

"I USE a car a good deal in my business. In summer it gets a pretty good workout. We have a summer home up at New Buffalo, Michigan, and I drive there and back every week-end and sometimes a couple of times during the week.

"The last time I bought a car was in 1929. It was a late model used car. In six years I drove it over 50,000 miles, and was thoroughly satisfied with it. I found that car through a Tribune want ad.

SHOPPED TRIBUNE WANT ADS AGAIN

"The old car had served me well and when it was time to get a later one, I decided to look in the Tribune want ads again. I looked through the Tribune want ads on two or three days. I saw a 1933 La Salle sedan advertised by Emil Denemark, Inc., 3860 Ogden Ave. It had gone less than 10,000 miles and the price was reasonable.

"When I got back in town Monday I stopped by and saw the car. L. E. Komorous, the manager, demonstrated it. I was surprised at how much better the late models run. After they made me an offer on the old car, I thought it over until the next day.

PERFECTLY SATISFIED WITH CAR

"Then I called up Mr. Komorous and told him that it was a deal. I have already driven the La Salle 2,000 miles and am perfectly satisfied with it. In fact, I am sorry that I didn't buy a late model car long before I did. I am convinced that the Tribune is the place for anyone to find the kind of automobile he wants."

If you want to get a good car, one which will give you years of satisfactory, dependable service, check the automobiles for sale columns in the Tribune want ad section for Chicago's most attractive values in late model used cars of all makes and models.

"Most Satisfactory Paper for the Sale of Used Cars"

"I have been using Tribune want ads for the past 25 years, and have spent more money with the Tribune than I have with any other five Chicago newspapers because it is the most satisfactory and successful paper for the sale of used cars.

"We used the Tribune right through the depression, and I expect we will continue to do so as long as we are in business."

RECORD GAINS IN SUBURBAN COLLEGES

SEEK $1,348,000 IN PWA FUND FOR SEVEN SCHOOLS

West Side Expansion Needs Drafted.

Seven west side school projects to cost $1,348,000 are included in the school building program for which the board of education has applied for a grant of $12,006,638 from the Federal Public Works administration. The projects are for one new school, rebuilding of one school, alterations to one, additions to three others, and a recreation field.

A total of 77 west side schools are included in applications also submitted by the board to the Federal Works Progress administration which call for the expenditure of $3,873,977 on the renovation of buildings and rehabilitation of school grounds throughout the city. Applications for additional projects of this type are to be submitted as rapidly as they are prepared.

The grants asked by the board from the PWA and the WPA are expected to total approximately $18,000,000 when the final WPA applications are in.

Cicero Seeks Recognition Due the State's 5th Largest City

"Buy at home" and Community week programs, to be conducted in connection with a sales campaign, were included in fall plans announced by the Cicero Association of Commerce during a public forum held Monday evening.

ALBERT KOTLAN.

The project will be carried out under the auspices of the mercantile division of the association, of which Ben Frankel is chairman. "Although no definite date has been set, we expect to present these programs in such a fashion that they will have a positive appeal to the thousand odd retail merchants in Cicero," said Mr. Frankel.

Albert Kotlan, president of the association, will preside Sept. 9, when the first of the organization's seasonal activities, a directors meeting, will be held.

Expect 200 at Luncheon.

Mutual coöperation between commercial and industrial leaders of Cicero is expected to be the result of a get-together luncheon to be held Tuesday noon, Sept. 17. "We are anticipating an attendance of at least 200 business men," Mr. Kotlan stated.

Also slated to be stressed this month is the membership campaign. According to Thomas M. Filas, executive secretary, the complete program of the association which was established a few months ago, is expected now that the summer months are almost over.

"Already under consideration by the association is the paving of trackage space, the possibility of universal transfers, bus service from the elevated lines into the outer sections of Cicero, increased parking facilities on business streets, and community support of various relief measures," said Mr. Filas.

Seek Recognition for City.

"With continued agitation for civic, industrial, and commercial betterment, we hope to attain the eventual recognition of the importance of Cicero as the fifth largest city in the state."

Among the speakers Monday evening was Francis P. Clish of the Cicero safety council, who told of the progress made by the council in the reduction and elimination of accidents and loss of life and property within the city. Oliver J. Prentice, chairman of the Illinois relations committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, spoke and music was provided by the Cicero Municipal Concert band, composed of Morton High school graduates.

Joseph T. Cline recently received messages of congratulations from Postmaster General Farley and Senators William Dietrich and James Hamilton Lewis on his appointment as postmaster of Downers Grove. Mr. Cline, who resides at 5120 Forest avenue, in the suburb, was one of eleven applicants for the position.

JOSEPH T. CLINE.

The term of Harry B. Rigsbee, appointed postmaster of Downers Grove under the Hoover administration, expired last February. Mr. Cline said no definite date had been set for his taking over the management of the office.

Mr. Cline has been a life long Democrat. His precinct had only 29 Democratic votes when he moved into it 14 years ago, but at the last presidential election the 600 voters of the precinct were said to be almost equally divided between the two major parties.

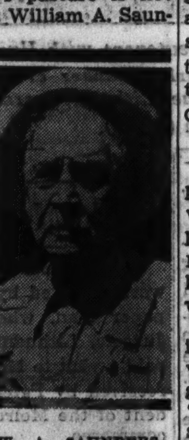
Dad Saunders' Vacation Proves 'There Is No Place Like Home'

The other fellow's pasture is not the greenest, insists William A. Saunders of Congress Park, recently returned from his first vacation trip in 16 years.



W. A. SAUNDERS.

During those 16 years "Dad" Saunders has not missed a day's work with the forest preserve district. He is caretaker of Cummings square, River Forest, location of the general headquarters office.

"I am not interested in further travel," declared the forest preserve enthusiast on his return home. "There's more beauty, more recreation, and more real satisfaction right where my job is than in any of those far away places."

Granddaughter Picks Place.

Once a vacation has been decided upon the next question is where to go, and Mr. Saunders' decision on a trip to the east coast was inspired by his 10 year old granddaughter, Lucille Saunders.

Last spring Lucille came across the subject of Plymouth Rock in her history book and she expressed a desire for a picture of the spot where the Pilgrims landed. The discussion influenced her grandfather in traveling east for a snapshot.

"I brought back the picture and Lucille will have it to take to school this fall," "Dad" reflected, "but I'm glad I'm home. I'd rather mow grass and feed the birds and care for the shrubs at the headquarters building than view historic scenery. Give me the oaks and catalpas and maples of our forest preserves."

Finds Homes Well Kept.

Mr. Saunders said that he was impressed, however, by the manner in which folks in the east keep up their homes—all of them painted white and lawns planted with flowers. His hobby is flowers and his ambition is work.

"'Dad' holds the record for sticking on the job without thought of a vacation," said Charles G. Sauers, general superintendent of the district. "He has the feeling that the preserves would perish if he were not constantly on the job."

Before becoming a caretaker in the preserves Mr. Saunders worked in an office at the Board of Trade for 31 years. Because of his health he sought a job in the open. His employers say of him that he is never in ill humor and always eager to lend a helping hand.

RUSH WHEATON DORMITORY FOR NEW STUDENTS

Three Schools Rush Opening Plans.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Large increases in registrations of new students in three colleges of the west suburban area were indicated last week in announcements of the opening of Wheaton college, North Central college at Naperville, and Elmhurst college. Wheaton and Elmhurst will open Sept. 11 and North Central on Sept. 16.

Through the erection of a portable steel dormitory on the campus Wheaton college is meeting a housing problem to care for the most remarkable increase in enrollment the institution has experienced in all its seventy-five years. Work on the dormitory to accommodate thirty-two men is being rushed in preparation for the opening of the fall term.

The west wing of the main building is being remodeled for new classrooms, every suitable and available room in Wheaton is being utilized by the college, and several large residences have been leased or purchased. Glen Ellyn homes are taking some of the overflow.

200 More at Wheaton.

The enrollment this fall will set a new record of approximately 950 in the college department, an increase of about 200. The teaching staf has been enlarged and several new courses have been added. There will be seventeen instructors, some of whom are filling vacancies, but ten represent an outright addition to the faculty.

The students are being drawn from forty-two states and seventeen foreign countries, and 70 per cent of them come from states outside Illinois. Believed to be an outstanding factor in the increase of the college's enrollment is its attitude toward modern economic and social trends.

The college is introducing this fall a major in the field of business administration, and classes in the field of political science are also being increased.

The building program of the college calls for two new dormitories, one for men and one for women; a library building, and a gymnasium building in the near future.

New Faculty Members.

New members of the faculty include Dr. Merwin A. Stone as a member of the Bible department. Dr. Stone comes from Siloam Springs, Ark., where he was a teacher in the Evangelical Theological college and pastor of the Presbyterian church.

Miss Florence Baker of La Grange will be the new instructor in art. Miss Baker was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1929, after which she served as art supervisor in the Central States Teachers college in Michigan. During the last year she has been art supervisor in the La Grange schools.

Clifford Stickney, of the class of 1934, who is completing work for his master's degree at the University of Washington this summer, will fill the vacancy of Prof. Russell Mixter, who has been granted a year's leave of absence to accept a temporary appointment on the faculty of the University of Illinois medical school.

Miss Ruth Berg, of the class of 1932 and a graduate of the Chicago Normal college, will join the faculty as physical instructor for women.

Mrs. Harriet N. Taylor has asked to be relieved of her work in the German department for the coming year and her classes will be taken over by Miss Johanna Voget, who has served for some years as a teacher and registrar at Los Angeles-Pacific Junior college.

Name Others on Staf.

Lauren Alfred King, Ph. D., will be associate professor of English; Joseph P. Free, Ph. D., assistant professor of French; Robert Locke Cooke, Ed. D., associate professor of education; Miss Evelyn E. Erickson, A. M., instructor in Spanish, and Vivian D. Jolley, M. B. A., instructor in business administration.

Others on the staf are M. Wendell Smith, A. B., instructor in physical education; Henry Clarence Thiessen, B. D., Ph. D., associate professor of Bible and philosophy, Clarence L. Nystrom, Ph. D., associate professor of speech, and Clyde S. Kilby, A. M., assistant professor of English and assistant dean of men.

New instructors in the conservatory of music, of which Peter Stam Jr. is executive director, include Frank W. Van Dusen, guest instructor in organ, piano, and theory; Wilbur S. Swanson, instructor in organ, history, and theory of music, and Mrs. Minnie Cedargreen Jornberg, instructor in violin.

North Central Increases.

The coming year will be known as diamond jubilee year at North Central college. Last fall's enrollment was a record breaker at the college, and advanced registration for the freshman class shows a 50 per cent increase over that of last year.

Features of opening week will be an open house to be held on the night of Sept. 16 in the social room at the library under auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. The day will be given over to the selection of rooms and boarding places for students under the direction of Prof. G. R. Oliver and Dean Clara Bleck, as-

13,000 LUTHERAN PUPILS TO START SCHOOL TUESDAY

Church Spends $600,000 Yearly in Education.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Lutheran schools within the northern Illinois district of the Missouri synod will open on Tuesday with an expected enrollment in the 125 centers of 13,000 pupils, according to data supplied by the superintendent, Paul T. Buszin.

PAUL T. BUSZIN.

Buildings and equipment used by the Lutheran church in its elementary educational work represent an investment of $4,500,000, and for their annual maintenance about $600,000 is required. The schools are served by a staf of 318 teachers which gives a teacher-load of 40 pupils.

Not all of these pupils, however, are of Lutheran parentage. Almost 20 per cent come from homes not affiliated with the Lutheran church. But since these children are not using the public school facilities of the community, the Lutheran day schools save taxpayers in northern Illinois at least a million dollars annually.

Help Needy Students.

The Lutheran church in America has always fostered its own schools, supported by voluntary contributions from the various congregations. Needy scholars are taken care of by the local church, and in the case of congregational indigence the synod supplies the funds. In the Missouri synod particularly there has been consistent expansion.

At the recent triennial convention held in Cleveland, a number of resolutions were passed for further progress in the upbuilding of the entire system—elementary and secondary—including the teachers' colleges at River Forest and at Seward, Neb., for both of which the complete four year college course is contemplated.

"Members of the Missouri synod Lutheran churches" said Mr. Buszin, "are thoroughly convinced that child training should be carried out in a straight line. There must be consistent, coöperative, concurrent pull—no zig-zag, to and fro, back and forth movement. An educational service must be available which is congruent in the home, the church and the school. This does not mean that children should be reared in a different world, but it does mean that they should be kept aware of the eternal verities."

Develop Social Viewpoint.

Mr. Buszin pointed out that as the child grows older he is to be inspired with regard to his Christian responsibility; that the aim of education under the Lutheran system is to develop a social viewpoint, a patriotism and a stewardship of duty derived from a love of God and kept alert by a sanctified conscience.

To attain this ideal, the curriculus and manuals are prepared with the greatest care. "But," Mr. Buszin observed, "we are conscientiously observant that we meet the school requirements of the state to the very letter."

Eighty-five per cent of the teachers serving in all grades have chosen work in the Lutheran schools as their career. The men are regularly called for life by the respective church, not merely by its vestry, and are inducted into office just as the pastors of congregations.

They are, however, not assistant pastors, but definitly are school teachers, trained in teachers' colleges, not theological seminaries. The appointment is for life so long as capability and qualification are evinced, but not necessarily in the same school.

"The teaching personnel" concluded Mr. Buszin," and the organized efficiency of the schools, doubtless account for the high regard which Lutheran schools enjoy in the educational world."

PLAN LABOR DAY OUTING AT HOME FOR BROOKFIELD

Rather than take to the highways this year for a week-end and Labor day trek, residents of Brookfield plan to stay home and attend the Commercial club's barbecue and picnic, to be held tomorrow at Kiwanis park.

Carl Hayford, president of the club, and his committees have held several meetings in arranging a day that will provide a real get-together for residents of the community and their friends.

The program will start at 10 o'clock in the morning with a parade that will be reviewed by John G. Bergman, president of the village, T. J. Mahoney, chief of police, and other officials from a point near the village hall.

Included in the line of march will be the police department, the Legion band, members of the Legion and auxiliary, the fire department, postoffice employés, the drum and bugle corps, Boy and Girl Scouts, children in costume, business men and lodge groups.

President Timothy Lehmann will address students on the morning of Sept. 13 on the subject, "Why Go to College." The same evening there will be a get-acquainted party for all freshmen and members of the faculty, sponsored by the Student Christian association. In the afternoon Prof. Paul Lehmann will have charge of the first session of the freshmen orienation course.

Will Assign Rooms.

Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 11 and 12, have been set aside for assignment of rooms, class registration, payment of fees, and physical examinations of all the new students. On Thursday night there will be an informal gathering of all dormitory students in the Y. W. C. A. room.

Oliver Langhorst, director of physical education, will have charge of the men's activities at a recreational program on the afternoon of Sept. 14. Miss Marion Smith, instructor in physical education will have charge of the program for women students. The same evening a "student sing" for all dormitory students will be held in the reception room of the women's dormitory.

Dr. Frederick Frankenfeld, pastor of St. Peter's Evangelical church, the college church, will conduct the morning worship on Sunday morning, Sept. 15. In the afternoon, the board of religious education will sponsor an outing at Salt Creek park, and a twilight service will be conducted by President Lehmann on the steps of the library.

Prof. K. H. Carlson of the English department will return to the faculty this fall from a year's leave which he spent in England as a student at the University of London.

Mr. Vejelis plans to stay in America two years, during which time he will gather photographs and brief biographies of prominent Lithuanians in this country. Among those who will be included in the historical album are Mr. Gaddy, Joseph Darg, and Dr. F. K. Stryznecki.

Mr. Vejelis spoke of the peace pact that has existed for many years between the nations of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania as the most perfect of its kind. He said the pact had been so agreeable between the countries that the Lithuanian government had taken into its hands the publication of an historical album in memory of the alliance.

SUBURBAN HIGH SCHOOLS GAIN IN ENROLLMENT

Six Open Tuesday; Others Start Next Week.

Increased enrollment is reported at high schools in the west suburban area, some of which will open their doors for the fall semester the day after Labor day. Others will start class room activities Sept. 9.

High schools opening Tuesday include Proviso at Maywood; York at Elmhurst; J. Sterling Morton at Cicero; Downers Grove, Wheaton and Hinsdale. Classes at Hinsdale will start Wednesday, Tuesday to be given over to a meeting of the faculty.

Opening their doors to classes on Sept. 9 are Oak Park and River Forest at Oak Park, Lyons Township High school at La Grange, Riverside-Brookfield, Glenbard, and Naperville.

Urges Early Registrations.

Supt. M. R. McDaniel has urged all persons who have recently moved to Oak Park or River Forest and are planning to enter pupils in high school this fall to call at the office as early as possible to make the necessary arrangement. He has explained that by registering early, pupils are assigned to classes prior to the opening of school, thus avoiding unnecessary delays in getting started.

An enrollment of 6,000 is estimated at J. Sterling Morton, where for the last two weeks the offices have been open for the distribution of books, grade cards, and lockers. Morton Junior college will open Sept. 9, and the school for crippled children will start Sept. 5.

Wheaton has four new faculty members: Miss Z. B. Leonhard, who will teach English and speech, and coach plays; Miss L. M. Maranville, French; C. H. Sweat, English and social science, and Miss T. Houts, art.

Wheaton High Expands.

During the summer the size of the cafeteria at the Wheaton High school has been doubled through the erection of an addition. The building is now heated by oil, and the old coal bin has been converted into a department for auto mechanics. This summer the old Wheaton High school building has been torn down to make way for the construction of a new Junior High school building.

There will be four new teachers at York, where the enrollment is estimated at 1,425, and where the school office will be open on Labor day.

Earl E. Heinhorst of Forest City, will teach mathematics, taking the place vacated by Arthur Larsen, now an instructor at the State Teachers college at Normal.

Miss Helen Snapp of Malta Bend, Mo., will teach girls physical education; and Elmer Morthole of Jacksonville, Ill., will teach the new course in German. Vernon Bakkers of Chicago, will teach history ,taking the place of William Stanley, who is granted a year's leave of absence to study at the University of Columbia.

Glenbard Faculty Unchanged.

At Glenbard, the faculty remains unchanged. Due to the increasing size of the student body at Glenbard, a change has been made this year in the arrangement of the school day. Juniors and seniors will lunch from 12:15 to 12:58 o'clock, and freshmen and sophomores will have from 12:32 to 1:16 o'clock for lunch. With this arrangement of dividing the hours and shortening the lunch period, school will close at 3:08 o'clock. School will open at 8:30 in the morning.

With an enrollment of more than 900, Riverside-Brookfield High school will have the largest number of pupils in its history.

At Lyons Township High school, the domestic science department, dropped during the depression, will be reopened with Miss Lorena Reid of Maywood, for instructor.

New La Grange Teachers.

Another new instructor at La Grange is Carl Warkow, social science, who comes from the faculty of Naperville High school. John Kenyon has been assigned to a newly created position, that of supervisor of the study halls. James Maus of La Grange, will teach part time in mathematics.

Naperville has lost Carl Warkow to the Lyons Township High school, and Coach Don Harshbarger, who will teach physical education at Oak Park and River Forest High school. Mr. Harshbarger has been at Naperville for seven years, during which time he developed the football squad into Little Seven championship material. Mr. Warkow's place will be filled by Curtis Fagan, who last year took special work at the University of Arizona.

WISCONSIN DELLS HONEYMOON

The former Miss Marcella Halm, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Halm Winters, 1632 South Euclid avenue, Berwyn, who became the bride of George Rankin, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Rankin, recently at St. Mary of Celle church in Berwyn. The reception that followed, however, was a double one, for the bride's mother and Dr. William Winters were married one day previously. Mr. and Mrs. Rankin are at the Dells of Wisconsin.

Couple Gives Elmhurst New Beauty Spot.

Architectural training, boyhood spent in a farming country, the desire to beautify a vacant corner lot given over to quack grass and rubbish, and the devoting of evening hours and week-ends to planting and cultivating have been combined in the development of a flower and vegetable garden in the Crescent Park district of Elmhurst which neighbors declare to be one of the most beautiful in the suburbs.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Roberts, 332 Laurel avenue, are responsible for the project that not only has brought praise from those who reside in the neighborhood but has attracted visitors from afar. The couple moved from the Chicago north side to the western suburb two years ago.

Mix Flowers and Food.

Mr. Roberts sketched plans for the kite-shaped tract covering one-fifth of an acre. "Four o'clocks" were planted as a border and at the axis there is a bed of dahlias.

Twenty kinds of vegetables are grown in the garden, but the effect is that of flowers in bloom.

"It is gratifying," Mr. Roberts said, "for people to show their appreciation of our efforts, but they make a mistake in thinking of me as an expert horticulturist. With a bit of reading and study, any one can do what we have done. I'll admit that Trellises for Tomatoes.

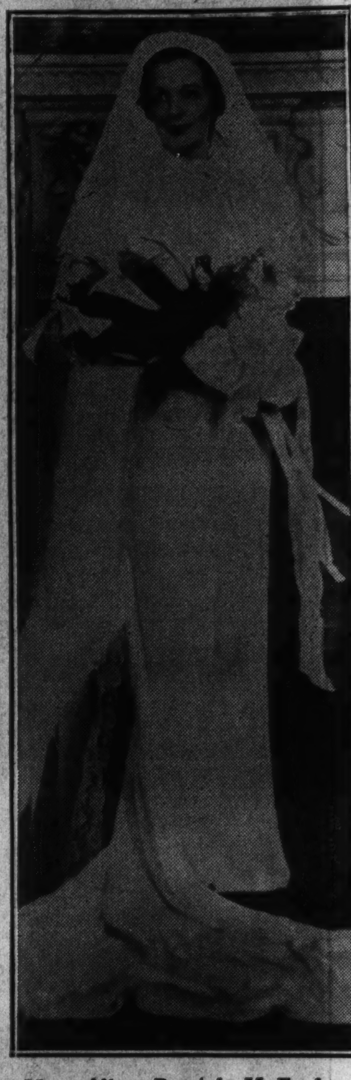
"All it needs are strong backs and the will to tackle the job. A half day once a week is all I have to give the garden now to keep it in good condition, although we are constantly planting things to take the place of plants that have served their usefulness."

When attention was called to the manner in which Mr. Roberts had supported his tomato vines, he replied that the lath trellises in the shape of triangles had been constructed at a cost of 3 cents each.

WED RECENTLY



Mrs. Allan Patrick McEachern, who before her recent marriage was Miss Irene Mary Ruland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Ruland, 1447 North Menard avenue. The ceremony at St. Catherine of Sienna church in Oak Park was followed by a wedding breakfast at the Oak Park Arms hotel.

SUBURBAN GROUP ASKS FASTER TAX DISTRIBUTION

Hope to Reduce Interest for Local Units.

An arrangement whereby a monthly tax audit and distribution may be financed jointly by the municipalities, school districts and park districts of each township, will be given consideration at a meeting of the executive committee of the Suburban Area and Country Towns association on Sept. 11.

T. A. MATTHEWS.

Under existing conditions taxing bodies have no way of knowing the exact amount due from the county clerk in redemption money, and from the collector in current tax receipts. Steps will be taken at the meeting to have the county collector pay over to the municipalities, school districts and park districts of each township the money collected for them promptly.

Thomas A. Matthews, executive secretary of the association, said that delays of from three to nine months are not unusual under the present system, although the law calls for an accounting every thirty days. These delays in distribution of tax collections to locale units are said to cost Cook county taxing bodies thousands of dollars each year in interest on tax anticipation warants which could otherwise be paid off sooner.

The association will be represented at the September meeting by James A. Howe, of Oak Park, president; Curt Krausser, of Maywood, secretary; Jacob Dittus, of Maywood, attorney; Thomas A. Matthews, executive secretary; Charles Bartlett, of Evanston, and other municipal officers of the area.

The uniform trafic ordinance, prepared by Mr. Matthews, has been sent by the Illinois Municipal league to every municipality in the state. According to reports, the practice recommended by the association to enact and enforce local trafic rules is working satisfactorily throughout the county.

The Municipal Gas Protective association has asked that its work be taken over by the Suburban Area and Country Towns association. The association is composed of municipalities served by the Public Service company of Northern Illinois.

OPEN LA GRANGE POSTOFFICE SITE BIDS TUESDAY

U. S. Will Make Choice of Sites Offered.

Bids for a site for a new postoffice building in La Grange will be opened Tuesday, according to the local postmaster, Charles W. Farley.

Specifications call for a site with approximately 130 foot frontage by 195 foot depth for corner lots, and 155 foot frontage by 195 foot depth for inner lots. Taken into consideration will be the location in relation to the business district, the center of population, distance from the railroad station, trend of the suburb's growth, and the price.

2,400 Sign Petitions.

Determined effort was made last May by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce, consisting of J. F. Reed, president, A. N. Sanquist, and J. A. Thorsen, which, with Mr. Farley, made a special trip to Washington to present the community's claims.

The committee took along petitions signed by more than 2,400 residents and produced evidence that the postoffice serves a combined population of 20,000. Postmaster Farley gives the work of Congressman Thomas J. O'Brien much credit for the final success of the movement.

U. S. to Inspect Sites.

After the bids are opened an agent of the United States treasury department will be sent to make an examination of the proposed locations and such others as he deems desirable, and to investigate the reasonableness of the prices placed on the properties as compared with recent sales of real estate in the vicinity.

The statement of methods also points out that whenever the department is unable to obtain from the owner a proposal to sell the site desired for a reasonable price, resort may be had to condemnation proceedings to ascertain the true value of the property.

5 DAY FESTIVAL IN WEST PARKS TO OPEN TOMORROW

Water Carnival to Climax Festivities.

Expected to be one of the largest demonstrations of civic pride and community talent ever staged, the West Parks Festival will open tomorrow in the sylvan settings of Garfield, Columbus, Douglas, and Humboldt parks and will continue through Friday with varied programs planned by west side business men, civic leaders, and park directors.

On the fifth and last day, activities will center in Garfield park, where a spectacular Venetian nights water carnival will conclude the programs. Douglas park programs will take place on the dancing platform in front of the boat house. In Columbus park, a platform has been built at Central avenue and Congress street. At Garfield park, events during the first four days will take place at the north end of the band stand, and in Humboldt park, the crowds will gather directly in front of the refectory.

Tomorrow will be children's day at Garfield park; Tuesday, church picnics, an old settler's reunion, and a program of entertainment in the evening; Wednesday, an American Legion picnic will be held. On community night, Thursday, "Miss Garfield Park" will be chosen. Joseph Holpuch heads the Garfield committee.

Like Garfield park, the Columbus park festival committee has set aside Labor Day as Children's day. Tuesday will mark the beginning of a series of softball games to continue on Wednesday and Friday. Tuesday night will be community and old settler's night. A ten act vaudeville program will be featured Wednesday evening, and on Thursday there will be a street dance and the selection of "Miss Columbus Park."

Athletic events will be outstanding features of Douglas park's program, which will get into full swing Tuesday night with a vaudeville and motion picture show. An amateur boxing tournament is scheduled Thursday evening and "Miss Douglas Park" will be selected. Judge Oscar Caplan is chairman of the Douglas park committee.

Some 3,000 lanterns made in park workshops all over the city will light the scene. On a platform built out over the water on the west side of the lagoon a program of entertainment will be presented. Each of the four beauty queens selected will occupy special floats and one of these will be formally chosen to reign as "Queen of the Venetian Carnival."

BRIDAL COUPLE OF 1885

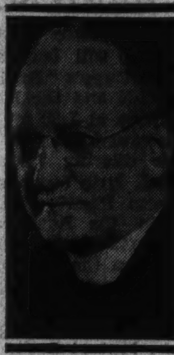
DR. AND MRS. JOHN J. STOLL.

In 1885, when cycling was a means of transportation instead of exercise, when the "Little Women" bang made its debut, and young men were "not dressed" without a stiff collar, Dr. and Mrs. John J. Stoll began their life together. This picture was taken at the time of their marriage, 50 years ago. Yesterday, their golden wedding anniversary, and incidentally the golden anniversary of Dr. Stoll's entrance into practice, was celebrated with a reception in their home at 1103 South Ashland avenue. The couple have lived in their present home for 35 years, and before that resided at Troop and 12th streets. They have one son, Dr. John E. Stoll, a physician and surgeon on the staf of the Garfield Park hospital.

HILLSIDE PARISH HOLDS FAREWELL FETE FOR PASTOR

Father Griffin to Go to Canada.

After serving for twelve years as pastor of St. Domitilla's Catholic church in Hillside, the Rev. Ambrose Griffin is being transferred to a higher office in Our Lady of Sorrows parish, Vancouver, Canada. The promotion within the order places him as pastor and prior at his new post.



THE REV. AMBROSE GRIFFIN.

Hundreds of friends and parishioners gathered Tuesday evening in the hall of St. Domitilla's parochial school to bid him farewell, after protests against his transfer had failed. A purse contributed by both Catholics and non-Catholics was presented, and a volunteer delegation of some 200 was formed to see him off at the train this Tuesday evening.

Known to Thousands.

Father Griffin is known to thousands in Chicago through his work for the archdiocese and his many years as an instructor in Catholic institutions. He was formerly connected with Our Lady of Sorrows church on the west side and for ten years was rector of St. Philip High school. He is a graduate of Notre Dame university and taught here for two years following his graduation, before studying for the priesthood. He is a contributor to the Catholic Encyclopedia, standard authority on Catholicism.

Numbered among Father Griffin's close friends are Mayor Kelly, Bailif Al Horan, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, Police Captain Thomas Malloy, Ald. Joseph Ross, and other city and county officials. Bailif Horan and Ald. Ross were former pupils of his at St. Philip High school.

Plan Welcome to New Pastor.

During the last few years, when St. Domitilla's school witnessed serious financial trouble, these friends sponsored an annual "Father Griffin" dance to raise the needed funds. At the last of these events, held last February, nearly 5,000 attended and enough money was raised to put the parish on its feet financially.

A fall festival planned by Father Griffin will take place next Sunday evening in the school hall. The party is now to be turned into a welcome for St. Domitilla's new pastor, the Rev. P. M. Condon, who has held high offices in the Servite order, including that of provincial of the United States and Canada. Mrs. Mary Shutner, Peter Burr, and members of the Altar and Rosary society, Holy Name society, and the Young Ladies' sodality are in charge of arrangements.

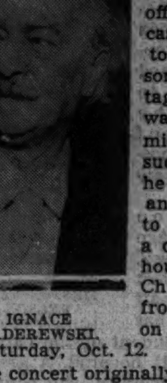
THE STORY BACK OF PADEREWSKI'S PROMISE TO PLAY

First Radio Concert to Be Given on Oct. 12.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.



IGNACE PADEREWSKI.

There's an interesting story behind Ignace Jan Paderewski's decision to broadcast a concert this fall. For years Paderewski has spurned all offers to broadcast, also refusing to give any reasons for his antagonism—if that was it—for the microphone. Now suddenly it seems he has yielded and has agreed to let NBC relay a one and a half hour program of Chopin music from 9:30 to 11 on the morning of Saturday, Oct. 12.

The concert originally was intended as a gesture of friendship for the Swiss people among whom the great Pole has resided since he has abandoned politics. It was to be broadcast only over a Swiss station but NBC finally managed to get permission to relay it to America. It is probable that George Engels, manager of NBC'S artists service and for years manager of Paderewski's tours in America, used his persuasive powers on the pianist.

Illness Blocks Broadcast.

Mr. Engels, it seems, had an oral agreement with Paderewski that he would make a broadcast last year at the start of his scheduled American tour. Illness prevented his making the tour. So there was no broadcast. Thus when he learned about the pianist's plans to make a radio appearance for the Swiss Engels is reported to have sought permission to pipe the concert to America for NBC. Paderewski, feeling that he could hardly refuse Mr. Engels, consented, according to this story.

There are various theories as to the origin of Paderewski's prejudice to the airwaves. One says that he once made a radio appearance in England in the early days of wireless and that he was so displeased with the results that he vowed never again.

However, time has brought a lot of improvements in radio reception and this is said to have softened the great pianist's heart a little.

He Wants Real Money.

Today he is reported to be willing to discuss the possibility of broadcasting under commercial sponsorship—but strictly on terms to suit himself. Prospective sponsors are said to have dangled figures running into five columns for each of a series of broadcasts without eliciting much of a gleam in his eye.

But the forthcoming concert he will do for nothing. And it is likely to be your only chance to hear him plans no American tour, either, this year, so his Columbus day broadcast will probably be America's only chance to hear him this season.

Allen from Hollywood.

"Hollywood weather is wonderful," Fred Allen writes. "The only way you can tell autumn is coming on is when the Marx brothers begin to fall from the coconut trees. . . . Chevalier isn't making pictures any more. He heard France was thinking of paying the U. S. war debt and rushed right back to subsidize the government. Met Baby Leroy at the tailor's the other day. He says he'll be featuring the triangular model again this season."

Lum and Abner in a Movie.

Lum and Abner, that is Chester Lauck and Norris Goff, made a movie the other day. In the same cinema are John T. McCutcheon, TRIBUNE cartoonist, George Ade, Ray Chapman Andrews, the explorer, and many another well known member of Sigma Chi fraternity. Picture will be shown at a convention of the fraternity this week in Chicago.

"Book by the Week."

"The Aristocratic Miss Brewster," a novel by Joseph C. Lincoln, will be the book read by Margery Graham on her "Book by the Week" program which W-G-N presents at 9:15 each morning except Sunday.

AND HE'S GONNA FLY AROUND THE WORLD AND WIN $50,000.- TOO-
SIDNEY SMITH
THE LOG OF THE TERROR- ABOARD THE LONG-LOST VESSEL OF SIR JOHN FRANKLIN, CHESTER AND CAPTAIN DUKETTE HAVE READ THE TRAGIC STORY OF THE LAST SURVIVORS ABOARD THE SHIP AND HOW THEY PERISHED ONE BY ONE-
WELL, THAT CLEARS UP THE FATE, OF HALF OF SIR JOHN FRANKLIN'S MEN- THE ONES LEFT WITH THE SHIP- BUT WE STILL DON'T KNOW WHAT HAPPENED TO THE FIFTY WHO TRIED TO GET BACK TO CIVILIZATION-
KOODLOO KNOW- REMEMBER NOW- ME HEAR GRANDFATHER TELL-
MANY MANY SUNS AGO- MEN OF MY GRANDFATHER'S TRIBE SEE STRANGE WHITE MEN FROM NORTH, PULLING HEAVY SLEDGES-
WEAK FROM MONTHS OF STARVATION, THE MEN PUSH DESPERATELY ON TOWARD CIVILIZATION- BUT THEIR TRAIL IS LINED WITH THE BODIES OF THOSE WHO FALL AND DIE AS THEY WALK-
MEN OF MY GRANDFATHER TRIBE FEAR STRANGE WHITE MEN- NOT WANT HELP THEM- BUT MY GRANDFATHER BRAVE- HE GO ALONE TO HELP-
KOODLOO'S GRANDFATHER PICKS UP ONE OF THE GAUNT, STARVING WHITE MEN AS HE FALLS AND CARRIES HIM ACROSS THE ICE TO HIS IGLOO-
MY GRANDFATHER FEED BLUBBER AND SEAL MEAT TO WHITE MAN- BUT TOO LATE- GREAT SPIRIT COME FOR HIM- THEN HE SIT UP- TRY TO SPEAK-
AS A LAST GESTURE OF GRATITUDE, THE DYING WHITE MAN STRIPS A MEDAL FROM HIS BREAST AND BEGS THE ESKIMO TO CARRY A MESSAGE BACK TO CIVILIZATION-
BUT BEFORE HE CAN TELL MESSAGE, WHITE MAN GO TO GREAT SPIRIT- MY GRANDFATHER NEVER KNOW WHAT HE TRY TO SAY-
IF ONLY YOU COULD BE SURE ABOUT THIS KOODLOO- BUT HOW DO WE KNOW THE MAN WASN'T FROM SOME OTHER EXPEDITION BEFORE OR AFTER FRANKLIN-
KOODLOO NOT CAN TELL- BUT GRANDFATHER GIVE MEDAL TO FATHER- FATHER GIVE TO KOODLOO- YOU SEE NOW-
GREAT SCOTT! THERE'S CAPTAIN CROZIER'S NAME ON IT- HE WAS SECOND IN COMMAND TO FRANKLIN-THAT CLEARS UP THE LAST OF THE GREAT MYSTERY CHESTER- WHILE HALF OF THE EXPEDITION RETURNED HERE TO THE SHIP AND DIED- THE OTHER HALF PERISHED ON THEIR WAY DOWN THE COAST- WE'VE FATHOMED THE SECRET THAT HAS BAFFLED SCIENCE FOR 87 YEARS-AND THE FEARFUL FATE THAT OVERTOOK THOSE MEN MAY BE A TERRIBLE PROPHECY OF THE DOOM THAT AWAITS US IF WE DELAY LONGER- TODAY IS SEPTEMBER 1ST JUST THINK- WINTER WILL BE SOON SETTING IN-

TALKING SECRETS?
LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

It's no secret to millions how Lifebuoy aids the complexion. And there are two reasons why. Lifebuoy lather cleanses deeply. It washes away pore-clogging impurities, freshens dull skins to radiant health. Yet Lifebuoy is so gentle the most delicate complexion thrives on it. "Patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women show it is actually more than 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps".

Old man humidity

He makes you perspire—but why offend? Bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. It deodorizes pores, stops "B. O." (body odor). Lathers abundantly in hard or cold water. Its fresh, clean scent rinses away.

Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau

YOU BET! SOFTENS 'EM UP IN A JIFFY!
WHAT A LATHER! AND WHAT A SHAVE—FAST, CLEAN AND FEELS GREAT. LIFEBUOY FOR ME EVERY TIME
120 TO 150 SHAVES IN THE BIG RED TUBE

MEN, you can't expect anything but rough, spotty shaves with quick-drying lather. But Lifebuoy Shaving Cream lather holds 52% more moisture. It soaks wiry whiskers soft for smooth, clean, easy shaves. Soothes tender skin, too. Try it.

WHITEBOY IN
HEY CHET, GET OUT OF SIGHT QUICK — HERE COMES THAT NOSEY KID, BOB WHITE! NOW, WE CAN GET HIM!
BOB, WHO HAS BEEN SENT FOR A GUN BY SHERIFF IRWIN, IS JERKED FROM THE SADDLE BY A LASSO
MEANWHILE DORIS HALE TAKES LEAVE OF THE GIRL MOTORISTS WHOSE CAR HAS BEEN STOLEN
WHAT ARE WE TO DO?
I'LL RIDE ON AHEAD AND LOOK FOR SOMEONE TO HELP YOU
GRACIOUS, THERE'S A WRECKED CAR AHEAD!
HORRORS, IT'S SLAID! HE'S UNCONSCIOUS! I'LL TAKE THIS RIFLE BEFORE HE COMES TO!
HERE COMES A CAR! I'M GOING TO FLAG IT!
SO YOU'RE THE YOUNG LADY WHO OBJECTED TO GIVING ANYBODY A RIDE!
THAT MUST HAVE BEEN SLAID WHO STOLE YOUR CAR! I'M LOOKING FOR HIM TOO. I HAVE A THOUSAND DOLLARS IN MY POCKET TO GIVE TO THE ONE WHO CATCHES HIM ——
OUR POOR CAR
WHAT IS ALL THIS?
I'VE FOUND SAM SLAID — HE'S IN THAT SMASHED CAR!
THAT IS YOUR REWARD FOR CAPTURING A DANGEROUS CRIMINAL — THANKS, I'LL USE IT TO BUY THOSE GIRLS A NEW CAR

TINY TIM
WHAT'S THAT CRASH?
CAN IT BE AN ATTACK? IT SOUNDS LIKE THE VERY FOUNDATIONS OF MY PALACE WERE BEING SHAKEN — ZOUNDS! IT'S MY MECHANICAL MONSTER — CRUSHED TO DESTRUCTION AT THE BOTTOM OF THE PIT OF DEATH —
WHAT HO! THE GUARD!
SEARCH THE PALACE FROM TOP TO BOTTOM — IT MUST HAVE BEEN ONE OF MY OWN MEN WHO COMMITTED THIS DASTARDLY ACT —
FIND THE TRAITOR! I'LL TEAR OUT EVERY RIVET IN HIS BODY AND SCATTER EVERY WHEEL AND BOLT IN HIS HEAD TO THE FOUR WINDS — GOOD GRIEF! I'M DONE FOR THIS TIME — THERE'S NOT A CHANCE TO ESCAPE!

WHAT'S COME BETWEEN YOU AND KAY, FRANK?
NOTHING, TOM... ER-THAT IS-WELL, HAVE YOU NOTICED HER BREATH LATELY? SHE OUGHT TO SEE HER DENTIST!
OF ALL THE LIES!... I'VE ALWAYS BEEN SO CAREFUL TO AVOID BAD BREATH... STILL, WHAT DID HE MEAN ABOUT ME SEEING MY DENTIST?
SO SHE DECIDED TO FIND OUT-
YES, MY DEAR, FEW REALIZE THAT MOST BAD BREATH IS DUE TO IMPROPERLY CLEANED TEETH—TO DECAYING FOOD PARTICLES IN THE CREVICES BETWEEN THE TEETH. ONLY AN ACTIVE PENETRATING CLEANER WILL REMOVE THEM!
HE SUGGESTED COLGATE DENTAL CREAM. WELL, I'LL CERTAINLY TRY IT!
YOUR TEETH SHO' LOOK WHITE AND PRETTY, MISS KAY, SINCE YOU BEEN USING COLGATE'S!
AND MY MOUTH FEELS REALLY CLEAN, TOO, RUBY!

Most Bad Breath Begins with the teeth!

Read how Colgate Dental Cream Protects You!

DON'T run the risk of letting your breath offend! It's so simple to be safe ... when you realize the most common cause! — improperly cleaned teeth!

Authorities point out that decaying food deposits lodge in the hidden crevices between the teeth and become the source of most bad breath.

Ordinary cleaning methods, which merely polish exposed surfaces, fail to remove these deposits. But Colgate Dental Cream, because of its special penetrating foam, gets deep into every tiny crevice ... emulsifies and washes away the food residue and acid-deposits that cause bad breath.

At the same time a soft, grit-free polishing agent gently and safely cleans and brightens enamel.

First Impressions ARE IMPORTANT!
THAT'S what the decorator thought when he created our Cape Cod lobby and personality apartments. The kind of a place that will make a good impression first and last.
You won't be disappointed in the 2½ room units. Carpeted floors, inador beds, all metal kitchenettes, tile baths, mechanical ventilation and soundproof walls. Fireproof building.
Your gas, light and refrigeration are included in the rentals, which are from $40 up for 2½ room units.

As Fresh as the Latest Style
That impression of refreshing newness is built right in. Everything is different. Genuine antique parquetry flooring, dull ivory walls and trim, matched corner cabinets in dinette, shining all-metal kitchens with latest type stove, elec. refrig., etc. Tile bath and shower; amazing view of lake and city; large closet facilities. A place easily molded to your individual taste. Innerspring rollaway bed, panel windows, bath and bedroom separate unit. Commissary, valet, beauty shop and drug store in building.
2-3 Rms. Very Reasonable.
1100 N. DEARBORN

What's Back of It?
The difference is immediately apparent. Cottage windows, flooded with sunlight and unbelievably fine view of the Saddle and Cycle club, Lake Michigan, and the park extension. You'll be thrilled. Bay windows in the living room, carpeted floors, tile bath, gas, light, and switchboard service; maids available; garage and parking; near all transportation; direct wires to best shops.

Paris Raises Three Major Issues for Women in Search of Hand Knitted Ensembles

Color, Yarn, and Style Are Three Basic Factors in Chic of Supple Frocks; Green, Brown, and Red Range Through Rich Shades.

By JEAN MACDONALD.

SIMULTANEOUSLY with other Paris openings may be seen the fall collections of hand knits by fashion's foremost designers. Colors, yarns, and styles are the three features on which greatest emphasis has been placed this season. Green, a popular fall and winter shade for hand knits, runs the entire gamut from dark hunter's green to the light greens inspired by the winter fields of Scotland. Brown, ranging from rich chestnut to tan, is combined with green this season as well as being popular in its own right. Reds shade from oxblood, vermilion, through the Bordeaux shades to the deep and most fashionable of violet hues Grays and grayish mixtures are combined with blues and black.

One never ceases to wonder at the untiring efforts of designers and manufacturers to create a yarn just a bit more striking and a bit more unusual than the last. Much has been said about tweeds because they are an important factor in the style scape of the hand knits. Another yarn which is featured for fall suits this season is a rather heavy yet extremely soft strand which has every appearance of angora. When the suit is completed it is only close inspection which reveals that the ensemble is a clever hand knit. Prices are items not to be overlooked this fall because the luxurious quality of the yarn far exceeds the original cost.

Two Piece Frocks Exquisitely Tailored.

At a fashion show held in New York City by one of our foremost fashion stylists, two and three piece suits and one piece dresses were given most prominence. The one piece dresses had all the smoothness of the most sophisticated Paris designed frocks, while the two and three piece suits evidenced such exquisite tailoring as may be found among the creations of the master builders of men's clothing. The sleekness of the one piece dress, with its use of rich, soft yarns and extremely simple knitting stitches, is illustrated upper left in the hand knit dress, boasting a delicate lingerie touch around the collar and vestee. The fine strands and simple stitch used in these touches are just another one of the combinations which make hand knitting a never ending joy.

In the companion picture is a new two piece dress done in two colors. It may be knitted in shetland yarn as a jiffy suit or it may be made of interesting crêpe yarn at a price to amaze the most canny shopper. From $5 to $7 is the total cost, depending upon the material! And this is knitted with yarn of a standard, trade-marked brand made by a company which ranks among the three largest manufacturers of yarn in the country.

Stripes Modify Silhouettes.

The use of two hues in the hand knitted suits is just as popular as that of a solid color. Stripes are another feature served to the fashion conscious. If they are not horizontal they are diagonal or zigzagged. There are stripes for the painfully slender individual and stripes to streamline the woman who is still devoted to the chocolate bar. But whatever its design, at least one dress in the modern woman's wardrobe must be striped.

With simplicity the keynote of style and richness the ultimate goal of yarn, the stitches used in the hand knits have never been more impressive. They are not intricate, complicated designs destined to send the most efficient knitter into paroxysms, but the kind of stitches which require concentration only so far as following the pattern is concerned. Plaits are used in front or back or on the side as the mood or mode of the dress would indicate. A novel new jiffy dress in the two piece manner has three box plaits in the front and back of the skirt and the same motif cleverly carried out in the front and back of the blouse with a well fitted waistband giving the much sought after and highly desirable snug fit.

Many knitters have found lining skirts with chiffon helps them to keep their shape. Skirts which have no pattern may be turned about without danger of cupping. Skirts having a pattern in the front and back or at the sides must be worn with the greatest care and with an eye to the durability of the yarn. These cannot be switched about at will. Front must be worn always in the front.

Among the novelty wearables women are going quite wild over are the new hand made stockings of fine saxony or zephyr wools. They are ideal for walking and for wear with tweeds. The wool is soft and warm without the bulky qualities of the heavier stocking wool and is ideal for city wear. Heavier wools may be used in clothes for active winter sports and bitter cold weather.

NEW RULES FOR CAMPUS CHIC: A 1935 COLLEGIAN'S GUIDEBOOK

- Campus going footwear features combinations in suede and lether, and good, strong, sturdy models. Strap oxfords feature perforations and low walking heels. Afternoon shoes also show combines of lethers and bow tie pumps. Fringe tongued suede oxfords, with moderately low heels, come in all colors of suede and lether.
- Small hats that may be misused or packed in small spaces are the favorite fashion in college headgear. Knitted hat-caps to match your pet sweaters also are popular.
- Lounging clothes feature flannel, flannel slacks with either a short contrasting flannel jacket, like a smoking jacket, or a third piece, a long robe also of the contrasting checked or colored flannel. Plenty of pockets, and most of the coats and jackets are double-breasted for extra warmth.
- Tailored satin sleeping pajamas, in bright blues and reds to match flannel robes, are the newest things in town. Two styles are available, one with big pearl buttons and the other with matching silk braid frogs. Pastel tones also are ready in the same neat, tailored models.
- Velvet dinner and dance dresses in simple tailored models feature short sleeves, rather high waistlines, and long, flaring skirts. Dresses shirred from shoulder seam to hemline come in all colors and dark tones of ginger brown, as well as flattering black beauties.
- Long sleeved sweaters are more popular than short sleeved affairs on some campuses. The outer sweater is pulled way up above the elbow to show the long sleeved, lighter toned sweater worn underneath.

Parents Often Harangue Child When a Firm Word Would Be More Effective

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

PAJAMAS on the floor, bed unaired, clean clothes still on the bureau, his room was a wreck!

"I don't like to keep reminding you; it certainly isn't pleasant for me. But, you see, we all want to enjoy our vacation, and we won't unless each one does his share. It isn't as if you had to make your bed and keep your room in order all the year round. It isn't fair to the others not to do so. . . ."

Here came an interruption from the son and heir:

"I get you, Mom; I get you! You don't need to give me a lecture about it." This was said in an entirely friendly manner. "You've explained all that to me a good many times. You're right, Mom; I should think you would be disgusted with me, but just tell me quickly and snappy. You know, get 'tough' with me! I know all you were going to say. Don't look like that, Mom, please. I'm not being rude. I'm sorry. I'll keep my room in order from now on."

Majority of Parents Guilty.

His mother was telling me about it.

"I know I talk too much," she said. "And Don didn't mean to be impudent. He was simply expressing his spontaneous and honest reaction to my 'speech.' I did have 'hurt feelings,' I confess, for a few minutes, and he was sorry and understood why, but I got over it. And that evening, after the house was quiet, I did a little thinking. And I had to admit to myself that I deserved the rebuke. I preach when a word would do."

I'm sure there are many of us who could sign our names to that confesson.

Doesn't that describe succinctly a fault of which the majority of parents is guilty? And I don't believe I'm exaggerating when I say "the majority of parents." In fact, I could go on and say that too much holding forth about correcting, grievances, and past misdemeanors is a fault of the majority of wives and husbands, and of teachers, too. Too many of us "preach when a word would do."

Habit Easy to Acquire.

It really is easy for a mother to drop into the habit of talking too much. She is with the children from early morning until the last gasp at night. She has a thousand things to do, and children often are heedless and forgetful. Certain things have to be accomplished. The mother gets tired and, perhaps, nervous. Worse, she begins to worry about the children's "character," thinking that this or that childish trait means weakness or a fundamental lack of some sort.

And then she talks too much. Any one of these causes, or several of them combined, is capable of tricking her into a veritable flood of words when a scant half dozen would do.

When correcting, guiding, or even severity take the

APPETIZING GOODNESS OF SPICY RELISHES IS AMPLE REWARD FOR CANNING THEM

By MARY MEADE.

WHETHER 'tis more canny to can, or not to can, sounds like something the exceedingly clever young man said to his granny—but it still is a much discussed question in kitchen circles. City dwellers usually find that their canning labor is not particularly profitable when they have to buy fruits and vegetables at regular market prices. Cooks whose gardens and orchards supply them with quantities of free materials practically always "put up" a goodly supply of canned foods against the long hard winter.

But that's considering only the regulation canned staples, tomatoes, fruit sauces, and the like. When it comes to the specialties, it's not nearly so much a question of "Can I save money by canning this myself?" but rather "Can I buy this at any price?"

Some Preserves Must Be Home Made.

Even jellies, preserves, and the simpler pickles may not prove such worthwhile canning activities for the woman whose twenty-four hours a day already are pretty full. Excellent ones usually may be purchased without too great an outlay. But when it comes to the pungent relishes and spicy fruit chutneys, well, it seems that either you can your own or go without.

Right now is canning time for most of those delightful meal accessories. Kitchens are wafting forth mouth-watering odors, blending cooking fruits and vegetables with the perfumes of vinegar and spice. And all those delectable pickling scents aren't coming from big country kitchens, either. Just wander along any apartment corridor in the city if you doubt that it isn't being done on a smaller scale by even those cooks whose window ledge gardens grow them nothing more than a few straggly petunias.

Recipes Deserve Special Mention.

While the whole subject of pickling is an entrancing one, we prefer to limit this bit of space to the relishes and chutneys. The former are, of course, usually mixtures of finely chopped vegetables, preserved with salt, sugar, vinegar, and spices. The delectable chutneys may be made from either vegetables or fruits, or a combination of both, hot and highly spiced, and of a rather thick and mushy consistency.

To take the relishes first, we've garnered some extra choice recipes which are just as well adapted to pullmanette kitchen canning as to more ample cooking regions. And here are a few of them:

CREAMY PEPPER RELISH.

1 pint ground green tomatoes
2 red peppers, ground
2 green peppers, ground
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup water
1 cup ground sweet pickles
3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup vinegar

Combine the tomatoes, peppers, and salt. Let stand a few minutes and then drain off juices. Add water and cook

GADABOUT CAN SAFELY WEAR BLACK FROM DAWN TO DUSK

By Rhea Seeger.

SLEEK and so distinctive that no well dressed shopper can resist them, the first of the sophisticated all black costumes are now ready for the fall fashion parade. All black clothes, with fine and unusual detail, they are simple enough to wear from early morning through luncheon and afternoon tea and even smart enough for an early dinner in town. Sleeves are different, silhouettes are extremely youthful and dashing; skirts are full, with a certain smooth and well reasoned out rhythm. All in all these frocks are unquestionably the smartest, slimmest things in town.

You wear them with or without furs. They'll make you look years younger, inches thinner, and quite the high fashion lady of the fall season. Thin wools, soft wools, and heavy silks—all rich stuff that drapes superbly. They make grand creations to slip into after the casual cottons and summer silks have suddenly become so unwearable.

We have sketched four stunning fall models, all found in one Chicago shop filled with similarly good looking clothes. The lower left sketch shows what shiny black galyak fur does as a smart accent to dull wool crêpe. The roll over collar and the entire chest section are of the fur. The rest of the dress is dull black, thin wool. Four tucks in the skirt achieve an ingenious bit of fullness that is just enough and no more. The flattering shaped cape has concealed straps for the arms and these hold it snugly in place over the shoulders.

The center seated figure shows a straight line coat dress for the older woman. It is exceptionally slenderizing because the black wool is ribbed in vertical lines, the silhouette is straight, and the sleeves are simple, loose, and unadorned. Color is introduced by an emerald green silk scarf tucked in the neckline. Other colors or white can be used as alternate contrasts.

Upper right—a simple dress with loads of smartness because of the extreme simplicity of the streamline. Raglan sleeves, the shirred fullness in the skirt, and the soutache braid trimming on hip pockets and collar combine to make this a particularly good street dress. The material is thin wool. The shallow, pointed collar is tied with a silk cord.

All these models are available in a Chicago shop.

● Above: Extreme simplicity of streamline is combined with raglan sleeves and shirred, full skirt in this frock of thin wool. Soutache braid trims the pockets and collar.

until vegetables are tender, then combine with pickles. Blend the other ingredients, cook until thick and creamy. Combine the two mixtures, cook for 3 to 5 minutes, and seal immediately.

HONEY BEET RELISH.

4 cups cooked beets, chopped
4 cups raw cabbage, chopped
1 cup grated horseradish
½ cup sugar
2 cups honey
Vinegar

Combine the finely chopped vegetables with the horseradish, sugar, and honey and add enough vinegar to cover. Mix well together and seal in sterile jars.

PEPPER JAM.

1 dozen large sweet red peppers
1 tablespoon salt
1 pint vinegar
8 cups sugar

Remove the seeds from the peppers, grind, and mix with the salt. Let stand for 3 hours, then drain. Simmer with the vinegar and sugar until of a jamlike consistency [about one hour] and seal immediately in hot clean glasses.

And now a cheer for the chutneys!

APPLE CHUTNEY.

2 pounds seeded raisins
7 pounds chopped, unpared apples
2 oranges
8½ pounds sugar
2 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon powdered cloves
2 teaspoons cinnamon.

Chop the raisins, mix with the apples and the juice and chopped peel of the oranges. Add the other ingredients and simmer steadily for a half hour before sealing.

BANANA CHUTNEY.

12 ripe bananas
1 pound tart apples
½ pound onions
¼ pound seedless raisins
½ pound dark brown sugar
⅓ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground ginger
⅛ teaspoon cayenne
1 cup vinegar

Peel and cut the bananas in crosswise slices. Chop the peeled apples and onions especially fine and combine with the bananas and other ingredients. Simmer for 2 to 2½ hours, stirring occasionally, and seal.

PEACH CHUTNEY.

1 pound peaches
½ pound tart apples
¼ pound celery
1 sweet red pepper
1 cup seedless raisins
1½ cups vinegar
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt

Peel and chop the peaches and apples. Cook the celery, chopped fine, in a small amount of water until almost tender and then drain. Combine all of the ingredients except the raisins and boil rapidly until the mixture is slightly thick and clear. Steam the raisins for 10 minutes, combine with the other ingredients, and seal the mixture immediately in hot, sterile jars.

Safety Bath Mats Prevent Serious Accidents in Tub

IT'S more dangerous to stay at home than to walk the streets—if we believe what accident statistics tell us! And in bathrooms the list of yearly accidents looms long.

There are safety bathtub mats of rubber. These have tiny suction cups on the underside, fashioned somewhat in the manner of the tentacles of the octopus. They operate automatically when stepped on, and thus cling tightly to the floor. In this way we have a safe spot to step on, a firm foothold when emerging from a slippery, soapy tub!

Parents Often Preach When a Word Suffices

For one thing, you often end by making a mountain out of a mole hill. You may, for example, mean to reprove your child for what you consider simply rudeness, but because you're nervous or upset you find yourself going on and on, discoursing upon respect, or being terribly hurt, or harking back to all the times he or she has been rude in the last year. And, all too often, you find yourself saying something you wish you hadn't. And frequently a real, a deep hurt will stay with your child.

Two Much Conversation May Overemphasize Minor Point.

Again, when you talk too much, you often make a trifling matter seem of grave importance. This is one of the most serious objections to the habit of allowing yourself to run on and on about some fault you want to eradicate. By endless talking you may get your values mixed and are almost certain to get the children's values mixed, too.

What had seemed to them almost unnoticeable suddenly looms up, to their surprise, as a grave offense. It is important that trivial slips in behavior should be treated briefly and as of slight consequence, and that serious faults should be dealt with more impressively.

One other and practical argument against "preaching when a word would do" is that your boy or girl may quite unconsciously become deaf to the sound of your voice. The important direction, the really necessary correction then is usually disregarded because it is lost in the multitude of words that are, most of the time, quite unnecessary.

Children can grow weary of words as well as do grownups, and when they may, at some time, show it, we should be big enough to be able to take the implied criticism and profit by it, as the mother did who was talking to me, even though we may at the moment call our offspring to account for the manner of his speech.

It Always Is Better to Err on Side of Saying Too Little.

It's better always, when you're correcting a child or even when you're talking over a serious matter with him, to say too little rather than too much. I know a husband and wife who try to catch each other up in this connection. If one is correcting the child or finding it necessary to hold forth at some length when enough has been said, one of them will use some sort of stop signal to indicate to the other that the point has been made; that the time has come to check the flow of words. At one time a slight cough will do the trick, or an interruption such as: "Excuse me a minute, John, did you put your white ducks in the wash?" A shake of the head may do the trick if it can be managed unobserved by the child.

Say what you have to say, then stop, is a good rule for parents. You are more impressive and you make your point better that way.

There Are Occasions When Serious Talk Is Necessary.

Now this advice does not mean that every situation may be met with "neatness and dispatch." There are times, chiefly with older boys and girls, when we need to sit down and talk over serious things at some length. There are times, too, when the child should have a chance to express himself quite as freely as we do, times when we have to get down to bedrock. Often a long talk will show him our viewpoint or show us his, and will clear the air. But even then, once the thing is threshed out, we should stop talking. Stop as two good friends, however, and then talk about other, lighter things, or both go about our usual work or play.

Listen to yourself. Do you preach when a word would do? Life will be much more pleasant for you and the children if you try not to do it.

It's the sixes to twelves who are most apt to do things that make us talk. We have a fully written booklet about these ages, called "Living With Our In-Betweens: Children from Six to Twelve." A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring it to you.

Snapshots from Paris

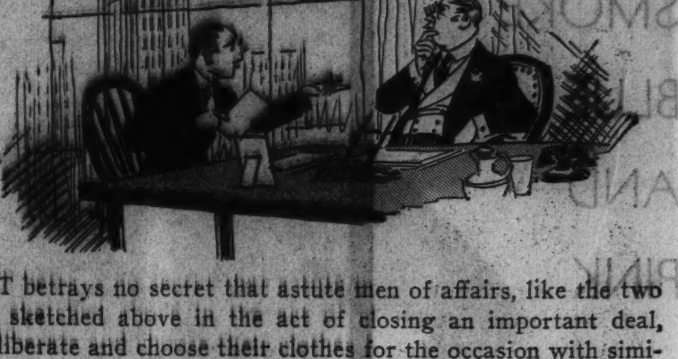
Bridesmaids at Lady Daphne Finch-Hatton's wedding wore girlish frocks of forget-me-not blue Indian muslin with pink rosebuds and forget-me-nots outlining the necklines and trimming their big blue hats.

Silk tweed is the latest recruit to sports fashions in Paris. Schiaparelli makes silk tweed jackets to alternate with the wool tweed jackets of sports suits. Baronne Eugene de Rothschild has one and so has Kay Francis.

Rumor says that dark green, a dark horse color up to now, is going to go over in a big way this fall. You'll find the shade in Italian Renaissance paintings.

Avenues of Fashion

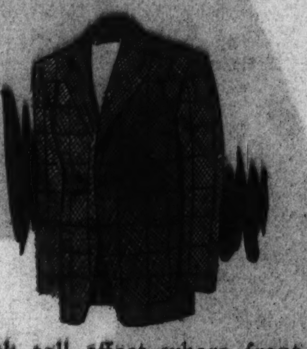
If you would like information about modes for men, especially about articles described in this column, write to the Men's Fashion department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Illinois. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your letter.



IT betrays no secret that astute men of affairs, like the two sketched above in the act of closing an important deal, deliberate and choose their clothes for the occasion with similar zeal and acumen. Now that vacation days are fading in the haze of an Indian summer sun, the attention of all men is being directed to fall wardrobes. A great deal more may be said about a man's town outfit than that it is good. It can be distinguished. A man may be well groomed without being overdressed. An outfit that will accomplish just this is recommended below.

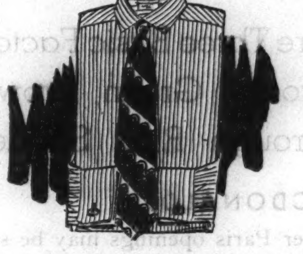
HIGH ROLLED

The specific details of a new three-button, single-breasted jacket add much to its interest this autumn. The fish mouth effect of the notch is achieved by the collar width being perceptibly wider. The high roll effect where front meets lapel over the top button is a characteristic. The jacket itself is natural in its lines, avoiding exaggeration of shoulder, chest, or waist. Pockets without flaps are an appropriate detail, and either center or side vents are present. The model itself is well adapted to the clear cut worsted favored for this season, and is shown here in an oversquared sharkskin worsted. Herewith is suggested some well selected, appropriate companion apparel.



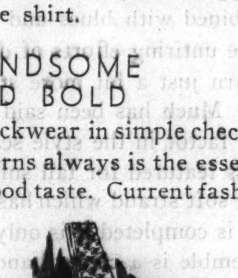
WIDESPREAD

Worsted type fabrics require more formal looking accessories than the rougher surfaced tweeds or cheviots so well adapted for country and campus clothing. The laundered collar to match shirt is much favored for this reason. In a simple, evenly striped pattern with a collar model that leaves a wide space at the knot opening, it is the perfect example of an appropriate shirt.



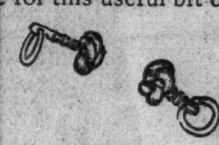
HANDSOME AND BOLD

Neckwear in simple checked patterns always is the essence of good taste. Current fashion calls for a somewhat bolder interpretation of this favorite in a definite hound's tooth check.



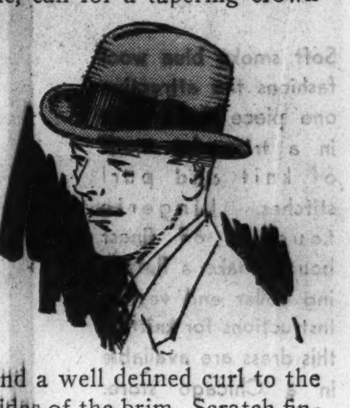
KNOT ON THE CUFF

Whether more men are again wearing double shirt cuffs which require new and smarter links, or vice versa, a gold knot design is the new note for this useful bit of jewelry. Incidentally, this was an old Victorian favorite when cuffs were a "must."



SCRATCHES BACK

The Homburg shaped hats (really named for the town in which they first were made), to be smart as well as authentic, call for a tapering crown and a well defined curl to the sides of the brim. Scratch finish felt returns to favor in this shape in shades of brown, green, and medium gray.

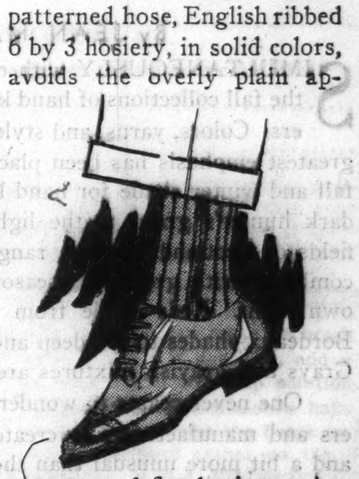


LAST NOT THE LEAST

A smart appearing shoe need sacrifice none of the all important matter of comfort. The rather straight English custom last, in a quarter brogue blucher model with perforated toecap, is a combination of all shoe essentials.

CLOCK FANCIERS

For those who prefer unpatterned hose, English ribbed 6 by 3 hosiery, in solid colors, avoids the overly plain appearance of flat hosiery. An embroidered clock on the hose gives a much needed touch of color at the ankle.



HOLD-UP

Trousers must be cut and proportioned properly for appearance and comfort. With a trouser of correct length the proper break above the shoe is possible only when braces are worn.

Whitewash Lends Brightness to Basement Walls

A COAT of whitewash on the basement walls is about as inexpensive a way of brightening them as may be found. It makes, moreover, a sanitary covering. In applying this whitewash, keep the coating thin, so thin that the surface to which it is applied may be seen through, while the film still is wet. It will dry opaquely, and the results are better than if a heavy coat of whitewash is dabbed on.

Detroit Women to Shoot in National Skeet Meet

AMONG the women to be represented at the first national skeet championship, to be held at Solon Village, Cleveland, O., is Mrs. Sidney R. Small of Detroit, Mich. She was the only woman named as a member of the all-American skeet team when 15 were selected for the 1935 honors. With a 20 bore gun she won the great eastern states championship at Lordship [Conn.] in 1933 and 1934, and she holds not only the women's championship of her state but the Michigan state crown as well.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By Eleanor Nangle

If you're browned by the summer sun, dramatize your darkness with rouge, lipstick, and nail polish in a vivid and stunning nasturtium shade. This trio will give an extra dash to your fall ensembles by harmonizing with the latest in autumn wardrobe colors.

WELL, here you are, practically at summer's end, and if you've had any sort of a summer at all, you're starting fall and winter with a face quite unlike the one with which you greeted the spring. Perhaps you're mahogany, mebbe you're still pink and white. But, in any case, you're looking a little different. The powder you used last spring isn't the powder you can use with success this fall. Neither is the lipstick. There are the changes in your own skin tone to consider, and then there are the fall costume colors.

You'd better get busy and hunt up different and better makeup accessories. If you're tan, and brunette as well, couldn't we interest you in a lipstick, a rouge, and a nail polish all in a warm, vivid nasturtium tone? It's utterly stunning for the sun babies, and comes dark if you want to be splashy, or light if you want to stick to the conservative. It's beautiful, too, with white or pastels, which always set off tan magnificently.

The lipstick, in either ivory or bronze case, depending on whether you want the light or the dark, is one of those entirely adequate ones. The color remains true as the hours pass, with no veering off into purples or blues. It stays on well and spreads smoothly.

The rouge is of the cream variety. A smidge on your finger tip, a bit of deft blending, and lo! your cheeks are infused with a warm color that makes your eyes more dramatic and your face in general discreetly attractive. This rouge doesn't separate into troublesome particles. It's really creamy.

The nasturtium polish to dress up the finger tips is as attractive as the rouge and the lipstcks. If you like vivid polish, and your hands are tanned, you'll probably like this to give a fillip to your fall ensembles.

All these aids to fall beauty fashion are sold in several shops around town. They're the products of one of our most famous houses.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Worthy Cases of Need Ask for Aid of Readers; Simple Articles You No Longer Use Will Give Others Wanted Service.

By Sally Joy Brown.

"DOWN, but not out. Starting all over again at 60." Thus Mrs. E. ends her recent letter to me. Perhaps you'd like to read all of it. Maybe you can supply her need.

"Dear Miss Brown: Do you think one of your readers might have an old 2 or 3 panel screen? My husband has a relief job, and we are living in furnished rooms with a small porch. I have not been well for some time, and feel that I could rest much better if able to sleep on the porch. This I could do if I were able to obtain a screen. We are slowly but surely getting on our feet again, and after this storm is over I hope to be able to help others again."

If you no longer have a need for your screen, won't you let me give Mrs. E's address?

Mrs. O. M. has appealed to me for assistance for her young son. The boy won a scholarship to a school in another state, which provides tuition, room and board for four years. Transportation has been arranged, but the boy needs a trunk and clothing. His father works three days a week, receiving $2.19 per day. The family is not on relief, although there are several other children. A suit, size 18; shirts, size 13½ or 14, and shoes, size 7, will help prepare the boy for school.

From a case worker: "Would it be possible for you to supply a cook stove for a family on the west side? We have been assisting Mrs. D., a deserted mother with three small children. She is a neat, clean housekeeper, whose main interest is centered in her youngsters. She is at present occupying a 2 room apartment which is adequately furnished with the exception of a cook stove. Mrs. D. has exhibited her resourcefulness by improvising a cook stove from a large boiler, placed on two bricks, with which she uses coal. This manner of cooking is most inconvenient, however, and not at all adequate."

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a cripple without any income whatsoever. I am desirous of obtaining a Bible commentary [preferably Adam Clark's]. I would be thankful and grateful if one of your readers could supply it.—T. S."

Mr. G. writes from Ohio:

"I am an old man in poor health and unemployed. I am in need of clothing and a pair of shoes. I thought perhaps your readers might have some laid away in an attic, and that they might be kind enough to send them to me. I wear a coat, size 37, trousers, size 33, and shoes, 8½ or 9. I thing that by looking a little respectable I might be able to obtain a position of some kind. I surely will be grateful and encouraged if you are able to help me."

Mr. G. is able, if necessary, to have clothing altered to fit him.

I am anxious to obtain some baby clothing, a bed and a buggy for another case. The baby's father lost his job several weeks before its birth, and before that time did not make enough to accumulate any reserve funds. Their previous child was born dead, much to their sorrow. They are anxious to have this child. The address is on the far south side. M. M. is the worker on the case.

Hair Beauty Is Dependent on Right Shampoo

Every Woman Must Ask Best Care in Washing, Scrubbing, and Rinsing.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

TODAY I want to begin with a complaint against shampoos in hairdressing salons. In certain salons, I should say, for there are beauty parlors in which shampoo service is excellent. But there are a great many salons in which the work is far from satisfactory. The operators simply will not take the time to scrub the scalp sufficiently, and they will not give the hair its needed rinsings. They, like a number of their patrons, think that if the wave is set attractively that's all that should be asked.

Well, perhaps it served in the past, but not any more. Personally, I don't think it served in the past, for a clean scalp is the beginning and the end of hair beauty. No carelessness in shampoo treatment is excusable. It's up to the women clients now, however, to demand better shampoo service. It's up to women to learn and know exactly what goes into that shampoo lotion that is spread on their hair. No evasive answers need be accepted from operators.

Clients in Position to Demand Scientifically Perfect Shampoo.

And clients should demand that the scalp be scrubbed until it tingles and that the hair be rinsed and rinsed and rinsed. You women have this power in your hands. You can correct the sloppy shampoo simply by avoiding the places in which a poor one is given. Boycott such places, in other words. It's time now for action, so that the faulty shampoo operator may be run out of business. Price has nothing to do with it. If a salon advertises a shampoo at such-and-such a price, no matter how minimum it may be, you clients still have the right to demand good service.

I think it a good idea for every woman to shampoo her own hair once in a while at home, just to prove to herself how well a shampoo can be given and how much nicer the hair looks when it is thoroughly cleansed, scrubbed, and rinsed. I do it myself, meanwhile patronizing good shops. Nevertheless, I find that when I use a good soap reduced to liquid form, and one of those comparatively new shampoo brushes, and scrub like the dickens, and then turn on the shower to rinse my hair, it looks and feels and is cleaner than it's been for some time under professional care. Naturally, no one is as interested in your head and hair as you are yourself. Nobody cares much how it is going to look. If women would do this service for themselves once in a while, believe me, the shops would quickly get on to the need of better shampoo service, and they would quickly make it their business to give it.

Difficult Hair Cases Require Special Shampooing Treatment.

Now a word about shampoos, for difficult hair cases, as overly bleached and overly dyed hair. For overly bleached hair you must know what goes into the shampoo. A soap with a high alkaline content must not be used. You want a good castile soap, preferably with an olive oil base. Liquify the soap. You don't need to be afraid to be generous in its use. Scrub the head and hair, working up a good lather, rinse this off, and then pour a second soap solution on the hair, scrub, and work up lather again. Then rinse.

If you haven't a shower over the tub, use a spray. It's the only successful way I know of getting the necessary rinsings. You can't use too much rinse water. Then rub the scalp and hair with several coarse towels in turn. All this scalp rubbing with hand and towel is going to turn out a better looking head of hair. Hair that has been dyed or extremely dyed should be put through a similar treatment.

If the hair is especially oily, again you want loads of scrubbing and soap solution repetitions. It is of corrective value to add a bit of borax to the liquified soap. Or, you may add a teaspoonful of ammonia to the liquified soap preparation. Rinse the hair again and again.

Olive Oil in Soap Solution Benefits Excessively Dry Hair.

If the hair is dry, add a tablespoonful of olive oil to the soap solution during the shampoo. Preface the shampoo by soaking the scalp and hair with olive oil the night before the shampoo. Or, if that is inconvenient, an hour before the shampoo, anyway. I have an acquaintance in the beauty business who recommends castor oil rather than the olive oil for the pre-shampoo soaking. Her own hair is lovely as a result of the castor oil use.

Gray hair is in a class by itself. The shampoo can make or break its beauty. If it is dry hair, add a bit of olive oil to the soap solution, as suggested for the bleached hair. If it is oily, don't use the borax or ammonia. Depend rather on the thoroughness of the shampooing itself. A bit of blueing added to the last rinse water is all this type of hair requires. And then the gray haired one is asked to rub and brush her hair dry. She should keep away from dryers. A good castile or coconut oil soap is her best soap bet. She can put a gorgeous look of life into those silvered strands or iron-gray ones if she adopts the hair brush as her best friend and ally.

Women Should Be as Careful About Shampoo as About Wave.

This shampoo business still remains one of the beauty worlds left to be conquered by a good many women. Most women are meticulousness itself about the wave upkeep, but this important item of clean hair and clean scalp is not gone into thoroughly at all. But now one's head is being peered at, hair beauty is judged not by the coiffure, important as it is, but by the look of radiant vitality to the locks. You don't get that from a hairdressing. You get that polished, vital appearance of hair largely through the scalp maintenance. The average woman's scalp is not in a good healthy condition, due to her long practice of refusing to disturb the wave between professional shampoos, and not giving much care about how her shampoo treatment is given. It's just one of those things on which we women must get busy now, what with at least 90 per cent of the hat's success depending on hair beauty, and also what with the current "tops" position of hair as an index of chic and charm.

NEW TRANSPARENT SEALS PROVIDE PERMANENT PROTECTION FOR JAMS AND JELLIES

Transparent Disks
Snugly fitted
Secured with Rubber Bands

An entirely new type of seal for jellies and jams recently has been contrived from cellophane. The transparent discs first are moistened in water then snugly pressed down over the tops of the hot, filled, jelly glasses, and finally secured with a rubber band. The moistened paper makes a certain and permanent seal, and the price of each package, complete with rubber bands and labels, is remarkably small.

Accessories Clinch the Collegian's Claim to Chic

By Rhea Seeger.

WHAT the well packed college trunk contains: besides the frocks and suits and coats and the prize extra, a fur coat, the accessories that will see you through the coming first semester are really what counts. Smart costume accents will maintain your reputation as a well dressed member of the crowd. So will the sweaters that you will buy by the half dozen lots . . . sweaters that you will wear virtually from Monday morning till the last class of the week. The skirts that go with these sweaters are also vitally important.

We've sketched a few of the many finds in the college shops . . . brand new stuff, all of it, just unpacked for your especial notice and favor. No. 1. . . . The Flannel Robe, and rating the capitals too, for what would you do without one! A snug, cozy, swanky affair of soft, smooth flannel in checks filched from the tattersall vests of the bookies at English race tracks. The trick is this, with this sort of a checkered costume. You can buy trim, tailored slacks of a solid color, then for a beginning select the short coat of this tattersall checked wool that is cut and fashioned like a masculine smoking jacket. This short affair can be alternated with the long robe illustrated.

Flannel Robes Cover Satin Pajamas.

Another bright idea is sketched in No. 2 . . . satin sleeping pajamas in high colors to match exactly the flannel robe of your choice. For instance, if your flannel robe is dark blue, you'll find dark blue satin pajamas. . . . You pull off daytime clothes, get into your sleeping pajamas of satin, slip into a tailored flannel robe to spend the next two or three hours in study, and when the ordeal is over you are ready for night and deep slumber. These pajamas also come in pastels.

No. 3. . . . It just isn't possible to wear any of the newest college clothes without the proper underlayers—not rigid things that make you look unbendable, but supple, supercomfortable numbers such as these we have sketched in Nos. 3 and 4. These are for daytime as well as evening clothes. They will give you perfect streamlines.

Two Is Minimum Number for Skirts.

No. 5. . . . Buy at least two skirts to go with your sweater collection, more if you can stretch the clothes allowance. Choose one cut in circular formation such as this particular model of soft tweed wool. In No. 14 we see a straight, slim skirt with pockets—it's another good style to have as the lower half of your sweater uniform.

No. 6. . . . Daytime shoes with buckle and strap come in dull lethers and colored suedes. No. 7 . . . the perfect campus oxford, with low walking heel, in lether and in suede and lether combines. No. 8 . . . a hand knit sweater, in a knockout new pattern. Notice the new fullness of the sleeves, the lether covered buttons, and the cutout or cut up lower edge. It comes in two stunning colors, a heather brown and a gray blue. No. 9 . . . a typical Brooks sweater, simple and wearable. It's available in nearly every known color. No. 10 . . . twin sweater set, reversed in good 1935 campus style . . . the light colored, long sleeved cardigan on top of the much darker toned under sweater. Both have long sleeves. The dark sleeves are showing, with the light colored outer sleeves rolled well above the elbow.

Dance Slippers Claim Low Heels.

No. 11 . . . another single sweater with a roll over collar that buttons down the back, with four tiny pearl buttons. The color is bright clear yellow. It's grand with separate green or brown and even dark red skirts. No. 12 . . . low and not so low heeled dance sandals in silver, gold, and white that can be dyed to match your dance dresses. No. 13 . . . afternoon pumps with a bow tie and moderately high heels.

No. 16 . . . a real find, a three piece sweater outfit in colored, fuzzy wool, with a straight skirt, a slipon sweater, and a cardigan jacket ribbed around the cuffs and waistline to make it fit smoothly. It's simply breath taking in pale beige or the star sapphire blue tone. No. 17 . . . Moire silk lounging pajamas either in all one color or two contrasting shades.

All these clothes have been sketched in a Chicago shop.

Small Talk of New Fashions

- With the coming of colored shoes we are introduced to colored hosiery. Red, green, brown, and navy are the leading shades. Wine red goes with gray and wine tones, pine green with light browns and greens, rust with greens and rust tones, and navy with bright blues and navy. Copper tone hosiery is the best shade to wear with bright colors during the early fall. Use discretion in buying hosiery, for it will show more this fall with all the skirts getting appreciably shorter, especially for daytime wear.

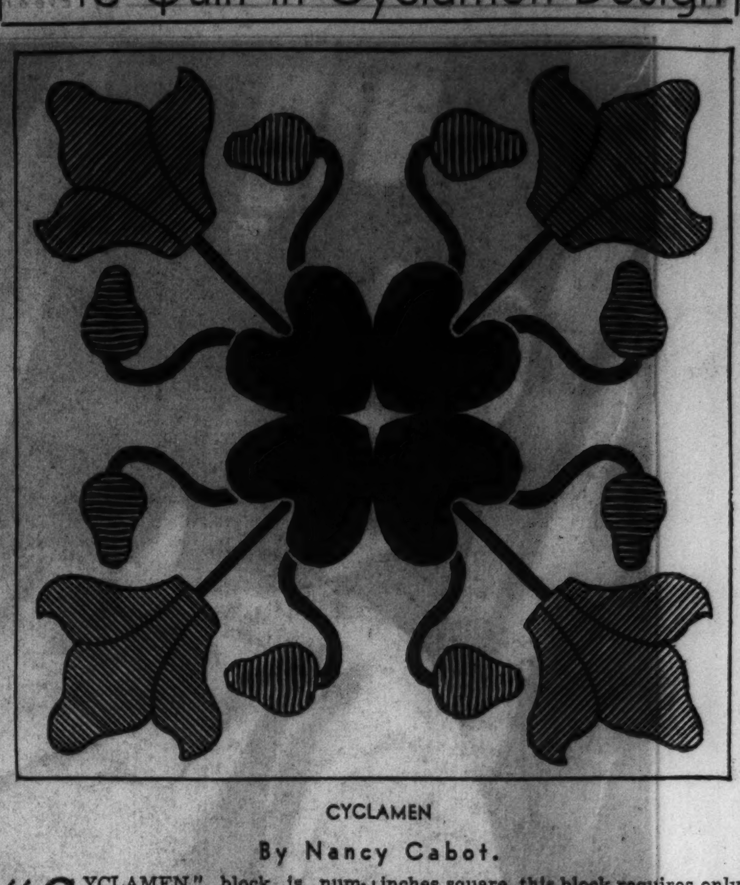
- Three-quarter length swagger coats with dashing fullness in the back section are the smartest extra coats for fall. They are equally flattering to short and tall silhouettes.

- Velvet and velveteen are going strong. Almost every fall wardrobe boasts a velveteen dress, either in two pieces or in one piece cut to look like two.

- Wool jersey in a stunning shade of iron gray makes some extremely smart daytime dresses as well as outstanding models for college wardrobes. Simple blouse effects and plaited skirts are used, with contrasting velvet ascots and matching buttons and belt buckles.

- Separate short jackets that fit snugly around the ribs and waistline and just cover the hipline are tremendous successes for college wardrobes as well as general wear wardrobes. Velveteen in all fall colors tops jaunty plaited plaid wool skirts. A Glengary bonnet hat, with ribbons streaming down the back, gives a quaint Scottish accent.

Rose and Green Lend Beauty to Quilt in Cyclamen Design



CYCLAMEN

By Nancy Cabot.

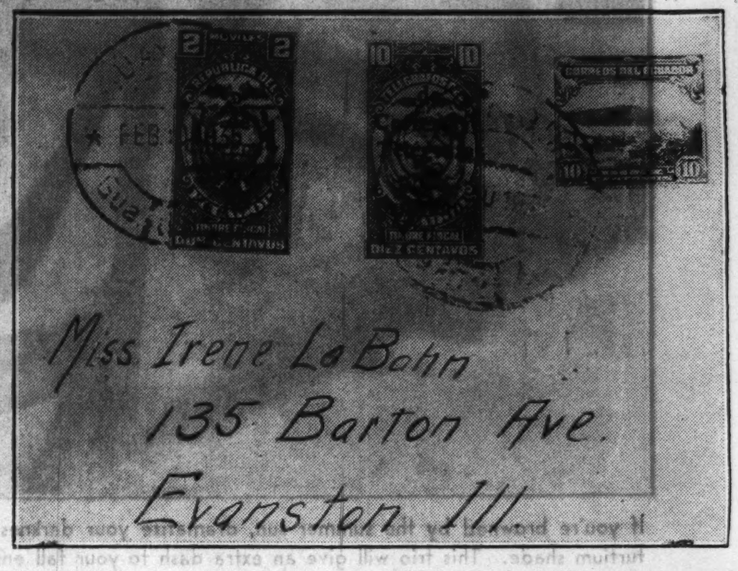
"CYCLAMEN" block is numbered among the older quilt designs which were used for "best" spreads. The applique patches are not difficult to sew. Rose and green are two colors which always make a successful quilt and should be used especially with this Cyclamen design. Measuring 18 inches square, this block requires only 10 plain and 10 applique squares. A 6 inch border of rose finishes the quilt.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold as the Stamp Exchange contains offers to buy and sell. Always enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This cover shows a recent stamp of Ecuador at the right and two semi-postal stamps at the left. The use of the semi-postal stamps is obligatory, and the revenue derived from their sale provides a fund for the rebuilding of postoffices. Wm. Le Bahn of Evanston supplied the cover.

THE introduction of coils during the issue of 1902-'03 was the greatest advance in stamps since the adoption of perforations in 1857. The demand for coiled stamps taxed the capacity of the bureau of engraving and printing, for early coils were made by hand from strips of 20 stamps, and forced the development of the Stickney rotary web-fed intaglio press, designed to print stamps on a web of paper and coil them as desired.

The early requests for coils came from manufacturers of vending machines, who foresaw a public benefit as well as a private profit in vending four 1 cent or two 2 cent stamps for a nickel at every depot, drug store, etc.

Request Made for Unperforated Sheets.

Since the ordinary stamps were too weak at the perforations to operate in the machines, a request was made for unperforated sheets which the vending company could strip and perforate as desired. The 1 cent and 2 cent [shield type] values were placed on sale Oct. 2, 1906, and are to be found with the perforations of several private companies. Stamp vending machines were not a great success, but there was a great demand for stamp affixing and mailing machines, and in an attempt to aid them the postoffice department issued some stamps in coiled form.

The 1 cent and 2 cent values were issued in endwise coils on Feb. 18, 1908, the 5 cent followed, in the same form, on Feb. 24, and the 1 cent and 2 cent were issued in sidewise coils on July 31 of the same year.

These were all perforated 12, the same as the regular stamps, and collectors must use care when buying copies, for all have been generously "faked" by trimming the perforations from one or more edges of ordinary stamps.

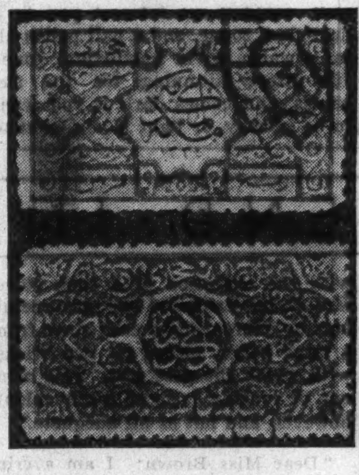
Four Cent Value Issued in May, 1908.

The 4 cent value was issued imperforated early in May, 1908, and the 5 cent on May 30 following. Twenty-five sheets of the former, comprising the total issue, passed through the Detroit postoffice May 15 to the Schermack Mailing Machine company, which perforated and coiled the stamps and delivered 6,000 to the Burroughs Adding Machine company and 4,000 to the Hamilton Carhardt company. Not a single copy was saved in imperforate form, and very few were salvaged by collectors after the Schermack perforation was applied. Quite recently a Taylorville, Ill., collector found a copy on the original cover, but before the warning reached him had soaked it off and destroyed the cover.

The 5 cent value was ordered through the Indianapolis postoffice, but in this case collectors fared somewhat better, for about 2,000 out of an issue of less than 15,000 stamps have been preserved. The 4 cent and 5 cent stamps of 1902, with private perforations, or imperforate in the case of the latter value, are among the rarities in 20th century United States stamps.

Hejaz.

Hejaz, now part of the kingdom of Saudi Arabia, issued stamps from 1917 until 1925. The first issues look very much like small oriental rugs and contain nothing to aid the beginner in determining the country of origin. The designs are taken from various examples of Arabic art, for the most part from pierced or carved panels at Cairo, Egypt. Interlacing ornament, both geometric and of curved lines, such as is found on these stamps, was forced upon Mohammedan countries by an injunction in the Koran which forbids the picturing in any form of any living thing.



Cachet Notices.

The centenary of Marengo, Ill., will be observed with a cachet on Sept. 13. Send stamped and self-addressed covers, unstuffed and unsealed, as cachet will be printed, with 1 cent in loose stamps for each cover for forwarding by Sept. 10 to Waiten S. Beardsley, Box 13, Woodstock, Ill.

Marking the 60th anniversary of the first fast mail train between New York and Chicago, the Parker Cachet system, Myers building, South Bend, Ind., will apply a hand colored cachet to all stamped, self-addressed, unsealed and unstuffed, 6¾ size covers received by Sept. 12. Limit two covers for each order. Add 1 cent in loose stamps for forwarding for each cover sent.

Album Page Titles.

A useful accessory, consisting of titles for album pages, has been introduced by H. E. Harris & Co. of Boston, Mass. More than 1,800 country names and other titles are printed in a clear, modern type face, on gummed paper, and sold in handy book form. The use of such titles on blank album pages will make it easy for collectors to keep their pages neat, especially those collectors whose talents do not include hand lettering.

Stamp Exchange

DEAD KINGS AND PRESIDENTS ARE sometimes honored by their nations on mourning stamps. The United States started this in 1862 by issuing the now very scarce Black Jack Jackson. Recently there appeared four famous mourning stamps for King Albert [Belgium], Hindenburg [Germany], King Alexander [Jugo-Slavia], Marshal Pilsudski [Poland]. Most mourning stamps are "good" and become more valuable later. We offer all these four as well as "Saar Comes Home" plebiscite stamp for only 10c to approval applicants. Aristocratic Foods Require Special Etiquet

Miss Bartlett will be glad to answer questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior. For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your letter.

By Helen Bartlett.

IF the aristocrats of the food realm can bear up under the humiliation of our scrutiny for a short time we will endeavor to discuss the proper method of attack as prescribed by etiquet. Such choice morsels as lobster, artichokes, oysters do present a little different problem in table manners. Because these delicacies are such aristocrats and are relatively difficult to procure, prepare, eat, and are found to be comparatively expensive, they do not enter into the daily menu of the multitude, and seldom make an appearance on the family board. That is doubtless the reason why the accepted routine isn't more generally known and why the inexperienced seem skittish and shy away from the prospects of eating lobster, for instance, before the public gaze.

Choose a secluded corner in your favorite restaurant, prop this paper up before you for protection as well as information, order a fresh lobster or steamed clams, and fall to.

Two Forks, Knife and Claw Cracker Are Supplied.

With the lobster will be supplied two forks, a dinner size and a tiny, small pronged fork, a knife, and a claw cracker. If you will remove the body meat first you will find that the simplest way and will be so eager to continue that you won't complain about the hard shells protecting the delicious claw meat. This is how it's done.

With the small fork, remove the two sections of the body meat of the lobster by putting the fork into the flesh near the tail and lifting out one section at a time. Then, with the dinner knife and fork, eat this portion by cutting off pieces large enough for a bite, dipping each delectable morsel of the meat into the hot, melted butter sauce.

Claw Cracker Enables One to Eat Meat in the Tips.

The large claws usually are cracked before being served, but if this hasn't been done adequately, you will find it necessary to resort to the claw crackers. The claws must be cracked sufficiently to enable you to dig the meat out from the tips with the tiny lobster fork. For the small claws nothing can improve upon the efficiency of the fingers for liberating the meat.

Steamed clams demand a different technique. The clams are served in a large bowl, in their shells, and piping hot. Even more manual labor is required here. First, with your fingers, extract the clam from its shell, grasping it firmly by the neck. You also will be served with some bouillon and hot melted butter. After you have removed the film from the neck of the clam, dip it into the cup of bouillon in order to remove any grains of sand that may have remained. Dip again into the drawn butter. Then, without further ceremony, plop it into your mouth, still clinging to the neck [of the clam, of course]. The neck of the animal is not to be eaten, so enjoy it up to that point and then discard the rest.

Storm Sashes Should Be Painted with House

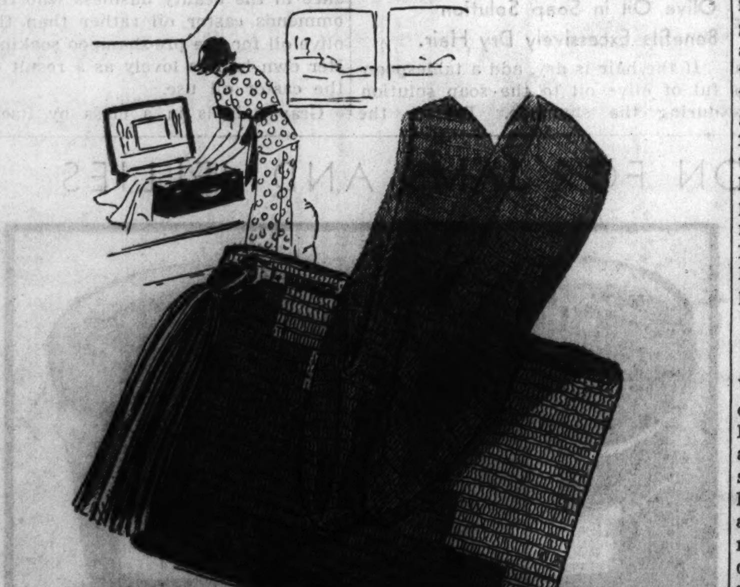
IF YOU are having your house painted this fall, don't forget to have the storm sash and storm doors painted at the same time. In this way you will have an attractive ensemble.

Designer Predicts Trend of Women's Fashions in Soviet

ACCORDING to Miss Elizabeth Hawes, one of the leading designers of women's clothes in New York, who recently staged a fashion show for the benefit of Russian women in Moscow, at the invitation of soviet officials, the majority of Russian women have permanent waves and tinted finger nails and a few of them are wearing hats. About 80 per cent wear berets. She said it would be only a matter of time until a distinctive Russian style of dress would evolve and that it probably would be something of a compromise between the peasant dress and the dress of modern western women.

A 14 room house is being completed near Chattanooga, Tenn., by the sole labor of Mrs. Hattie Houston. She has been working on the structure since 1934. The entire cost is not expected to be more than $2,500.

Traveler Welcomes Crochet Slippers; Case Doubles as Purse



By Ellen Bruce.

COMFORTABLE crochet slippers for traveling—the kind which may be folded up and tucked in a compact little case—are something every modern traveler needs. Most mules and bedroom slippers require a definite amount of space, but these slippers may be tucked into virtually any available nook or cranny of an overnight bag or suitcase. The slippers may be made one color, while the bag may be crocheted in two colors. When the traveler is not en route the bag makes a most satisfactory purse, with a neat zipper closing. Three ounces of one color yarn and one ounce of a contrasting color make up the set.

These comfortable bed slippers are also grand and warm for the people who arise at the crack of dawn before the fire comes up.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the slippers and case illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 2.

Emphasis is again placed on the necessity of making the new lawn as early as the autumn season permits. With the favorable rains there seems no reason why this autumn is not the best for starting lawn seed in many years. Thoroughly rake out all crab grass, apply a copious amount of plant food, reseed, and roll. New areas should be well prepared, but use care when applying organic manure, to see that they thoroughly are decayed before using. Use the best grass seed to reduce chaff to a minimum. Autumn sown seed should grow to about three inches long to enable it successfully to pass through the winter. Madonna lily bulbs are now available. They should be planted at once. Plant them two inches deep, in full sun, and leave them undisturbed as long as the plants do well.

Tuesday, Sept. 3.

Be sure to move evergreens with a ball of soil. This is an excellent time to transplant them. Make the hole large enough easily to accommodate the roots, water them well after planting, syringing the foliage occasionally. These plants do best in suburban sections, not in congested city areas. All bedding plants are at their blooming height at this time. Keep the beds trimmed and the plants in perfect order. Tie up gladiolus plants that seem likely to fall over. Trim the showy alternanthera to keep it in bounds—especially where it is used as an edging plant. Watch the vases that they never suffer from lack of water. Keep the yellow leaves of the water lilies picked off to enhance the appearance of the pool.

Wednesday, Sept. 4.

Mulch newly planted evergreens. When pruning shade trees be sure to cut all branches close to and parallel to the trunk. Paint all wounds above an inch in diameter. Young street trees should be pruned at least nine feet high. Do not allow a crotch or division in the trunk to remain, but try to retain the best division, staking the tree if necessary to encourage a straight growth of the trunk. Trees carefully cared for in their youth will need little attention when they become veterans. Order all stock that is wanted for fall planting, including bulbs and perennials.

Thursday, Sept. 5.

Transplant hardy phlox after flowering, and at intervals of three years. The outside growths of a clump are the best to plant, for they are more vigorous than those growing in the center. Divide the clump into several parts and plant them in good, rich soil in full sun. Iris still may be divided and transplanted. Leave at least five eyes to a division. Transplant oriental poppies, as they are dormant now. Do not move hardy chrysanthemums and other autumn flowering perennials until spring.

Friday, Sept. 6.

Window boxes filled with small evergreens for outdoor use give an interesting and pleasing appearance to the home. The most useful and dependable kinds are the American arborvitae, red cedar, and Norway spruce. The plants are inexpensive and may be planted now, the box being placed in position later on, as desired. The Madonna lily placed in front of delphinium makes an excellent combination.

Saturday, Sept. 7.

When drying straw flowers cut them when they are in the half open stage. Remove the leaves from the stems, bunch them, tie, and hang them upside down so the stems will be straight when dry. Do not cut down the foliage of peonies because it is needed in the proper development of the roots. An application of plant food will be beneficial. It is an excellent time to construct that cold frame or hot bed that has been long desired. A two sash frame will provide sufficient space in which to start many plants, and a frame is a fine place to keep potted, bulbous plants for starting. Arrange to place the frame in a sunny spot protected on the north from wintry storms. Keep the entire garden in the best condition by removing dead leaves, cutting back rampant growths, trimming edges of beds. Keep vines in place.

Juvenile Cooks May Be Taught to Like Foods

Unappealing Dishes Often Thought Attractive if Youngster Plays the Chef.

By Virginia Garberson.

COOKING to most children is a deliciously exciting new venture. That first batch of grainy or sirupy fudge is positive ambrosia to determined young cooks. A boiled egg is doubled in charm for the youngster who is allowed to time its cooking, and even spinach may be imbued with new mystery and promise to the small eater who has carefully washed and cooked it himself.

Whether [and when] to teach children to cook is a question each homemaker settles for herself after weighing its advantages against the initial trouble it means for her. The first cooking lessons always mean a certain amount of added time in the kitchen, patiently outlining and supervising the making of some simple dish. With small Peter or Mary shooed out to play, she can turn out the same product in a fraction of the time.

Cooking Provides Constructive Employment for Small Children.

But on the other hand she frequently finds that the returns more than justify this beginning investment of time and patience. Cooking provides constructive employment for small hands and brains, and often an amazing amount of enjoyment. Also, the mother who feels that family tasks should be done on a coöperative basis realizes that only by instilling early this interest and knowledge of cooking can she later share actual responsibility in her kitchen.

Still another advantage of bundling small figures into aprons has been illustrated aptly in various nursery schools about the country. At Iowa State college a tiny kitchen with diminutive equipment was installed for the use of youngsters of pre-school age. When some one's small son or daughter rebelled against parsnips or broccoli, up they went to the wee cook to be set to cooking the very food they objected to so strenuously. In almost every case the excitement of being permitted to cook won over the small objecter.

After Simple Things Are Mastered, Worst Is Over.

Following such simple instructions in kitchen art as cleaning and cooking vegetables, cooking eggs, and squeezing fruit juices, the child of 10 or 12 probably is ready to begin more complicated dishes. Simple puddings and even cakes are good beginning lessons, as is the mixing of ingredients for ice cream or gelatin desserts and salads.

Later, as these dishes are mastered [and loftily passed on to the yet younger members of the family], these young teensters may be initiated into the mysteries of pie crust, angel food cakes, and even simple jams and jellies. The main points for the grown instructor to remember are probably these: a simple, standard and tested recipe, careful outlining and discussion of the procedure, and a sharing of the feeling that cooking is not only part of the child's necessary knowledge, but great fun to boot.

Whisk Brooms in Pastel Shades Are Highly Decorative

TODAY the fact that an article is useful is no excuse for its being unattractive. The days of the old clothes brush or whisk broom—the one that was always tucked away on the top shelf when not in active use—are over. In its place appears its modern cousin—every whit as efficient, but with the added feature of real beauty. In pastel shades, with raffia loops by which to hang them, these handy little brushes are extremely inexpensive and are a decorative addition to any bath or boudoir. They are available in one of the loop department stores.

Modern School Sees a Daily Fashion Parade

Wardrobes for Higher, Even Secondary, Education Rival Famous Forty's.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—One thing that impressed me most on my last visit to the United States was the clothes of the school and college girl and her tremendous activities on the social plane. Here was something that was of the first importance to millions of girls and their papas, for I felt sure that all these clothes must put a considerable cavity in the budget of a père de famille.

I had a vague notion, lugged along through the years with memories of my own school days, that a couple of middy dresses and a flock of white underwear, black stockings, and sturdy shoes were about all the style story of school life. Blame it on the war, or any other easy scapegoat, but times have changed, and the high schools and colleges in America today are scenes of style and dress parades that have as much variety and importance as those of the Famous Forty in Paris.

Following Budgets Give Basic Clothing Needs of School Girls.

I decided to do some research on dressing girls for high school and higher education. This article is the result. I interviewed mothers, teachers in schools, stores with departments catering to trimming up education, and the girls themselves. From all the information that I accumulated, I compiled the following budgets, covering the requirements of the girl in ordinary life for her school year. The allotment that mothers, daughters and the like consider necessary in the way of clothes to get an education is pretty strenuous. Mothers tell me that it is not only school hours that must be considered, but the girl's place in community and cultural interests. Movies, dancing, sports, dinners, and whatnot have to be dressed for.

"You're simply out of it," girl after girl told me, "if you haven't the clothes for the places you go."

High School Girl Living at Home Should Spend About $200.

For high school, when a girl lives at home, the total outlay may be brought within $200, and on this she may have everything a girl needs to queen it in her social world. The modest figure for such a bewildering number of clothes is due to the great prevalence of bargain centers throughout the country. The high school girl's wardrobe begins with the skin, and she needs, my experts say:

3 slips to wear under dresses, two for daytime and one for evening, average cost	$7.00
2 corsets, this to allow frequent washing	2.00
4 sets of panties and brassiere	8.00
6 pairs of silk stockings, one fine	5.00
1 pair of gymnasium socks	.50
3 pairs of pajamas, or nightgowns	9.00
1 tailored woolen bathrobe	3.00
1 pair of bedroom slippers	2.00

This comes to a total of $36 dollars, and the high school girl is ready to get into her dresses.

In the way of practical school clothes, she simply has to have this ensemble:

1 woolen sports skirt, about	$ 4.00
3 washable school blouses, about	6.00
1 sleeveless pullover sweater to wear over the blouses, about	2.00
2 twin sweater sets of cardigan and pullover, about	12.00
1 dark woolen dress with collar and cuff changes, about	8.00
1 beret, about	1.00
2 pairs of practical shoes, about	7.00
1 good warm polo coat, about	20.00
Or
1 fur coat, about	40.00

This list prepares the girl for the wear and tear of education, and amounts to about $60 without a fur coat, $80 with a fur coat.

Recreational Wardrobe for High School Girl Really Inexpensive.

For afternoon, movies, and such simple pleasures, the high school girl needs:

1 silk afternoon dress, about	$ 8.00
1 good suit, about	10.00
1 dressy blouse, about	2.00
1 pair of dressy pumps, about	3.50
1 smart hat, about	3.00
1 dressy hat, about	2.00

This raises the allowance for clothes $28.50, in round and simple figures.

That brings the wardrobe up to evening clothes, and these, I am assured, need not be extravagant at all, but they must be sufficient in quantity. The school girl needs:

2 evening dresses, one of which will have some sort of sleeves, about	$10.00
1 grand evening dress, about	12.00
1 pair of evening slippers, about	3.50
1 evening coat if she has no fur coat, about	10.00

This adds up to $35.50, or $25 if there is a fur coat to pinchhit for evening.

Numerous Accessories Raise the Clothing Allowance Over $20.

Accessories are numerous. The school girl needs two purses, at a cost of about $4; two pairs of gloves, costing about $2.50; a pair of mittens, at 50 cents; handkerchiefs to the tune of $2; three scarfs, two wool and one silk, $3; one small evening bag, $2; one pair of gym shoes at $2.50, and one bathing suit at $3. Total will be about $21.

The girl who goes away to college needs better quality clothes, and many college girls pay $35 for the twin sweater and knitted skirt ensembles they all wear. All along the line, although they have about the same wardrobe, these girls pay almost double, so I am told. Seventy-five dollars is the price of a fur coat, at the minimum. Every college girl needs two silk dresses, not necessarily new ones, to wear to the evening meal. She must have a grand new evening gown for her Christmas vacation and for the prom. In northern schools the girls often wear ski suits for daytime sports and even for classes. This is extra. The college wardrobe, on the hoof, costs about $400.

Vacation Love Affair Seldom Is Serious; Best to Take Interlude with Grain of Salt

Summertime Romance Most Often Interlude of Mutual Attraction Only.

By Doris Blake.

THEY'RE beginning to arrive! Reports on the broken summer romance. Each year history repeats itself in regard to post-vacation letdowns, and in the identical manner.

"He said he'd phone. He wrote down my number. I've waited and waited for a call. Should I write him again?" Etc., etc.

The complaints from girls outnumber those of the boys after the summer season is over. But boys do write that they thought they met the one and only, and were encouraged to dance and dine with the maid of the summer mist, only to return home and find that there was a rival more firmly implanted.

Romance Was Good Time While It Lasted, So Why Grieve?

It's disappointing, all right, girls and boys! But you did have a good time while it lasted, so don't prolong the agony by phoning again or writing again, as the case may be. One turn-down on your return to town must be taken as a sign that the girl's heart is otherwise tenanted, or the boy's, and that's that. There are girls and boys aplenty to act as substitute heart ease for the time being.

It might have been your good luck to be that isolated case whose summer romance had more than a brief duration. More likely your record will be like that of a thousand others of your sex, forgotten boys and girls.

Don't hold it against a person you met on vacation that he said tender things to you, even made love to you. A little moon madness was part of your vacation fun, wasn't it? This request is made because girls sometimes get sour on the whole sex, or boys become likewise afflicted with a cynical attitude because of the vacation aftermath.

Mistakes in Conduct Can't Be Rectified by New Meeting.

If you made a mistake, which some of you did, in letting boys get a bit too familiar for the short acquaintance between you, don't try to right said mistake by trying to inveigle the chap into seeing you under more favorable circumstances. It fails to work. Once you've established your character with a youth, that's the impression most likely to remain. The thing to do is to let that little lesson seep home and, for the long winter ahead, resolve that you won't lose your head so foolishly again.

At this time we begin to receive reports of real tragic outcomes of summer follies. What can be done about the girl who entrusted herself too completely to a youth, is not for us to decide. We refer to the type of mistake that may leave a lifetime impression.

Our object today, however, is not so much to rehash the post-vacation wails and woes as we meet them annually. Rather, it was to remark that there is a party season ahead, and the idea may not have gone around as generally as we wish that the young women of the better type have simply turned "thumbs down" on promiscuous behavior. They're still not so rigid as their grandmammas. Nevertheless, the girls aren't letting a chap, the first time out, pull any of the outmoded mauling stuff.

Sensible Girls Kiss Boys Only If They Are in Love.

We don't pretend to argue that kisses aren't exchanged without engagements having been discussed. They are, and plenty of them. And, perhaps, there's logic in the plea of a miss who wants to know how she can tell whether she loves a boy or not unless she has been kissed by him. But, at least, the question of whether she loves him does arise before a smart young woman allows herself to be mauled and petted.

What definitly has gone out of vogue is letting that chap you just met, and who saw you safely to your door, extract a reward for his chivalrous deed. There aren't any more dark hallway wrestling matches, if we may so describe the amorous scenes. Instead, you may linger a moment in said hallway and laugh and chat and say that you'll be seeing each other again soon. But you're not sealing the bargain right away with a kiss. That's something to look forward to.

Unwise to Display All Attractions the First Time.

The wise young ones figure that it's just as well to keep the boy guessing a little longer. It's not a new thought, of course. It's an old plan practiced successfully by the famous vamps of history. They simply do not endow a passing acquaintance with all the lures they own. There's a tomorrow [evening] and again a tomorrow evening and if you keep that youth on the griddle, so to speak, he's more likely to think you're worth hanging around for.

You see, young women, there's an ugly word that is used among boys to describe the girl who succumbs to familiarities with no more than an acquaintanceship upon which to base them. And whether it's the general seriousness that has grown out of the depression years or not, we don't know, but the truth of the matter is that young men are liking again and liking heartily that girl who manages to preserve her self-respect under any and all circumstances.

We talked only yesterday with a man who is in charge of a young men's group, and he has confidences from these young men to bear out his statement that the current younger generation of males is becoming pretty censorious about girls. They're not, as a matter of fact, much different from the men of all generations who loved best the girl who could achieve and maintain popularity without submitting to familiarities.

A Plaint

By Eleanor Jewett.

O, to be sick in summer time
Is not a bit of fun for me!
I stay in bed while squirrels frisk
And scamper through the apple tree.

The lazy summer clouds roll by,
The leaves make castles in the air—
And that is all that I can see
Although I stare and stare and stare.

A bird sings somewhere out of sight,
I watch and hope that he will fly
Where I can see him, though I stretch
I only can see leaves and sky.

And sky is such a lonesome thing,
So big—so empty in its blue—
O, to be sick in summer time
Is just the saddest thing to do.

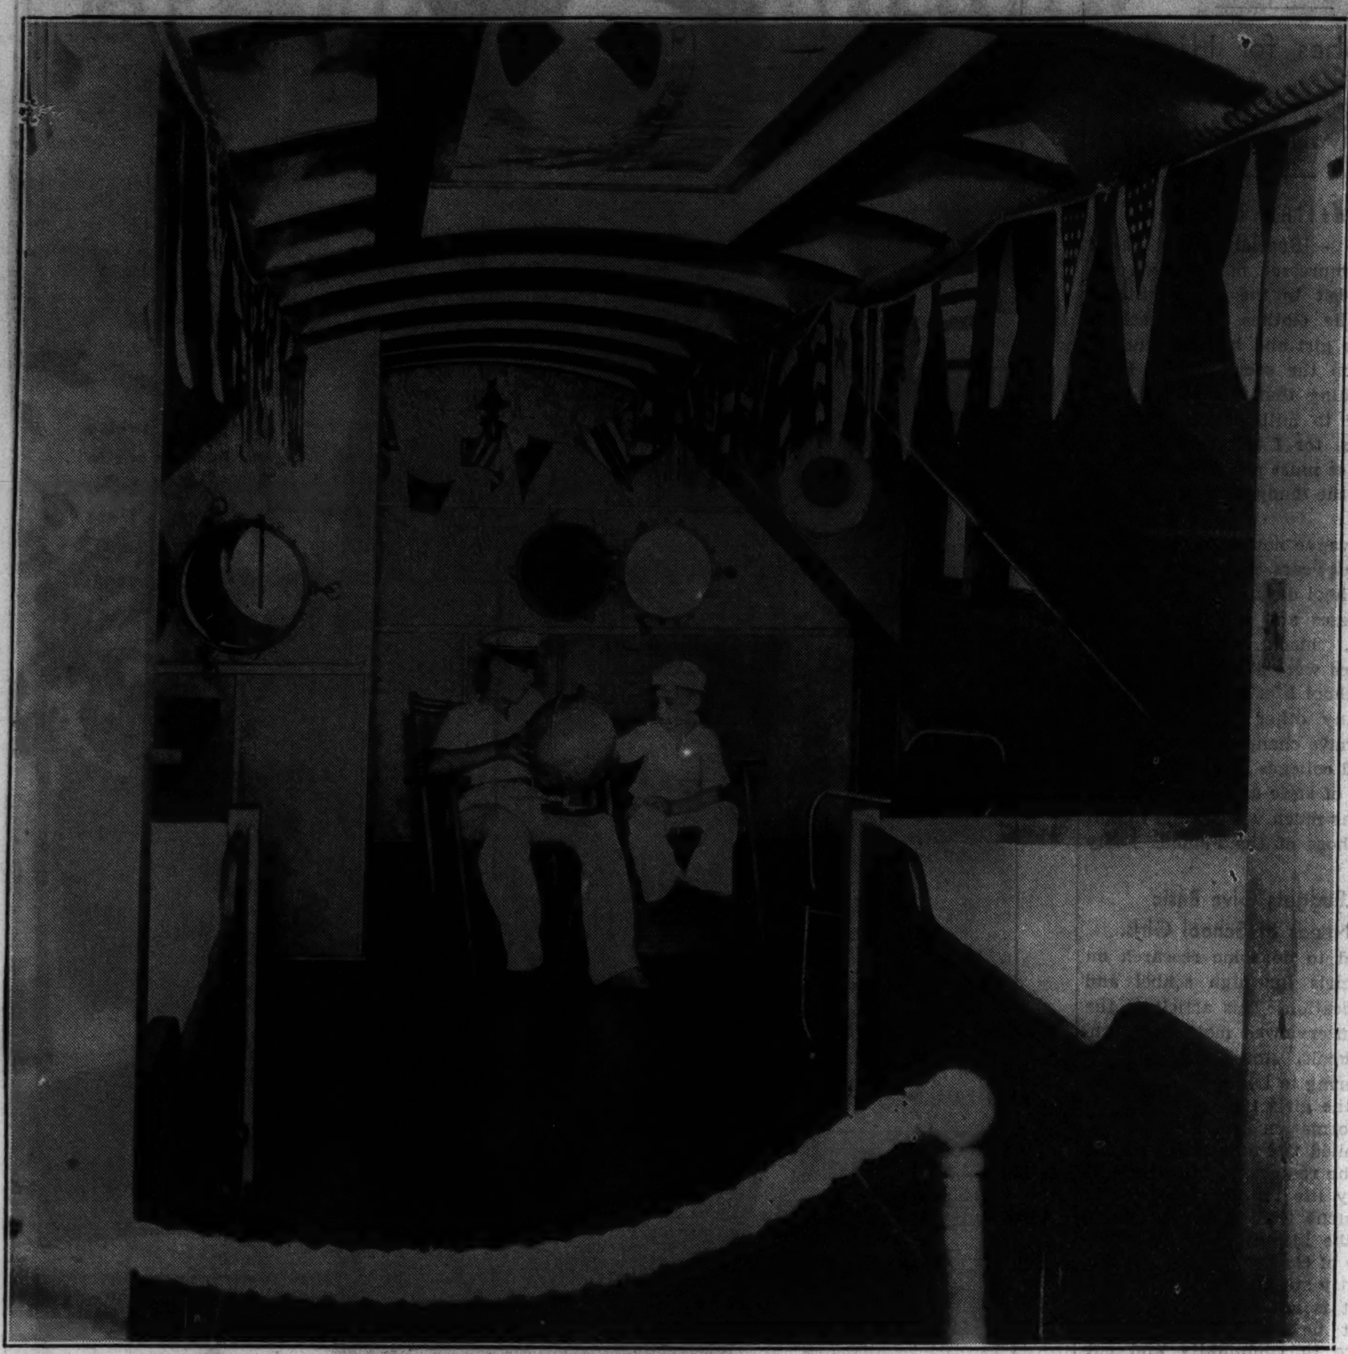
Realistic Ship Cabin Rooms Convert Attic Into Delightful Quarters in Both Summer and Winter



Here we see the built-in bunks, the walls with recesses for books, radio, desk, closets, and storage space. There is a ship's skylight above, regular ship's portholes, and small lavatory and closet at the extreme end. Architect for the remodeling, William F. McCaughey, Park Ridge, Ill. Handsome use of attic space may thus be provided — when space is sorely needed.

For those who are concerned over the care and upkeep of their floors, a booklet by Louise Bargelt, "Keeping Floors Flawless," is 3 cents by mail and 2 cents at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower.

By Louise Bargelt.

"SAILORS' DELIGHT" might well be the name for these ship-cabin rooms, just finished and shown in today's illustrations.

More room was needed in the Lawson home, so the attic was studied with that keen, "inner" eye of which poets tell and the spaces aloft charted by a competent and ingenious architect.

The entire floor area in the attic was 11 feet by 32 feet, and it lent itself handsomely to the new plans.

Just an ordinary, old fashioned garret it was, hot as blazes in summer, cold in winter. Yet the day I visited these ship rooms, one of the hottest days on record, these upper spaces were breezy and actually cool!

A regular ship's skylight and regulation ship's portholes allow the winds to sweep through, and heavy insulation keeps the heat out. This same insulation also will keep the heat in this coming winter.

[Ventilation and insulation are features which must be given any attic space, if it is to be really comfortable for living purposes.]

The approach to these cabin rooms is by a narrow stairway, with heavy, nonskidding treads and ship's rope for hand rails.

Interior Decorated to Resist Hard Play of Active Boys.

The floors are of battleship linoleum, the walls of ⅝ inch pine plywood, the joints covered with screen mold. Instead of white paint for these walls orange shellac is used as the most practical finish in anticipation of the hordes of small boys whom these rooms must entertain. The upper ceiling, however, is painted white and the carlends finished in mahogany.

There are two built-in bunks, with built-in lights for reading. Other built-in assets include bookcases, radio case, study desk, lockers, large closets, and storage shelves. In the wheel room there are wide built-in seats.

[Here again, in the wall spaces, we see cleverly solved the ever present problem of providing sufficient space for boys' play, work, and study paraphernalia.]

At the extreme end there is a small but compact and modern lavatory and closet.

Illusion Created of Real Ship and Ocean Coolness.

The illusion that one is on a real ship, far from sight of land, is created by the perfection of details—the genuine portholes, the life preservers, the ship's bell, and laced canvas. And with the breeze sweeping through it is easy to imagine that on peeping through one of the portholes there will be a stretch of blue sea and flying gulls, and sky and water meeting on a far horizon.

A perfect spot for rainy days and sunny days, for winter, summer, all the time and any time. A room solely for the boys and their friends, not to be shared with any one except on "special invitation."

Incidentally since parents must live the floor has been soundproofed—a good protection against those distracting noises which do result on occasions when two or more boys find themselves faced with a little leisure and privacy and a good time ahead.

The fun of planning and watching this unique ship's cabin evolve is equaled now only by the fun it is yielding the children and their host of friends.

Next week other pictures of modernization will be shown, illustrating further interesting results achieved in the modernizing of the Lawson home.

And speaking of what's new:

In remodeling your already built home, or in the building of your new home, there are weather tight windows now available in a number of different sizes, with their sashes of solid aluminum or bronze. They come in units which are completely assembled at the factory, and their rustless metal sashes are burnished to give them an attractive appearance. They require no periodical painting and costs of maintenance have been reduced to a minimum. Special screens with frames and screen cloth of bronze or aluminum also may be had, and where two or more windows are side by side special bronze mullion trim may be employed, thus reducing mullion widths.

This type of window comes with sash in the frame and hardware attached so that it may be easily and quickly installed. The sash may be divided with muntins as desired, and, it is claimed, sashes slide up and down at all times, trouble-free of sticking, binding, rattling, shrinking, or swelling.

If you are interested in incineration there now are built-in incinerators on the market which operate on a new principle, that of an automatically controled draft.

There is a large fire door, above and below which are air ports and intakes. These air ports are hung with ordinary flap dampers which are automatically controled by the air in the chimney. At the peak of burning the dampers close. As the fire diminishes the dampers open, allowing more air for complete combustion.

Solid brick is used with these units in place of grates and there is a heatproof glass in front of the fire door, which allows one to see how the fire is burning.

The hopper, or receiving door, is oblong, of gleaming enamel in gray or ivory, with chromium fittings—a smart door to take its place in any smart kitchen.

If a home has but one chimney this incinerator may be built at its base or operated from out of doors. And its cost is priced so low that it is well within the reach of the average home owner.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Wednesday morning at 10:15.

Adviser Gives Description of Genuine Walnut

Cites Its Qualities and Tells Purchaser How to Select Furniture.

"What's Wrong with Your Rooms?" a booklet by Edith Weigle, tells of attractive ways to arrange furniture in any room in the house. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

By Edith Weigle.

LAST week we discussed mahogany as a fine furniture wood. Now, let's look at walnut and its good qualities, for it, too, is a member of the royal family of cabinet woods. First, how can you recognize it? How can you be sure you are buying real walnut and not some other wood?

American walnut has a naturally light brown tone, varying to a chocolate color. It is medium in weight and it may be identified easily by the pores. Examine, first, a table top or the head board of a bed and notice all the series of tiny dots. These are the pores and are thus visible because the wood has been cut against the grain. If the cutting has been made with the grain you'll see many fine lines rather than dots. These pen lines in the grain are the pores again.

Diagonal Cut Shows Pores as Series of Short Dashes.

The third way of cutting this wood is to do so diagonally, the pores being cut across on a slant. On such a surface they will appear as a series of short, tiny dashes. If you are getting true American walnut the pores will be evident to the naked eye in one of the three positions mentioned.

Sometimes a piece of furniture will be tagged "combination walnut and gum" [or walnut and some other wood]. This may really mean that you are buying mostly the other wood, it being used for the entire framework of the piece. Inquire about this, for it is important to have a walnut framework if you desire permanent strength and rigidity.

"Walnut Finish" Cheapest Type of Furniture, Never a Bargain.

Again, you'll see the label: "Walnut finish." This may really mean you are buying some other wood entirely, merely the stain or finish being of walnut color. This is the cheapest type of furniture and never is a bargain, no matter how little you pay for it.

If a table or chair is tagged "all walnut" it should mean that all the exposed parts of the framework, the legs, stretchers, and similar parts, are of solid walnut, while the broader surfaces may be of walnut plywood. Plywood is excellent for bed head and foot boards, for tops, fronts, and sides of buffets, dressers, and for table tops. It usually is made up of alternate layers of walnut veneer and cross banding with a hardwood lumber core or center. It is light in weight and may be made extremely lovely because of the use of beautifully patterned veneers, while it is, at the same time, exceedingly strong. Plywood panels are a durable method of furniture construction.

Purchaser Should Examine Pieces for Wood Construction.

When you get a walnut bed, examine the posts or legs and the side boards. Be sure another wood has not been substituted here. Ask the dealer. In tables, if the legs are of another wood they may soon become rickety. This holds true, also, of the back legs of dressers and of the rear legs of chairs. Too often another wood is slipped into these places and given a walnut finish. But if you are paying for walnut you should be given it.

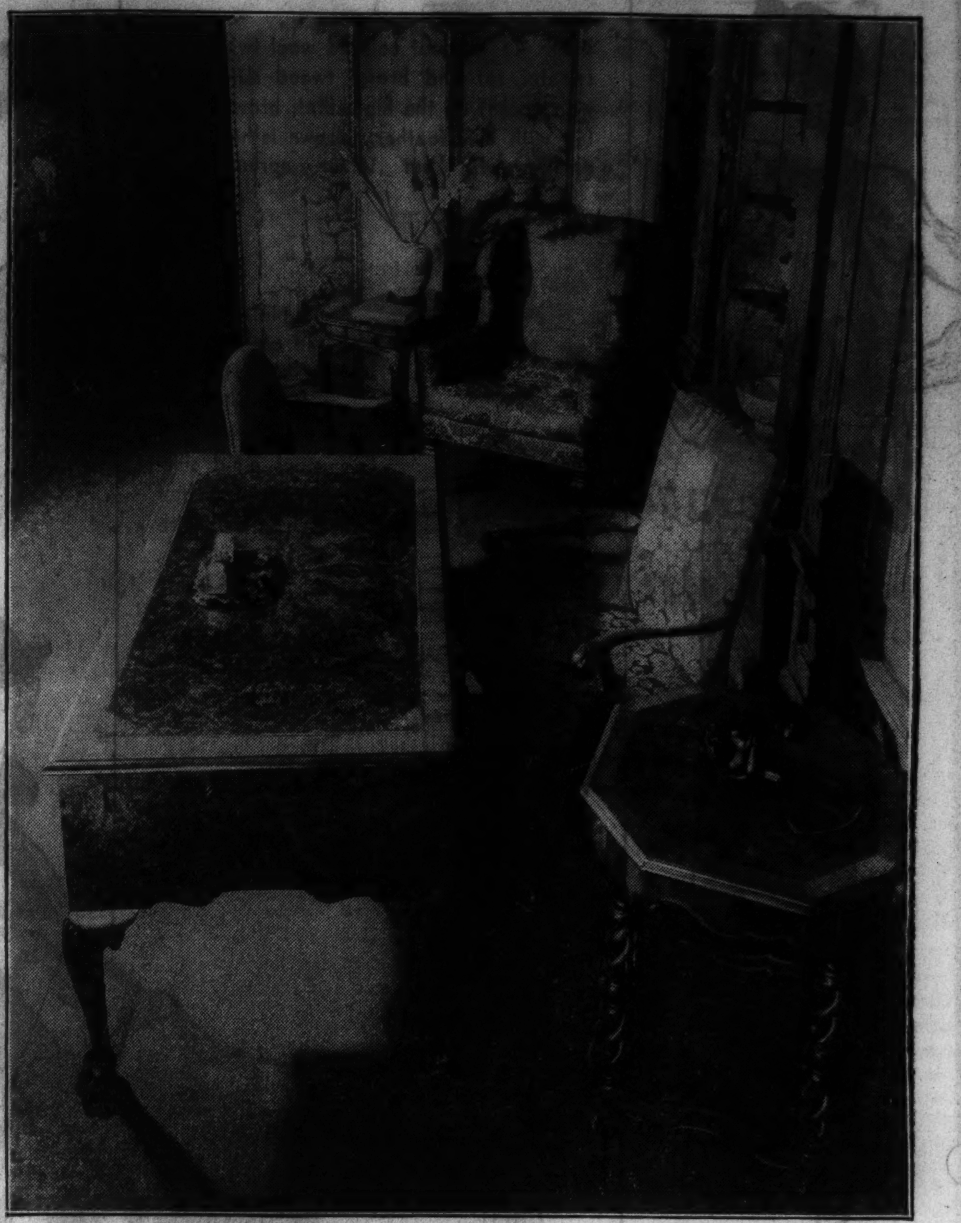
It is noted for durability, resisting decay, and insects.

It takes the knocks of use, even rough treatment by children.

Dust, grime, and finger marks do not show. It does not become cloudy and is easy to clean.

The picture today shows a handsome desk, chair, and table in walnut, the table top being of beautifully matched burl veneers.

WALNUT A BEAUTIFULLY PATTERNED WOOD



The furniture in this picture illustrates the beauty of walnut as a cabinet wood. The top and sides of the desk are of beautifully patterned and matched burl veneer, the color a warm, soft brown. The legs are solid walnut. All of it has richness and variety.

Furniture Must Harmonize with Colors of Room

"Color Magic in Your Rooms," a booklet by Claire Winslow, explains how to work out your own color schemes, how to bring beauty to the drabbest interior by means of pleasing hues. Price, 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

NOW that summer days are almost over we come in, figuratively speaking, from outdoors and look about at the rooms we have not paid much attention to for some time. Fall and winter may mean a few changes—a new desk here, or a comfortable couch there, or new draperies, or lamps.

But before you buy anything decide on the color scheme for the room, for it is of vital importance to its beauty. Drab backgrounds, like drab people, are boring. They won't attract your friends. No matter how handsome your furniture, if the upholstery fabrics and your rugs and walls are not carefully planned with a nice feeling for pleasing color contrasts and harmonies, it will not be shown to advantage.

Because we've received a lot of letters from readers asking for definite color schemes, we give the following, choosing tones that are particularly good this fall and that will be easy to find in the new drapery fabrics, in upholsteries, in rugs, and in wall papers. [Our booklet, mentioned in the small black type above this article, will give further aid.]

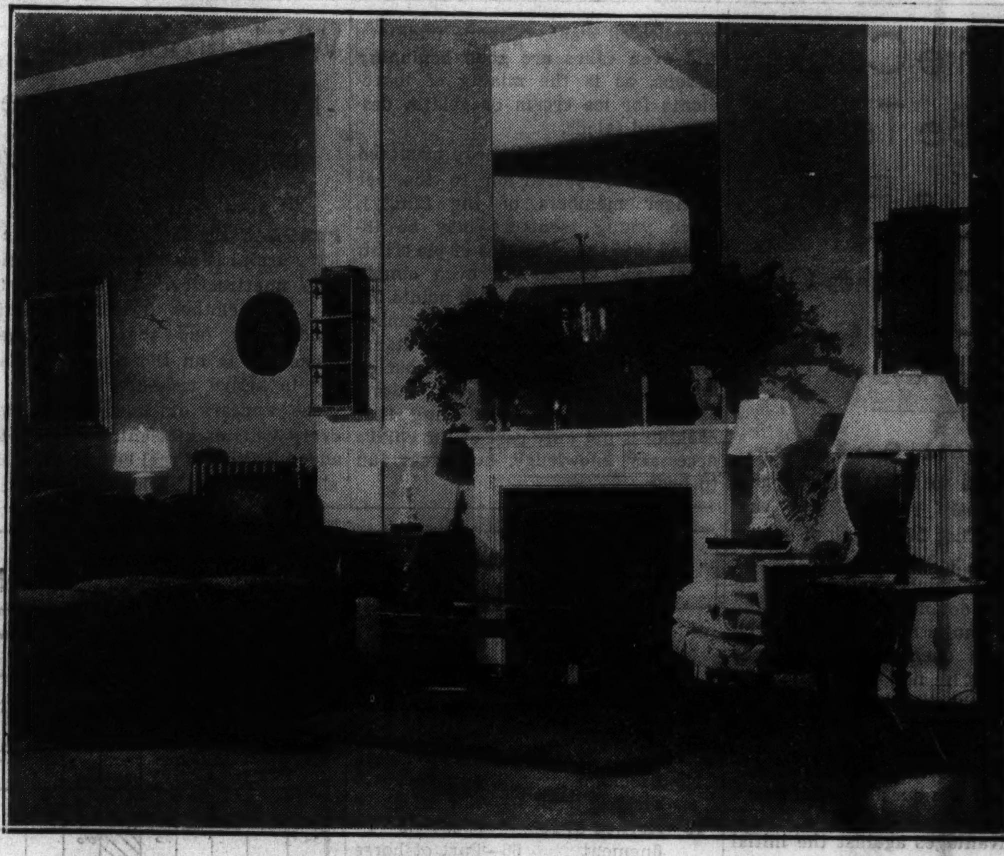
The large mirror panel above the harth is stunning in its absolute simplicity. Because of its reflecting quality it adds a feeling of depth and space to any interior.

The coffee and chair side tables are of the same wood as the commodes, the chair, and sofa, mahogany.

GROUPED FOR DRAMATIC CONTRAST



The grouping of the fireplace furniture in this charming living room shows the effectiveness of plain, solid colored walls as background. Note the beauty, too, of the white woodwork as a foil to the dark woods of the tables, commodes, chair, and sofa, and the effectiveness of the huge mirror. All of the pieces shown may be bought in a Chicago furniture store.

HOUSE REPAIR AND CARE

Mrs. Bargelt will be glad to answer questions pertaining to house upkeep and home modernization. Please enclose a stamped, self addressed envelope with query.

Many people hesitate and postpone reroofing a house when it is really necessary, because of the mess and fuss attendant laying a new roof and removing the old shingles. However, it is often possible to lay a new shingle roof directly over the old one, and in this way expenses and mess are elimated and the house given extra insulation—more coolness in summer and greater warmth in winter—by the double thickness of roof. The work should be done by a good contracter, however, who can advise in this matter, and prepare the old roof properly for its new shingles. If the method outlined is not advisable, a reliable man can be depended upon to explain and state just what method should be used.

If one wishes to tile an old fashioned bathroom floor without raising its level, the following method can be employed: Take up both the top and the subfloors and set a new subfloor between joists which have been cut down a little. Then pour concrete on the new subfloor to the desired level and lay the tile.

Household Queries

Answer: I suggest you use long, floor length draperies of pink ruffled silk voile, made criss-cross fashion, and loop them back with green ribbons. These would be charming over ivory Venetian blinds. Throw rugs of green and pink chenille. Pink lamp shades. A bedspread of ruffled green glazed chintz with a small pink and white pattern, and use this same material for your dressing table and chair covers. Alternate the covers, dressing table scarfs, with ones of solid green linen.

Query: "I am trying to get away from the rust and green color scheme I've been using in the living room for so long. I am told it is completely out of date now. What would you suggest in its place? I am going to re-cover the two rust lounge chairs I have, but will have to continue with my green broadloom rug and dark green davenport. I can get new draperies if they are inexpensive. Would chintz be suitable in the living room?—G. J."

Answer: It is not difficult to get away from the old rust green combination. I'd work in brown as a substitute for the rust, and also use some beige and bright yellow. First, choose the drapery material. A lovely, sunny yellow glazed chintz with a splashy design in browns and greens would be perfect, and use a green trimming. If possible, have a slip cover made of this same fabric for one of your chairs. Upholster one lounge chair in chocolate brown and have the seams outlined in beige welting. Do the other in beige with the seams in brown. An inexpensive pottery lamp with a bright yellow base and beige shade would be a pretty touch.

Answer: Yes. It is a nice idea, but not necessary to have them in both rooms. Many people have them in one room and not the other.

Query: "We have a long, rather narrow hall in our apartment. It has only one small window. Can you suggest anything I can do to make it all look more interesting?—R. T."

Answer: If the hall is papered use a light toned color such as cream white, peach, or clear yellow. Have little shelves placed in the window frame, next the glass and on these arrange small pots of trailing ivy and pieces of colored glassware to catch the light. Do not use either curtains or draperies. Then, along the walls at regular intervals hang colored prints or etchings. If they can be framed alike it will give a unified, delightful effect. But that is not necessary.

Odds Are Against Italy, View of Military Experts

Below: Topographical map of Ethiopia as reconstructed from what are considered the most authoritative maps available on the subject. The mountainous nature of the country and the lack of roads, as revealed on the map, explain why Italian military forces would face a difficult undertaking in attempting to penetrate the country. Mountain ranges, rivers, lakes, deserts, and towns are placed with a degree of accuracy beyond that found in the maps of ordinary type. Elevations (in feet) of some of the principal mountains and plateaus, as are shown here, explain why certain parts of the land, which lies between 4 degrees and 15 degrees north of the equator, are tropical in nature, while other parts, those lying high above sea level, have a temperate climate.

Geography, Climate Stressed as Strong Allies of Ethiopia

By WALTER TROHAN

Washington, D. C.

UNDER marching flags stiffened by the measured blare of martial music, tens of thousands of Italy's young men are embarking on a mission—the conquest and subjugation of Ethiopia for the greater glory of Benito Mussolini.

Already 100,000 men-at-arms are in Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, which border the ancient kingdom of dark Africa on the north and south. By the end of this month the 225,000 mobilized for service will be waiting the end of the rainy season to launch hostilities against geographic odds which make ultimate success an elusive will o' the wisp.

The East African expedition is the personal enterprise of Il Duce. For three long years, according to well informed sources, the Italian general staf opposed as boldly as it dared, on sound military reasoning, the inflexible purpose of the dictator.

Military men, trained in their craft, they warned their leader, who was a World war private, of the terrific odds in his path. In disregard of the theoretical laws of strategy and of the practical dangers lying ahead, Mussolini waved aside their advice to pursue personal ambition.

In his firm determination that the wolf of Rome should be loosed from the Capitoline hill to course the lion of Judah, Mussolini also dismissed the cautions of party leaders, financiers, and business men. He has even disregarded the will of his people. There is no popular enthusiasm for the expedition except in the ranks of the Black Shirts and the youthful Sons of the Wolf, who learn to march when they learn to walk.

Despite the nationalistic bellowing of Il Duce and the exaggerated demonstrations staged by Black Shirts, the bulk of the Italian people are against the expedition. Though cowed by an iron-handed regime, the Italian people murmur against the idea of war, particularly in the remote wilds of Africa.

Mussolini's is a bold stroke to enhance personal prestige more than for an expansion of Italy. Such bold strokes are extremely risky for the player, as was Napoleon's daring but ill-fated Egyptian campaign of 1798. To Mussolini, who, in

Hollywood Stars Rejoice as Studios Merrily Bid Up Salaries

Find All Quiet on Financial Front at Last

Rumored Mergers, with End of Fat Pay Checks, Fail to Materialize.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Happy days are here again, with studios merrily bidding up the salaries of stars whose options were about to lapse. For a while, with mergers rumored on every hand and the Twentieth Century-Fox deal taking place, there was much talk that salaries would never again be as large as they have been in the well known good old days. Now with Kay Francis, Pat O'Brien, Jimmy Cagney, and Sylvia Sidney all signed or about to sign with nice big increases the depression blues are well on their way out.

Myrna Loy seems to be the one dissonant note on the salary proposition. It may yet be settled satisfactorily, though the difficulty there seems to be that Miss Loy has been too anxious to cash in on what has, in truth, been only a recent popularity.

Some of the figures on the recent salary raises are interesting. Kay Francis is gathering up $5,000 a week on a three year no option contract. Miss Francis' contract represents the only remaining one of three that started a furor several years ago when Warner's raided Paramount and signed William Powell, Ruth Chatterton, and Kay Francis. Powell, after a slump under Warner's management, changed studios. He has now hit his peak of popularity, beginning with his work in "The Thin Man" at M. G. M. Miss Chatterton has not been too bright a star on the film firmament since leaving Warner's.

Jimmy Cagney, who had to stage a battle and walkout to get what he thought his due at Warner's when he was a struggling young film player several years ago, has made good entirely to the studio's satisfaction in the last couple of years. His latest efforts in "Midsummer Night's Dream" have inspired Warner's with ambitious plans to star him in "Robin Hood," which is to be made as an elaborate spectacle. As Cagney's contract is completed, Warner's must be planning to retain him at a good figure.

Pat O'Brien, who has played everything that Warner's offered him, making no arguments about being a policeman, a sailor, a fireman, or an oil salesman, has reaped his reward, which is not always the case when one is docile around a studio. Pat this week had his salary raised $750 a week, with a straight three year contract, the neat check at the paymaster's window now reading around the $3,000 a week mark. Eighteen months ago he was making a third of that and liking it.

Salary Scales Often Capricious, Illogical.

Madge Evans was recently handed a brand new contract with a substantial raise at M. G. M. for her work in "David Copperfield" and "Age of Indiscretion."

The parley is on at Paramount to retain Sylvia Sidney, who has been drawing the cream of the dramatic rôles there for some time and getting $2,500 a week. Sylvia figures she should get a new deal at around $4,000 per, what with ermine coats and things costing what they do—and since Paramount is arguing, they are at least interested and will probably set a deal at a figure in between $3,000 and $4,000. All of these contracts are negotiated on a basis of forty weeks a year, following the old theatrical contract. A player is usually at liberty to make films at outside studios in addition to those on the home lot and thus the yearly figure can be boosted appreciably.

One sometimes wonders on what basis figures on salaries are determined. It cannot be entirely on what the star brings in at the box office, for any yearly list of box office bets and corresponding salaries finds great discrepancies. One reason for this may be, of course, that fading stars under old contracts which were written in their heyday are often vastly overpaid. Another reason is that some star will emerge as a huge money maker all of a sudden, due to a hit picture, and the studio will hesitate to boost the salary, fearing a lapse in the popularity, which may not be firmly established. Then, too, it often happens that a studio invests a good deal of money in a buildup for a star before the star begins bringing in any real money. In this case the studio feels it has a legitimate claim to cash in on its gamble with a new screen personality before boosting the salary to any great extent.

Westcott Says He Wants Hard Slap—and Gets It.

Some of the best known film stars are not the biggest money makers. Ronald Colman, Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich are never in the upper ten of box office bets, yet they are paid enormous sums yearly. It must be that a certain prestige influences producers just as it does fans.

Lee Tracy, Grace Bradley, and Gordon Westcott are working at Paramount in "Gettin' Smart," a talkie version of the Jim Gleason stage success, "Is Zat So?" Jim Cruze, directing the opus, was having his troubles with Grace Bradley, the seductive, orange topped siren, whose job it was to land a healthy slap on Gordon Westcott. Grace tried and tried, but she felt too sorry for Westcott and couldn't make it look real. Jim Cruze scratched his head and turned his cap around a few times. Westcott gave Grace a lecture, telling her that she could hit him hard and it wouldn't hurt a bit. "Look, if you slap me right here on the side of the neck, you can give me an awful one and it won't hurt," said he encouragingly. Grace seemed reassured and "pulled up an awful one, right out of the back yard" as Westcott described it, and, instead of landing it on his neck, landed it on his cheek, driving five teeth into the cheek on the inside. When she saw what she had done she had a nice case of hysterics. Westcott went to the doctor.

Another wallop that went wrong, though it was all right in the end, was Clark Gable's poke at Vernon Downing in the "Mutiny on the Bounty" company at Catalina. Downing, who plays the coward in the story, had a scene in which he kicks Gable down a ship's stairway, and Gable is supposed to rush up wrathfully and punch Downing on the jaw. Gable didn't like to do it. He felt it made a bully of him. Frank Lloyd, the director, argued that since Downing plays such a contemptible fellow it is all right to punch him and Gable would lose no audience sympathy by doing it. Gable still felt it was not so good. Then Downing offered "just let me give you a real kick down those stairs and I guarantee you'll come up mad enough for the punch to seem quite in order." They tried the real kick and Gable agreed after that that the punch on the jaw was o. k. The boys made the scene several times, faking the punch, but it just looked fakey. Finally Lloyd and Gable went into a huddle to talk it over. "Well, boys, let's try it again," he announced, and this time, with no warning to Downing, Gable delivered a real sock to the jaw, landing Downing in a neat bundle on deck, suffering as much from astonishment as from the blow. The shot was perfect and, with the real kick embalmed in celluloid, the boys went to dinner together. Don't let any one tell you making movies is a softie's game.

During Loretta Young's absence from Hollywood on a vacation a pretty colonial suite has been prepared for her new dressing room at the Twentieth Century-Fox lot. Loretta has a yen for colonial things. Her home is a beautiful example of this period, with dainty and delicate knicknacks of china, crystal, and mahogany. "Ramona" will be her new vehicle.

Clarence Brown, director, who has taken a troupe from M. G. M. to Grafton, Mass., to shoot scenes for "Ah Wilderness," is thoroughly enjoying the visit in the little town, as is was the scene of his boyhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Smith [Lillian Bond] spent part of their vacation following Lillian's work in "The Bishop Misbehaves" in Santa Barbara, taking in the annual fiesta. So many parties were given in their honor that the newlyweds' stay was prolonged past the time they had planned to be there.

Mildred Harris, former wife of Charles Chaplin, is playing a singing lead in "Star Gazing," a two reel comedy at Columbia which Benny Rubin is directing. This is her first appearance in a studio in four years.

Clark Gable is looking at travel folders. The end of "Mutiny on the Bounty" will see him on his way for that long promised vacation, this time to Europe, he hopes.

Joan Crawford is at it again. Fixing up her house, of course. She's pushing up the roof two feet, squaring the front hall into an English entrance, and lengthening the dining room. The house is now almost entirely in blue and white, the library in pine.

Janet Gaynor will return to Hollywood from her Honolulu cottage the middle of September, and announces herself as practically recovered from the head injury she received when she was working in "Way Down East."

Jane Withers, sighted the other day in the midst of all the heat posing in Eskimo furs for some stills and then sitting patiently while the hair dresser curled all her hair into tight curls on a hot iron, is off on a vacation which she has well earned. The youngster, with her mother, Mrs. Walter Withers, boarded a boat for a port in northern California, and will see the big tree country and San Francisco before she returns to work in "The Immigrant."

Dancer's Career

LYDIA of the Lydia and Joresco dance team now appearing in the Continental room at the Stevens hotel is planning to leave the United States to visit her family at their home in Neuquen, in the Argentine republic.

She came to New York with her parents in 1924. She was sent to college at Springfield, Mass., to study the fine arts. There she became an accomplished violinist.

Back in Argentina Lydia was allowed to take dancing lessons only for exercise and beauty. But she displayed an earnest ambition to become a dancer, so her parents decided to bring her to New York to study music instead.

After being thoroughly schooled in music, Lydia still insisted she should dance, and finally received permission from her family to study the art seriously. Then her parents returned to the Argentine and shortly after Lydia met Joresco, then a dancer with the Metropolitan Opera company. They commenced their career with costumed numbers.

The main purpose of Lydia's visit to the Argentine is to advise her 16 year old sister, Elvira Esperanza Reyna, who has aspirations to become a dancer, too. She will come to America to study dancing and the fine arts.

Lydia's real name is Lydia Slusarencoff. She is of Russian blood; her mother is from Moscow and her father from Odessa. He was an officer of the czar for twelve years. Joresco was born in Dalmatia, Austria.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

Of all the grand movies released during the month of August, these are the six we liked the best. Hope you agree.

"FRONT PAGE WOMAN"—"Good fun, this picture. In it you have George Brent at his best. It's plain to see that he liked both his rôle and his leading woman and he acts with vim most refreshing to behold. As for Bette Davis, she proves that she's every bit as good at light comedy as she is at portraying psychopathic cases—which is being very, very good indeed. Able direction, a good supporting cast, dialog plummed with laughs, and situations that are amusing and exciting make 'Front Page Woman' aces as summer cinema fare."

"ALICE ADAMS"—"Booth Tarkington's keen, pitiful, unsparing study of a poor girl who wanted to be a rich girl and spent her life in feverish strivings to convince folks that she was what she wasn't has proved splendid screen material. Everybody was on the job, from the casting director down, and the result is a film that keeps your interest alive and tingling from opening to closing scenes. As for Katharine Hepburn—well—deny that she's a genius if you can after witnessing her wonderfully comprehensive portrayal of foolish, futile, miserable—gallant—little Alice Adams!"

Typhoons, Physical and Emotional, Sweep "China Seas."

"CHINA SEAS"—"The voyage with which the film is concerned is a tempestuous one in every conceivable way. A typhoon—of the sea—and several sorts of emotional typhoons sweep the vessel. Pirates raid—and from start to finish suspense is kept running high, wide, and handsome by a director who knew how to get the best from his expert cast and good scenario. Clark Gable, sans makeup, is convincing and likable. Jean Harlow gives her finest performance in months. Rosalind Russell is charming and Wallace Beery is IM-mense as the raider."

"THE IRISH IN US"—"This picture is one of the most ingratiating comedy dramas that has descended on us for a long time. It is rich with homely humor and its hokum is the sort of hokum that the whole world loves. Acting and direction are aces. The action concerns the Irish O'Haras, a mother and her three big sons, and those with whom their lives mingle. Mary Gordon as the mother was the kick of the piece to me—and will be to you, I'm ready to bet. Take the whole family to see 'The Irish in Is.'"

Diamond Jim Again Digs His Grave with His Teeth.

"DIAMOND JIM"—The picture was adapted from Parker Morell's book on Brady and follows him from babyhood to the moment when, deliberately, he starts to dig his grave with his teeth. Edward Arnold plays Brady simply and sympathetically. He invests the uncouth, uneducated fellow with a natural dignity that commands respect for him wherever he goes, and, with no suggestion of the sentimental, invests the man he portrays with an innate sweetness that is touching. Binnie Barnes as Lillian Russell and Jean Arthur as the woman that Diamond Jim wants to marry give excellent portrayals. Other players please. The picture has considerable suspense."

"STEAMBOAT ROUND THE BEND"—Miss Anna Nangle said of it: "If you'd like to see the much loved Will Rogers in the sort of rôle that helped make him known and loved throughout the country, this film will bring him back to you as most of us would probably prefer to remember him. In 'Steamboat Round the Bend' he's the same old Will—homely, wrinkled face, shock of wiry hair, keen eyes, and gentle, drawling voice. Eugene Palette and Stepin Fetchit help things along by being very funny in their respective modes, and Anne Shirley is sufficiently appealing as Fleety Belle."

BitsaBOUTem.

Most of the fan letters sent to movie stars contain silly requests, but one of the strangest received by any of the stars was sent in a letter to George O'Brien. The writer complimented the star for his excellent work in his most recent pictures, but begged him please to die again like he did in that submarine picture made some years ago. Mr. O'Brien replied, expressing his regret that he did not die in his rôle in "Thunder Mountain," but promised to do so at the earliest opportunity.

The latest of the screen stars to get the knitting bug is VIRGINIA BRUCE. She spends all of her time between scenes on the set knitting a pull-over sweater. . . . Because of his splendid performance opposite CLAUDETTE COLBERT in "She Married Her Boss" MELVYN DOUGLAS has been signed by Columbia Pictures to a long term contract. . . RICHARD ARLEN, popular leading man, has also been signed by this company. He will play the male lead in two of Harold Bell Wright stories, "The Calling of Dan Matthews" and "The Mine with the Iron Door."

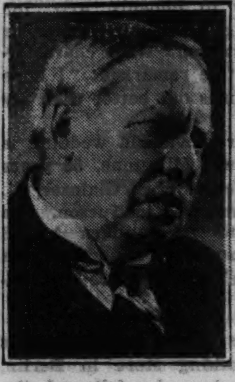
Super-Concert on Sept. 8 Gallant Climax to Free Series

Stock Will Lead Three Orchestras

Chicago Symphony, Civic Opera, Woman's Group Merge for Evening.

By Edward Moore.

THE series of band and orchestra concerts in Grant park is coming to a regretted end on Tuesday night of this week. Unfortunately summer does not last indefinitly, the time when the climate may be depended upon for open air amusements. On Tuesday night the 64th and final concert will have been played since July 1. However, James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, sends word that on Sunday, a week from today, all three orchestras, the Chicago Symphony, the Chicago Opera, and the Woman's Symphony, will be called back for a final musical expression under the direction of Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony, who will have returned from Europe by that time.



FREDERICK STOCK.

That ought to be one of the finest of all in a series that has been as pleasant from all points of view as any ever enjoyed in Chicago. Music during these nine weeks has run the entire range, from the simple organism of a march tune or popular song to the complexity of a symphony, usually excellently played, invariably heard with interest and attention.

Total Attendance Estimated at 1,800,000.

The only possible complaint is possibly a point of view that some of the band leaders in an entirely praiseworthy desire to increase band répertoire have occasionally used transcriptions that did not work out to complete perfection. It is a tricky point. Bands and orchestras are able to overlap to a certain extent in their music, but there are certain band pieces that should not be played by orchestras, just as there are certain orchestral pieces that lose some of their effect when transcribed for band. However, these cases are few.

And how the public has turned out for these concerts! Mr. Petrillo estimates that by the end the attendance will have been something like 1,800,000. The figure is startling, far more than the most optimistic would have ventured to put down in the beginning. It is also provocative of thoughts for the future. For nothing can be more certain than that at least part of this vast throng will continue to want more music. It looks like the finest kind of a forecast for next summer.

So with sincere congratulations for the present and high hopes for the future one can turn attention to the new season that is almost here.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra sends word of its forty-fifth season, with eighty-eight concerts in Orchestra hall and ten in Milwaukee. Of the Chicago list fifty-six will be the twenty-eight pairs of Thursday-Friday subscription concerts, beginning Oct. 17-18, twelve will be the other subscription series on every other Tuesday afternoon, fourteen will be popular concerts on Saturday nights, six will be young people's concerts played on the third Wednesday afternoon of each month beginning in November.

A number of big things are promised. Mr. Stock tells of a performance in concert form of Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde," to be given in November to both the Thursday-Friday and Tuesday subscribers. The soloists will be Dorothee Manski, Kathryn Meisle, Lauritz Melchior, Chase Baromeo, and Fred Patton. These names and Mr. Stock's belong in the high brackets for such a performance.

Six Newcomers on List of Soloists.

Another special feature needs no forecast, but only the memory of last season. It will be a repetition of Bach's "Passion According to St. Matthew" by the same forces that gave it last season, Claire Dux, Miss Meisle, Frederick Jagel, Mr. Baromeo, and Mr. Patton.

In all thirty-six soloists will appear during the season. Six will be new to symphony players. One of the newcomers will be Samuel Dushkin, violinist, playing Igor Stravinsky's concerto with Stravinsky at the baton. Another will be Rudolph Serkin, pianist, brought to this country last season by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge for an eastern festival. A third will be Mina Hager, mezzo-soprano, formerly a Chicagoan and a singer of extraordinary ability. She has never, however, sung with the orchestra before. These will appear at the Tuesday concerts only.

Russian Cellist Who Stirs Europe Will Play Here.

Others will be Raya Garbousova, Russian cellist, a sensation abroad; Ria Ginster, soprano, now making her first American tour, and Ruth Posselt, 21 year old American violinist, who has been touring Europe. In addition there will be the Kolisch quartet of Vienna and the Trio Italiano headed by Alfredo Casella, composer-pianist. Both of these have played in Mrs. Coolidge's chamber music festivals.

Among the more familiar names are Gitta Gradova, Percy Grainger, Myra Hess, Jose Iturbi, Josef Lhevinne, and Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianists; Nathan Milstein, Mischa Mischakoff, and Efrem Zimbalist, violinists; Gregor Piatigorsky and Daniel Saidenberg, cellists. The guest conductors will be Sir Hamilton Harty and, already named, Igor Stravinsky.

But this is only a beginning of the scheduled events. It was made public the other day that a series of major musical programs sponsored by the University college of Northwestern university would be presented at the Auditorium in the fall and early winter, the course including two performances by the San Carlo Opera company, one by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and one by the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, individual appearances by Lucrezia Bori, Mary Garden, assisted by Rudolph Ganz; the Moscow Cathedral choir, John Charles Thomas, Albert Spalding, and Marian Anderson.

For though the San Carlo and Monte Carlo organizations are related only in name, they are both to give seasons at the Auditorium. One is told that "Tannhäuser," "The Jewels of the Madonna," "Samson and Delilah," and "Tosca" have been added to the San Carlo répertoire; that Goeta Ljungberg, the Swedish soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, has been engaged to sing the leading soprano rôles in "Tosca," "Tannhäuser," and "Lohengrin"; that Cyrena Van Gordon will sing the mezzo-soprano rôles in "Lohengrin," "Tannhäuser," and "Samson and Delilah," the last named with Aroldo Lindi, and that Bianca Saroya will sing Maliella in "The Jewels of the Madonna."

Two Famed Ballet Companies Descendants of Diaghileff Group.

Balanchine composed a number of ballets for the Diaghileff company, and at least three are still in the répertoire of the Monte Carlo company. It is perhaps not saying too much to consider that both the Monte Carlo and American companies are direct descendants of the Diaghileff organization, though Balanchine has made a sturdy and apparently successful attempt to make his company an expression of American life and art. He has composed seven ballets for his company. The company will be in Chicago Nov. 8, 9, and 10.

Mary Garden's appearance in the concert course at the Auditorium will presumably deal in speech and song with the music of Debussy, a subject upon which she has made herself an authoritative specialist. Incidentally, she plans to be in Chicago this fall for an eight weeks' teaching period at the Chicago Musical college. She will follow the plan originated during her summer engagement there, a laboratory method of teaching opera. Her classes will meet Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays in the Sonotone theater. Scenes and episodes from operas will be presented with student casts and with Miss Garden herself directing each phase.

This is an outline of some of the musical events to be heard in Chicago this season. It is necessarily incomplete, but apparently a heartening season is in prospect.

SEEMS GROUCHY HERE

Commerce Division in 1909 Had 225 Students, Last Year 5,000.

EVENING education, while not a new phenomenon in America, has grown with such rapidity in recent years that it has become an important factor in the adult thought of the country. An idea of this progress may be obtained from the enrollment figures for the evening divisions of Northwestern university. In 1909, the year in which the university's school of commerce first offered downtown evening courses, the enrollment was 225. Last year it was 5,000. Preliminary registration figures for this fall indicate a sharp increase over last year.

Equally impressive has been the steady year by year increase in the number of students attending courses of the other evening division, the University college. This division was established in 1928 with a first year registration of 462. During the academic year 1934'35, the enrollment was 1,857. For the coming semester Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, director of the college, estimates an increase of more than 50 per cent over last year.

Evening Divisions Offer Wide Variety of Courses.

The evening divisions offer a wide variety of courses, ranging from real estate taxataion to the Polish language, from chemistry and political science to radio script writing. There are more than 300 sources, taught by a staf of 200 university professors and instructors and specialists.

The school of commerce, headed by Dean Ralph E. Heilman, presents an extensive list of courses designed to cover all phases of business and economics, including accounting, advertising, banking, business English, business law, economics, finance, foreign trade, insurance, investments, journalism, land economics, manufacturing, management, marketing, psychology, public utilities, real estate, retailing, sales, and transportation.

Economic Problems One Commerce School Course.

Among the courses offered by the University college are the following: Art, anthropolgy, chemistry, economics, education, English, French, geology, geography, German, Greek, history, and literature of religions, Italian, Latin, mathematics, music, philosophy, Polish, political science, psychology, sociology, Spanish, speech, and zoology.

An outstanding course in the school of commerce is one entitled "Contemporary Economic Problems," taught by Prof. Ernest H. Hahne. Students in this course during the next semester will discuss such subjects as the Guffey coal bill, the AAA amendments, the social security bill and other measures passed by the recently adjourned congress.

A new course this fall is one designed especially for Chicago school teachers. Actual classroom problems of student guidance, curricula, individual adaptation and health will be discussed as they exist in Chicago's public schools today. Approximately 1,100 teachers are expected to enroll for this course.

The evening educational program at McKinlock campus is not confined, however, to the classrooms. An important part of the activity is a series of free lectures in Thorne hall, to which the public is invited.

"Tobacco Road," with Henry Hull, Comes to Chicago Stage

Two Years in New York on Play's Record

Premiere at Selwyn on Labor Day Will Break Long Drama Drouth.

By Charles Collins.

COMES Labor day, and a new play. In bygone years this event would be spoken of as the opening of the new theatrical season in Chicago, but as matters stand I will merely announce that here, at last, is a new play. The new theatrical season, if any, will be mentioned when it manifests itself.

Ninety-seven days have passed since the Chicago stage offered a first night to its discouraged followers. This statement excludes, of course, the three productions given by the foozled summer theater adventure in Glencoe called the North Shore Drama festival. Ninety-seven days and nights—almost the same stretch of time that Napoleon spent, after Elba, in regaining and losing his empire. Therefore the arrival of a new play is not to be taken lightly. One might say that it communicates a feeling of surprise closely akin to shock. I tremble a little at the prospect, wondering if I will know how to deport myself under such unusual circumstances.

Two Years' Run on New York Stage.

The Labor day drama festival will consist of "Tobacco Road," a work which has been in performance in New York for two full years, thus winning fame in the land. Every one I know has seen the play in its Manhattan habitat and has given me a report on it, and there has been a singular unanimity of opinion, emphasizing two points: [1] The characterization of an ornery, low down, subhuman varmit of the Georgia backwoods named Jeeter Lester, by Henry Hull; James Barton, James Bell, and James Barton again [in sequence], and [2] the ornery, low down, foul, but natural, line of talk indulged in by Jeeter and his white trash associates.

It happens, strangely enough, that Chicago playgoers will see the original Jeeter, Mr. Hull, whose portrait has been closely copied by his successors, and thus will get "Tobacco Road" in its full earthy flavor. We are so accustomed to second string casts, in plays which visit Chicago before they have completed their New York runs, that Mr. Hull's presence comes under the heading of happy and unusual events.

Total Depravity of Poor White Trash.

This play is a dramatization of Erskine Caldwell's novel of the same title by Jack Kirkland, an actor. Fresh from a reading of the work, which was published in 1932, I am surprised that a play has come out of it, particularly a success of impressive dimensions, and I am prepared to credit Mr. Kirkland, in advance, with a shrewd and able job of dramaturgy. It would have been my off-hand opinion in 1932 that the manufacturing of a play out of Mr. Caldwell's novel was an impossibility.

"Tobacco Road," as a novel, represents the new vogue in fiction dealing with regional characteristics of the deep south. During the last few years the booksellers' lists have been cluttered with stories dealing with backward elements in the population of the southern states—novels that sound as if they had been written by frantic young men, trying to be grotesque, ghoulish, and goofy, and hoping to horrify the nation by pictures of depravity and degeneration in the old American stock.

Dialect of Georgia Backwoods.

Jeeter Lester and his kin, to Mr. Caldwell, are the Jukes and the Kallikaks of the sociology textbooks in their moral, mental, and economic degradation. They are worse than the Jukes, in fact, and appear to have sunk to the anthropological level of the Digger Indians and the Australian bushmen. When compared with Jeeter, any one of the low down Jukes about whom university professors have lectured with scholarly glee might be rated as an aristocrat and an intellectual.

Caldwell writes the dialect of the Georgia backwoods in a vivid, effective way, without seeking to be picturesque. He avoids the conventional tricks of the dialect writer—frequent apostrophes, phonetic spellings, etc., but he gives a successful impression of the folk speech of the region. The dialect as spoken on the stage, I assume, is an American parallel to that of the Irish peasant drama as interpreted by the Abbey Theater company.

The phrase, "tobacco road," does not mean a road through a tobacco plantation. It denotes a narrow track worn in the soil by generations of toilers rolling tobacco casks for miles from the plantations to a point of shipment on a river. . . . "Jeeter" is a family name, used as a given name; it is said to be fairly common as a family name in certain sections of the south.

Erskine Caldwell, aged 31, was born in Georgia, the son of a Presbyterian pastor. He had an informal education, closing with three years at the University of Virginia where, on his own confession, he neglected his studies. He then became a newspaper reporter in Atlanta. He has a background of experience at odd jobs such as farmhand, mill worker, cotton picker, hack driver, book reviewer, stage hand in a burlesque theater, soda fountain clerk, lecture bureau manager, cook, waiter, and professional football player.

His career has included the following books: "The Bastard," "Poor Fool," "Tobacco Road," and "God's Little Acre" [novels and novelettes], and "American Earth," and "We Are the Living" [volumes of short stories]. He now lives in Mount Vernon, Me.

Le Gallienne Tour.

Eva Le Galllienne's plans contemplate a tour of twenty weeks, extending to the Pacific coast. At least three plays will be in her repertory.

"THE CLAIRVOYANT"

Fay Wray looks peaceful enough here—but, give her time! She'll soon be shrieking. That is, we opine so. Because this champion lady scaree of the movies is all tangled up in a new thriller opposite Claude Rains. The name of the film is "The Clairvoyant," from the Gaumont British studios. World Playhouse.

Broadway Revue

THE first big musical show of the new season on Broadway will be the Howard Dietz-Arthur Schwartz work called "At Home Abroad," starring Beatrice Lillie, Ethel Waters, Herb Williams, and Eleanor Powell. The company of over 100 persons is being directed by Vincente Minnelli, who for several years staged all of the revues at Radio City Music hall.

The revue will open in Boston on Monday, Sept. 2, and will go to the New York Winter Garden two weeks later. The Messrs. Shubert are the producers.

New Acts for Empire Room; Cabaret Bills

Dorothy Stone's Husband to Join Veloz-Yolanda Show on Sept. 12.

FOUR new acts have been engaged to support the thrice extended run of Veloz and Yolanda in the Empire room of the Palmer house, beginning Sept. 12. The stars have agreed to remain until at least Oct. 2.

Chief in the new acts will be Charles Collins, the dancer and husband of Dorothy Stone, who appeared recently in the London version of "As Thousands Cheer." Collins performed in the Empire room late in 1933.

Vira Niva, singer of songs in the Russian manner, will be seen for the first time in Chicago on Sept. 12. She has been appearing at the Waldorf in New York. Alene and Evans, a "straight" acrobatic team, will also make their Chicago debut in the Empire room that night. The fourth of the new acts will be a mimic named Bill Anson.

● Benny Fields, the singer and comedian now starring at the Vanity Fair café, started his vaudeville career twenty-five years ago at Weehawken, N. J., on the same bill with the late Will Rogers.

"I was a kid of 16 at the time and Keith's was giving me a tryout on a program headed by the late Della Fox," Fields says. "The first act on the program [I was second] was a young man from Oklahoma who did tricks with a lariat.

"At an afternoon performance the manager ran in with the results of the first inning of the world series, then being played in Philadelphia. The lariat performer had just started his act when the manager called him from the wings and asked him to read the returns.

"The young performer took the slip of paper with the plays marked down on it from the manager, scratched his head, and began reading aloud in his peculiar drawl. Somebody had knocked a three-bagger, as I remember it now, and the young man remarked:

"'That guy must o' come from Oklahoma. That's my state. He jest knocked in a run.'

"That young man was Will Rogers, and his slow, drawling delivery, accompanied by very noticeable chewing of gum, convulsed the audience."

● Al Quodbach will open his New Granada café at 64th and Cottage Grove avenue on Thursday night, Sept. 5.

Among the features of the show will be the former Ziegfeld beauty, Jessie Reed, and Bob Pacelli's Venetian band.

● As a song writer Seymour Simons, band leader in the Continental room at the Stevens hotel, has established a reputation. A million copies of his song "Honey" were sold in 1929, and he continues to receive royalties from many other tunes. In the Continental room he directs a band which features a soft style of music, with Mary Jane Walsh, Doc Davis, Nelson Bitterman, and Norman Gast as vocalists. Lydia and Joresco, ballroom dancers, continue to headline the floor show, supported by Hal Young, tenor, and Santschi and Buckley, specialty dancers.

● Roy Shipstead of Frankie Masters' Ice Carnival revue at the Hotel Sherman's College Inn has a new trick called a "5-in-1" spin. He does a series of five different spins.

Roy Fink, a rink veteran who was a favorite performer on the College Inn's first ice floor fifteen years ago, is appearing with his 17 year old daughter, Valerie, in a skating waltz. Ballet skating is the specialty of the Four Nelson Sisters, Vera, Marie, Virginia, and Genevieve. Duke and Noble clown in a "beginner and teacher" skating act; Eddie Shipstead and Oscar Johnson in a "Bowery Jig" comedy number; LeVerne Busher and Norval Baptie in a skating adagio, and Bess Ehrhart, skating in the dark in a radium costume, are other features.

● The Old Heidelberg octet reopened last night at Eitel's Old Heidelberg inn. This organization has been with Old Heidelberg for three years—two at the World's Fair. The singing, in authentic costume, of the male parts of a number of popular operettas, including "Rio Rita," "The Student Prince" and "Rose Marie," will figure in their programs.

● Johnny Hamp will bring his orchestra to the Marine dining room when Ted Fio-Rito's troupe of entertainers finish their engagement at the Edgewater Beach hotel next Saturday night. His engagement will begin Monday night, Sept. 8. With him comes Kay Kernan as featured vocalist.

Sally Rand's Real Name.

Sally Rand recently revisited the Art institute, where she was a model some years ago. Her real name is Beck, and she has a 10 year old brother, Eugene Beck, who is studying to be a sculptor under Edgardo Simone, Italian sculptor now in Chicago.

Drama of Nuns.

Mary Hone, who scored in a revival of Ibsen's "Lady from the Seas" [illegible]t season, has been engaged for an important rôle in "Few Are Chosen," a play by N. Lawlor, which will open in New York Sept. 17. The play deals with young nuns in a convent.

DANCER AT NEW VANITY FAIR

Two Movie Directors Now Honeymooning

Lubitsch and Milestone Among Latest Film Recruits to Marriage.

TWO of Hollywood's foremost directors recently assumed the yoke of matrimony at about the same time. One is Ernst Lubitsch, 43 years old, whose bride is the former Vivian Gaye, 27, literary agent, whose real maiden name was Sanya Bezencenet. The couple flew to Phoenix, Ariz., for the wedding. It is Mr. Lubitsch's second marriage. With characteristic humor he remarked: "I hope that this turns out better than my pictures."

The other movieland wedding is that of Lewis Milestone, 39 years old, and Kendall Lee Glainzer, 31, who were married in Tucson. His marriage to the auburn haired New York society girl and divorcée is Milestone's first venture in matrimony.

Lubitsch's career began in his father's clothing store in Berlin, Germany, where he followed the noxious occupation of pressing wrinkles out of pants. The youthful Ernst persuaded his father that there were other boys more admirably suited to the work and got a job as an apprentice technician in a Berlin movie studio. From a small rôle he became one of the studio's favorite comedians and won a part under Max Reinhardt on the stage.

Then he switched back to the movies, starring in a four reel feature. He became a director and produced pictures starring Pola Negri, released in this country under the titles "Gypsy Blood" and "Passion." He was brought to Hollywood to direct Mary Pickford in "Rosita."

Now, Lubitsch declares, opera is coming to the screen, not in the stilted form that has been outdated for half a century. Opera will move when it comes to Hollywood is the firm belief of this veteran director.

The career of Lewis Milestone was different. He was born in Odessa, Russia, came to America as a boy, and believes he can do his best thinking in a Turkish bath! He learned to take pictures while working in the photographic division of the United States signal corps during the world war, and later made "All Quiet on the Western Front."

His movie career was preceded by occupation as a janitor. Then he wrote stories, worked as a film cutter, and finally was given a chance to direct. His first effort was "The Seven Sinners," a box office success. Other successes followed, and then Howard Hughes, with money to spend on his ideas, selected Milestone for his big production, "Two Arabian Nights." Later they produced "The Front Page."

'Alice Adams' and 'Crusades' Stir Gotham

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — The excitements of the moment in this theater capital are concerned with the cinema. Cecil de Mille's newest tour de force, "The Crusades," and Katharine Hepburn's lightly sensational emergence in "Alice Adams" are both classified as four-star events hereabouts and are living up to that classification.

All that Mr. De Mille has done before, for and on the screen, he does again in "The Crusades." At least he does as much as there is room and time for, with certain refinements and improvements added. He is still deploying and maneuvering armies, but he relies a little more on suggestion than he did in his earlier spectacles. This story of that quest of the Holy Grail in which Richard of the Lion Heart played a chief rôle is admitted by the screen's experts to be the director's masterpiece. I have no doubt authorities can and will make amusing sport of Cecil as a historian, but his imagination is probably as reliable as theirs and a lot livelier.

Crashing Conflicts Most Salable Feature of "Crusades."

It is not, however, the story values of "The Crusades" that will prove its most salable feature, though without the story the crashing conflicts which are its featured attractions would fall apart. It is again the typical De Mille display of force and power; his skill in bringing huge armies within the focus of the camera; his stabbing closeup views of hand-to-hand fighting; of bloody, brutal, ferocious men come to grips on high walls and narrow drawbridges, running one another through with pikestafs and toppling one another into the moat; of slaughter at first hand, including the slaying of both men and beasts—these are the De Mille specialties.

In this picture more than in any of his other spectacles, Mr. De Mille seems to me to have achieved literally the gruesome horrors of war, including the sounds that go with them; the shrieks of the wounded and the groans of the dying; a mad, incredible tangle of squirming, yelling, fighting animals that, whatever your sensitivities, is pretty sure to find you emotionally susceptible. I wonder what the actual casualties were?

Head-On Collision on Plains of Jerusalem.

By the use of what the technicians speak of as the "split screen" De Mille sends two galloping troops of horses into a head-on collision in the center of a plain before Jerusalem in a scene that is breath-taking. And in his assaults upon the walls of Acre with catapults and towering war engines [most of the fighting being at night with flaring torches and vats of burning oil turned over those more foolish knights who were first up the scaling ladders] the scenes outdo not alone anything that the director achieved in "The Ten Commandments" or in "King of Kings" or the earlier "Intolerance" but anything, one is ready to believe, that ever before has been pictured on the screen.

You may argue as you will as to the actual value of such spectacles and make your own decision as to what they mean specifically to you. I have thought that each of them would be the last, not only because it must be extremely difficult to continue to top the excitements of the last achievement, but because of the riotous waste of money the making of such a picture represents. Yet they continue to come, and the multitude is apparently as interested as ever.

Loss of Berengaria Makes Richard Love Her.

Stripped of its spectacle scenes "The Crusades" is a romanticized version of the third crusade that carried Richard I. of England into the Holy Land as an ally of Philip of Spain and other lords of creation in a quest for the true cross. En route, to assure the provisioning of his armies, old Lion Heart agrees to marry the daughter of Sancho of Navarre, a lady named Berengaria, after he has snubbed Alice, sister of Philip.

Richard does not think much of Berengaria until she is captured by Saladin, defender of Islam. Then his desire for repossession of both Berengaria and the Holy Grail spur him on to the sacking of Acre and an attack upon Jerusalem that carries him to the walls and finally, on his compromise, to the opened gates of the Holy City. Through these the Christian multitude, an army unarmed, marches, singing lustily and with gleaming faces. Thereupon Saladin, a gentle and generous conqueror, sends Berengaria back to Richard to prove, it may be, the power of prayer, for Richard certainly had prayed earnestly for that girl.

The performances are individualized and quite modern in spirit, for all the medieval upholstery and setting. Henry Wilcoxson visualizes Richard as well as any actor could, fighting magnificently any number of adversaries, from a squad to an army, and coming off victoriously always. Loretta Young is the Berengaria, a blonde lady who may or may not convincingly possess such persuasive allure as would start and stop a holy war, but a competent actress under the De Mille direction. Ian Keith is agreebaly modest as Saladin, and there is roaring support from such stalwarts of the drama as C. Aubrey Smith, C. Henry Gordon, Hobart Bosworth, Lumsden Hare, William Farnum, and Pedro de Corboda, with Joseph Schildkraut to inject a bit of villainy with an oriental touch.

These actors are of great assistance to Mr. de Mille. I suspect that they were all hard put to it, not only to keep their heads on but also to keep their faces straight through many of the scenes. There was, in fact, frequent indication on the part of the audience with which I sat the second night to accept a great deal less than reverently many of the pictured extravagances.

Hepburn's Triumph in "Alice Adams" Purely Personal.

Katharine Hepburn's success in "Alice Adams" is personal and must be gratifying to that young woman. She still has the east to conquer in the theater, though her early stage successes before she went into pictures were positive. It was when she came back, following her first screen triumphs, and sought to justify her sudden rise to fame as an actress that she suffered a discouraging experience. That was the season she played in "The Lake" and was accounted considerably less than inspiring in the leading rôle. The report that her cinema backers bought off her projected road tour in that play at a cost of $100,000, on the theory that they would thus confine her popularity to the screen and also escape the exposure of her alleged limited knowledge of stage technique, may or may not be true.

In any event, Miss Hepburn still hopes, unless I mistake her quality, to come back to Broadway one day, when the proper play presents itself, and show the critical ladies and gentlemen of this district that she does, in fact, deserve to be counted among the more gifted actresses of her time.

Plot Is Hackneyed and Commonplace.

If the test could be made on the screen she would already have proved it. "Alice Adams" is no great shakes as a play. The Booth Tarkington plot, presenting the adventure of the proud but thoughtless small town girl who tried to keep up with the Palmers and all but lost her true love through pretending she and her family were something they were not, is, on the screen, fairly hackneyed in structure and content. A familiar story familiarly played. But there is nothing commonplace about the Hepburn characterization. In the test of every scene, light or weighty, she is splendidly equal to the occasion. Her comedy scenes are buoyantly played, her pathos is convincing; even the harsher tones of her voice, which could still do with a bit of training, are nicely adjusted to fit the character.

Another screen personality of distinct possibilities, particularly in the comic line, makes his appearance in the Hepburn support. This is Fred Stone, one time idol of the masses who loved musical extravaganzas. Fred is playing the part of Alice Adams' unsuccessful but lovable father, and making a good job of it. He is happiest, naturally, in those scenes in which he is permitted to employ his comic talent. There is a burlesqued dinner scene, in which he has difficulty keeping his shirt studs from snapping, that the crowds love. He plays the dramatic scenes satisfactorily, but his reputation, I am convinced, will be built as a comedian rather than as a straight actor.

THE VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Dear Miss Tinée: Taking the title of your column literally, I wish to make use of it for what I believe is a good cause, and one that will have many followers, once some one starts it going.

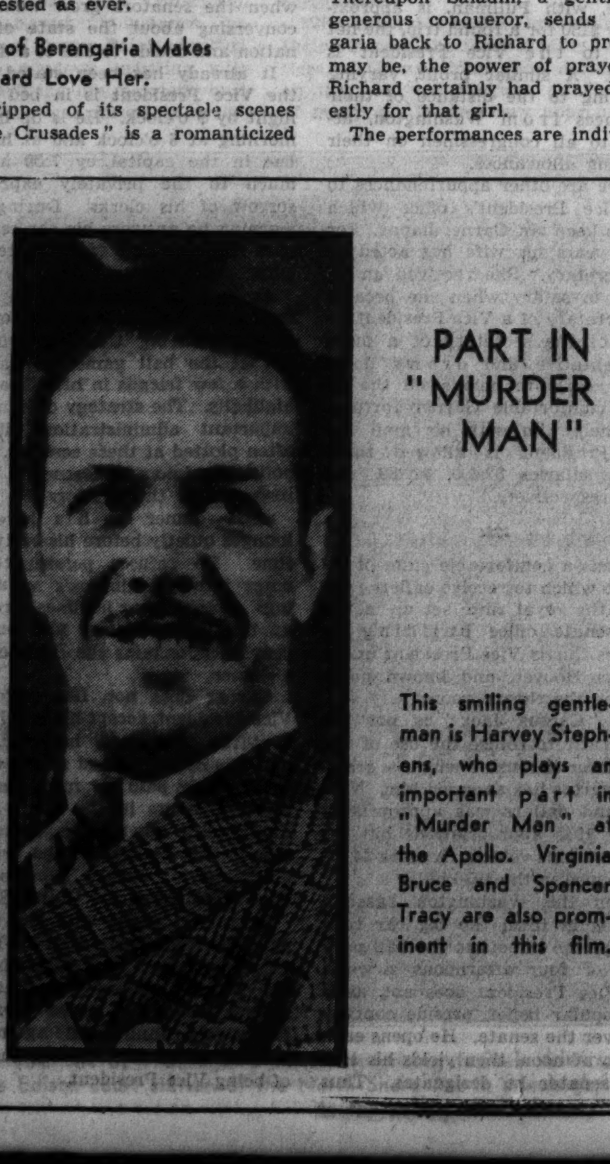
I know that I am not alone in wishing that the running of "coming attractions" be abolished, as I've watched others join me in the lobby while they are being shown, so if all that agree with me write in to you, maybe we can get some action. It's getting to the point that after every reel they must "plug" something. First it's "our next attraction," then "forthcoming attractions." And that's not all. There still is "our big screamo nights." I am sure that if they're not stopped they'll be stopping the feature and showing them between reels.

If people want to know the pictures that are forthcoming they'll not miss seeing them "plastered" all over the lobby and the front of the house.

So for this cause won't you help us and publish this letter.

Sincerely yours,
S. A. JIMENEZ.

Editor's note: Behold the letter!



PART IN "MURDER MAN"

This smiling gentleman is Harvey Stephens, who plays an important part in "Murder Man" at the Apollo. Virginia Bruce and Spencer Tracy are also prominent in this film.

Indoor Circus

AFTER a year's preparation, Billy Rose, former night club impresario, will stage a musical circus, called "Jumbo," at the New York Hippodrome in September. In form a fusing of the standard circus and musical spectacle, "Jumbo" will be played in a forty foot tanbark ring rather than on a stage.

Some hundred and fifty players and a menagerie will be involved. Prominent among the players will be Jimmy Durante, Paul Whiteman and his band, Arthur Sinclair, from the Abbey theater, Dublin; Donald Novis, the radio singer; ten acrobatic, equestrienne and clown acts imported from Europe, fifty singing hill billies, fifty acrobatic dancers, and forty show girls.

Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur have written the book for "Jumbo" and the songs are by Lorenz Hart and Richard Rodgers, the production will be staged by John Murray Anderson, and George Abbott will direct the dialog. Albert Johnson designed the scenic trappings and Leo M. Singer assembled the animals.

The cost of the production will be in the neighborhood of $250,000. Big Rosie, one of the largest elephants on this continent, will play the title rôle.

Airplanes and Air Transport

Experts Seek Foolproof Sky Flivver

By WAYNE THOMIS

THE most hopeful sign for the future of private flying is the interest taken by the airplane industry during the last twelve months in the development of a small ship so safe to fly that it virtually can be called foolproof. This interest has taken tangible shape in half a dozen airplanes, airplane engines, and allied projects which have been sponsored and partly financed by the federal bureau of air commerce.

The purpose of this development program is to design an airplane which will, above all, be far safer than the craft sold to private owners today. A secondary but important intention is to produce an airplane that will be comparable in price with light automobiles and as comfortable as the best of these terrestrial machines.

It is hoped that an airplane such as this will cost less for overhaul and replacements than the production model automobile, that the airplane will equal or exceed the automobile's mileage per gallon of gasoline consumed, and that its speed will be from 30 to 40 miles an hour higher than the best touring speed of the earthbound vehicle.

Just what the results of progress toward this goal have been to date can be seen in the description of the bureau of air commerce airplane projects.

The first of these, delivered three weeks ago to Washington, is the tailless ship built by Waldo Waterman, veteran pilot and designer of Los Angeles. The plane, illustrated in one of the accompanying photographs, as are others mentioned in this article, is a high-wing monoplane with a pusher motor of 95 horsepower installed behind the cabin inclosing seats for two.

Elevators and ailerons are in the trailing edges of the wings. Stabilizers and rudders are built at each wing tip. The wings have a definite sweep back. In general steel tubing and fabric are materials used in construction of the plane, although there are wooden spars in the wing. Sitting in the nose of the ship with no motor to interfere, the pilot has excellent vision.

Another of the projects is the Weick rudderless airplane, developed by designers at the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics laboratories at Langley field, Virginia. It is a high-wing monoplane with cabin for two and a radial pusher motor of 90 horsepower. Stabilizers and elevator are supported at the rear on two booms between which the propeller turns.

New type flaps are installed in the wings, which serve two purposes. In one position they increase lift, making slow landing speeds possible; in the other position they act not only to increase lift but to present definite drag, thus making the gliding angle a steep one. The air brake is connected to the throttle so that as the motor is slowed the brake is automatically operated.

The third airplane of this particular group is the Hammond Y-2. The first Hammond plane failed to meet top speed requirements of 110 miles an hour as demanded by the department of commerce, although it complied with specifications for safety in every respect. The second plane, the Y-2 now under construction at Ypsilanti, Mich., is expected to have a top speed of at least 120 miles an hour.

The Hammond plane is also a pusher type monoplane, but it has a low instead of a high wing. Rudders, stabilizers, and elevators are attached to booms at the rear. The propeller turns between the booms. Flaps slow down the landing speed, and the strongly constructed landing gear allows the plane to be flown onto the ground without ill effects.

Each of these planes has a three-wheel landing gear and brakes. All of them can be landed with brakes full on, thus minimizing roll, and the nose wheel, which is installed in each case, prevents nosing over. The conventional planes flown today frequently nose over on the ground because of striking a small bump, a rock, or a fissure in the earth, either while taxiing or in landing.

"Our most skeptical and hard-boiled inspectors have flown these planes, and they are enthusiastic about them," said Gene Vidal, director of the bureau of air commerce, recently. "The airplanes refuse to stall and fall off into a spin—the characteristic of airplanes today responsible for 70 per cent of all accidents—and they will land themselves if the pilot becomes confused in an emergency."

The fourth airplane is in a separate class. It is the "roadable giro," a small wingless autogiro seating two persons in an inclosed cabin, with top speed above 110 miles an hour with a 90-horsepower motor, and a clutch and gear arrangement which will make it possible to direct power to the wheels, thus enabling the pilot to drive it like an automobile along a highway. Twenty miles an hour will be top speed for the giro on roads.

Furthermore, the roadable giro is to have a direct lift device making it possible for it to jump from 15 to 30 feet straight off the ground and then, without sinking back, fly away like a conventional type airplane. This machine, combining all the best features of the present-day autogiro with those of a helicopter, and the speed of a conventional airplane, seems the most promising of the lot.

In addition to the airplane projects the department has had manufacturers engaged in testing a Ford V-8 automobile engine, a Hudson Terraplane auto engine, and a six-cylinder Plymouth auto engine in airplanes. All three types have passed endurance tests with flying colors, and, although nearly four times as heavy as strictly aviation motors, they seem the answer to the private pilot's prayer for a reliable light motor costing less than $400. These engines are to sell for $150.

The strange appearing Pou-du-Ciel, or Sky Louse, is a single-seater French airplane, built, according to its designer, so that it will automatically land itself. It is a tandem monoplane with the rear wings well behind and below the forward wings. The engine is faired into the trailing edge of the forward wing. It has no rudder, turning merely by banking with ailerons.

It is said to cruise at 65 miles an hour and land at less than 20 miles an hour and to cost less than $300 to build.

The rudderless Weick monoplane. Vertical and horizontal stabilizers and elevators are on tail booms. The ship is turned by banking it with ailerons.

Pou-du-Ciel, or Sky Louse. Fuselage is 12 feet long; front wings 16-foot span; rear wings 12-foot span; engine a converted 32-h.p. auto motor. Cost is half-penny a mile to operate and less than $350 to build.

Garner Makes a Neat Profit

Velvet on Rail Fare Totals $721.20

By WILLARD EDWARDS

Washington, D. C.

THE red, refulgent countenance of John Nance Garner seemed to shed a gentle glow upon the grinning faces of fourscore senators one recent day. The senate had just acted to mend a minor flaw in the Vice President's contentment with the Washington scene and the part he plays therein, and he was properly grateful.

Probably the happiest man in the nation's capital today is "Cactus Jack." He enjoys to the fullest extent his daily regimen, which will be recounted later in this article. Undoubtedly Mr. Garner goes to bed each night (at 9 o'clock promptly) with a dreamy smile upon his lips.

But in his two years and several months in the Vice President's chair Mr. Garner has been irked by the recurrence twice each session of a small incident affecting his finances. He had to open his well-worn wallet and pay for his railroad fare to and from his home town of Uvalde, Tex.

From 1903 to 1933 Mr. Garner, as a representative in the house, had enjoyed the benefits of the generous traveling allowance which the congress awards itself each year. The habit of thirty years had become so ingrained in the Texan that it was a painful shock for him to discover shortly after inauguration day in 1933 that the Vice President was expected to pay his own way to and from the legislative sessions.

Mr. Garner is reputed to be a millionaire, but he has remained a thrifty soul ever since he first came to Washington and began to save out of his congressional salary, then only $5,000 a year. He endured as Vice President the hardship of paying for his railroad fare until early this year, when he rebelled. He let it be known to his many friends in the senate, according to report, that he would not be offended by an amendment to the legislative appropriation bill giving him the same traveling allowance as senators and representatives.

The amendment was proposed and speedily approved. When the measure was sent back to the house for agreement there was some unpleasantness caused by Representative John Taber, a Republican, of New York.

"The Vice President is given the same status and salary ($15,000) as a cabinet member," he pointed out. "Why break all precedent for this Vice President? Cabinet members don't get mileage."

Taber insisted upon a record vote, and 282 Democratic yeas were solemnly recorded against only 73 Republican nays. Mr. Garner had his mileage. It was a personal tribute to his popularity, all agreed. In spite of its many faults, congress does not often so easily upset a precedent of 150 years' standing.

The allowance given Mr. Garner as a result of the amendment is $851.20. Inasmuch as the railroad fare between Washington and Uvalde, with Pullman, is approximately $130 for a round trip, the net profit to the Vice President is $721.20. A similar profit, varying according to the distance of their residences from Washington, accrues to all congressmen on their traveling allowances.

There are other appurtenances to the Vice President's office which help to keep Mr. Garner happy. For many years his wife has acted as his secretary. She received an increase in salary when she became the secretary of a Vice President instead of the secretary of a mere representative and draws down $4,620 yearly to help swell the already comfortable Garner fortune.

He has a comfortable suite of offices in which to receive callers. He shuns the royal suite set up in the new senate office building by Charles Curtis, Vice President under Herbert Hoover, and known popularly as the throne room.

But "Cactus Jack" is not too democratic to refuse the use of the 16-cylinder limousine which a grateful congress has assigned him. Nine thousand dollars was appropriated in the 1935 appropriations bill for this luxurious vehicle. A mere $4,000 is provided in the 1936 bill.

When the Washington baseball team is in town the big car rolls through the streets to the ball park three or four afternoons a week. The Vice President does not, as is the popular belief, preside continually over the senate. He opens each session at noon, then yields his seat to a senator he designates. Thus he has his afternoons free, but he is always on hand around 5 or 6 p. m. when the senators grow weary of conversing about the state of the nation and decide to call it a day.

It already has been stated that the Vice President is in bed each night by 9 o'clock. He is up in the morning at 6 o'clock and at his office in the capitol by 7:30 a. m., much to the privately expressed sorrow of his clerks. During the morning he answers his correspondence with the help of his secretary-wife.

At noon he takes gavel in hand and opens the daily session of the senate. During the afternoon, if not at the ball game, he gathers with a few friends in his office over highballs. The strategy of handling important administration bills is often plotted at these sessions. The political wisdom of Garner is much respected by the senators.

After dinner at his hotel he lounges quietly before his early bedtime. He refuses persistently to enter into Washington's social doings. Once a year he dines formally at the White House, and once a year he entertains the President at a dinner.

Garner does not, like a former Vice President, accept his hotel suite rent-free. He does, however, pay only the rather modest rental which he formerly paid for much smaller living quarters in the same hotel. The hotel is eager to make such arrangements because of the prestige accompanying such a guest as the Vice President of the United States.

At perfect peace with the world and with contentment in his heart, "Cactus Jack" goes through this daily routine. Serenely he reads the reports that he is to be President Roosevelt's running mate again next year. Not too arduous, this business of being Vice President.

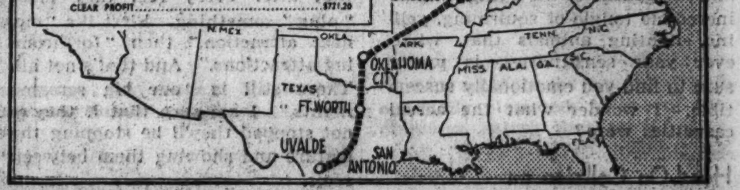
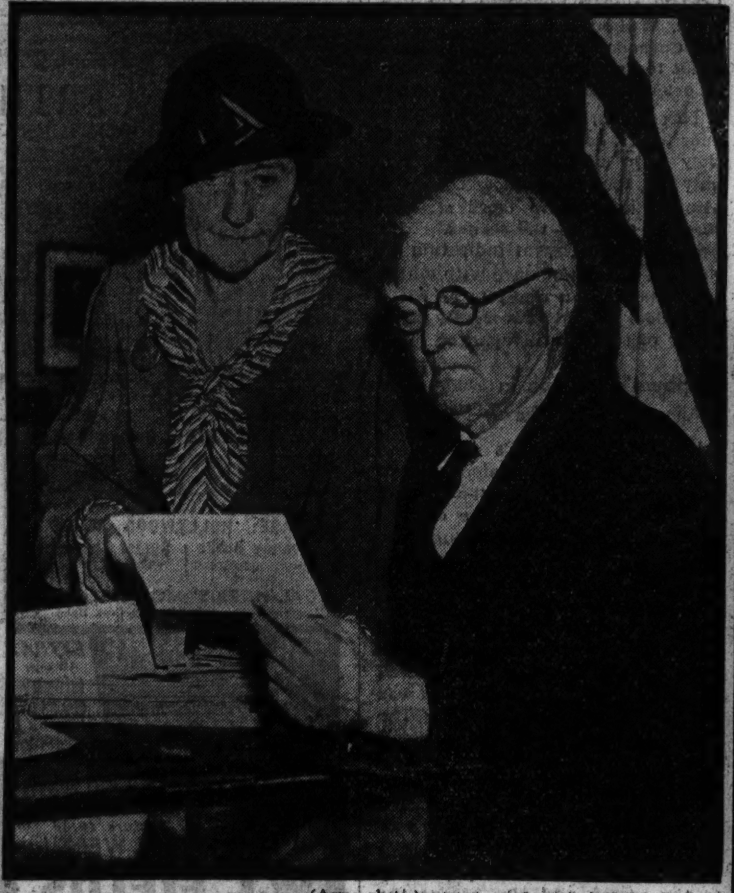
Vice President Garner is happier now because congress has provided him a traveling allowance. It amounts to $851.20. Expenses of a round trip to his home are $130. Net profit, $721.20.





(Acme photo.)

Mrs. Garner is secretary to the Vice President and draws down a salary of $4,620 a year. Mr. Garner is rated a millionaire.

At noon Mr. Garner, gavel in hand, opens the daily session of the senate. Then, if the team is in town, he goes to the ball game.

Marriage Is Big Business in Chicago's "Gretna Greens"

How the Wedding Mill Works in Waukegan

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

GETTING born, getting married, and getting buried are important steps in the average man's personal history. These events are generally taken rather seriously by the principals involved, without thought of bargain hunting to save expense.

In the case of births the doctor, who usually gets most of the pay for the job, is a highly trained individual. In the case of burials the undertaker, who reaps most of the benefit, also is a trained man. In marriages, however, those who do the job and take the profits do not need technical skill. Any grammar school boy is sufficiently trained to read a marriage ceremony, and in consequence there is a chance for virtually anyone to make a killing in this lucrative business, which includes among its clients all adult human beings except bachelors and old maids. The business does not suffer from the bridegroom's natural reluctance to haggle with the justice of the peace or the minister in front of his fluttering lady.

Well mindful of the opportunities inherent in their position are the J. P.'s of the marriage mill towns in the vicinity of Chicago—notably Crown Point, Ind., and Waukegan, Ill.—and they do not fritter away their chances. But justices of the peace are not alone in benefiting from the industry. County clerks, ministers, florists, jewelers, hotel owners, druggists, clothiers, doctors, taxi drivers, and marriage "hustlers" all join in for their share of the spoils. Year after year the profits roll in, with an estimated annual value in the case of Waukegan of $100,000. Crown Point is even more famous as a marriage center, and there the industry had reached an advanced stage even before the war.

As one reporter described it in 1915: "The marriage mill sits on the banks of the stream of love that flows through Crown Point, Ind. . . . The marriage syndicate works with never a hitch—after 9 o'clock in the morning. 'Doc' Clack meets the trains with the marriage phaeton that tags at the heels of two horses known as Cupid and Hymen. He takes the betrothed up and turns them over to Marriage Clerk Wheaton. Mr. Wheaton gives them a $2 marriage license and then directs them to Judge Nicholson."

A Champion Marrier Boasts of His Record

In the words of the judge: "I'm the champion marrier of the world. Fifteen thousand couples I've married in eight years [1907-'15]. I built up the business in this town. Nobody ever heard of Crown Point until I came here and got to marrying."

Seven years later, in 1922, the industry was booming. Said Judge Kemp, famed veteran marrying judge, in that year: "There has been a steady annual increase of about 10 per cent in the number of marriages I perform, and this year I fancy we broke all previous records. I think the ceremonies performed by me this year will exceed any previous year by 25 per cent."

It was reported at the time that, from the looks of the pile of ring boxes dropped on the judge's floor by his customers, he would not have to worry about running short of fuel during the winter months. "If winter comes," said a report, "the marrying magistrate has just 6,000 of these cardboard boxes to substitue for coal in his stove."

As the industry grew the marriage merchants developed new ways of increasing the marriage fees, thus adding to their profits—except during the periods when competition forced their prices down. The fees always were rather flexible, however, because the merchants, experienced business men as they were, well understood the principle of charging "what the trafic will bear." Last year, for instance, Justice Kemp of Crown Point admitted, his office windows bristling with signs advertising his marriage business, that he was forced to accept "less than his standard price of $5 on occasions when he couldn't get that much."

At the same time Kemp's leading competitor, the Rev. H. Oscar Stevens, who may be the main reason why Kemp "couldn't get that much," explained how he had cut into the justice's trade by underbidding him. "I have advertised that I would give a certificate free with every wedding," said the minister in righteous tones, "and have told couples that the law does not require them to buy certificates at the clerk's office. The clerk's office employés can and do refuse to issue licenses to persons from outside Lake county [Indiana] unless they get certificates, but I have educated Lake county couples at least to demand their licenses without certificates."

With this price cutter threatening their business, the three leading justices of Crown Point soon decided on the good old business principle of merging. It was very appropriate at that time, too, because that was when the Blue Eagle was young and hadn't yet had his tonsils out. While the preacher had to be on deck twenty-four hours a day to avoid missing his clients, the three captains of industry went on eight-hour shifts and hung out Hugh Johnson's emblem to show they were conforming to the marriage-mongers' code.

During one of his leisure moments Henry F. Wallenwein, marrying justice of the peace of Waukegan, has time to gaze from his office toward the county courthouse to watch for prospective clients.

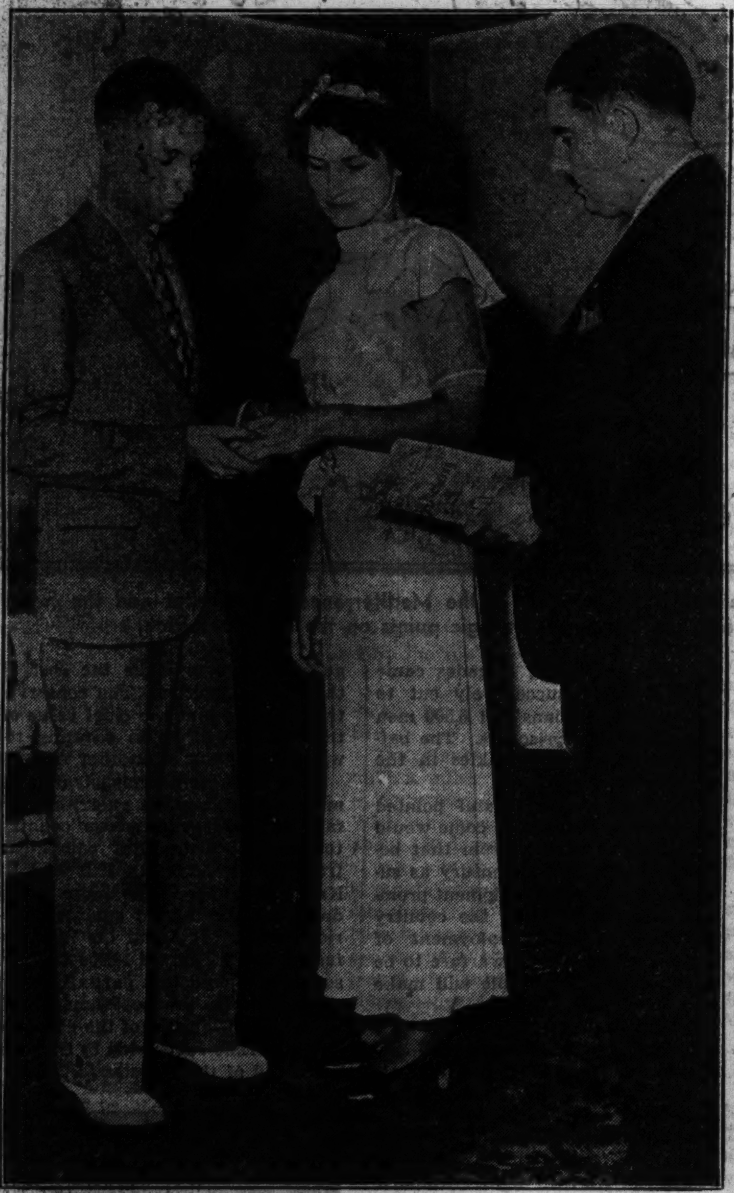
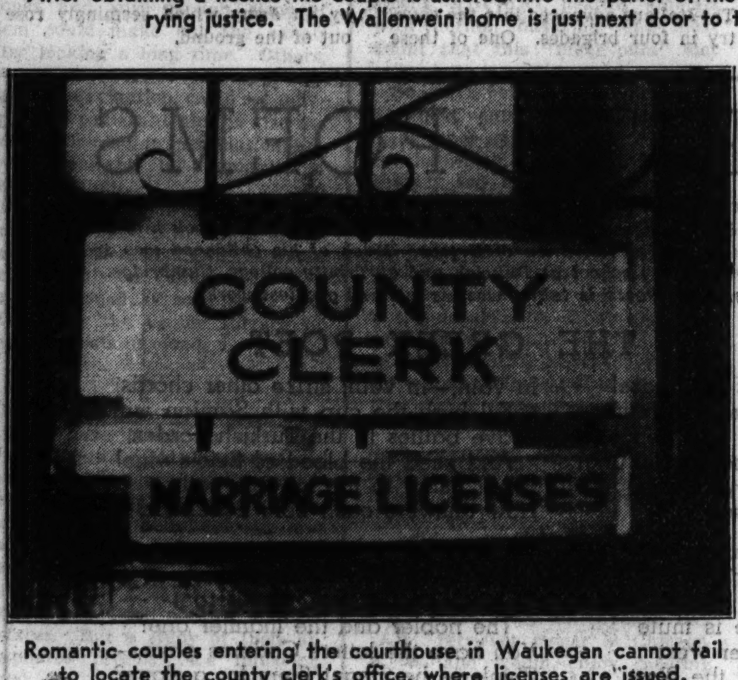
Seeking a marriage license, a young couple is guided to the home of County Clerk Lew A. Hendee in Waukegan.

After obtaining a license the couple is ushered into the parlor of the Wallenwein home to face the marrying justice. The Wallenwein home is just next door to that of the county clerk.



As Justice Wallenwein concludes the reading of the marriage ceremony the bridegroom sees to it that the bride gets a wedding ring.



Romantic couples entering the courthouse in Waukegan cannot fail to locate the county clerk's office, where licenses are issued.

The same sort of thing, meanwhile, was going on in marriage towns such as Waukegan, but there the competition was even more intense. In Waukegan the J. P.'s never have merged, perhaps because there are too many of them, and the industry includes a number of hard-working ministers of various denominations. Lew A. Hendee, Waukegan's county clerk since 1910, says that about 5,000 marriage licenses are issued at his office each year. As the city profits on the average about $20 per couple married, that makes the marriage business one of Waukegan's biggest. "Without the marriage trade," says Clerk Hendee, "Waukegan would have suffered much more from unemployment and the depression. During the World's Fair year of 1934 we issued 6,245 licenses."

Tells Why He Issues Licenses at Midnight

Asked the cost of a marriage license, Mr. Hendee replies: "A license is a dollar, and the marriage certificate, which most couples want in order to prove they are married, also is a dollar."

"It costs more at night, though, doesn't it?" he is asked.

"Well," says the clerk, "if a man has to get up during sleeping hours, naturally he ought to be paid for his effort. I usually charge two or three dollars extra for night service, but it depends partly on how sleepy I am." Questioned as to the legality of giving out licenses in the middle of the night, Hendee retorts: "I issue midnight licenses for the same reason I issue warants at that hour—because the law so provides."

"What kind of people come to you for licenses?" is the next question.

"Well, most of them are from Wisconsin," answers the clerk. "Sixty-five per cent admit they are from Wisconsin, and I think probably some who say they are Chicagoans are really from over the border. There is a law in Wisconsin requiring couples to make application five days before they receive their licenses.

"We offer service that few cities do. Couples don't have to stand in line here the way they do in Chicago, they can avoid publicity if they want to, and they can get married at any hour of the day or night. Many Chicagoans who are unable to get married by day come here for night service—orchestra leaders, many of them are, and stage folks, restaurant people, night club people, and so on. Wayne King was married here, for instance, and Edith Mason, the opera singer.

"Waukegan is just about half way between Chicago and Milwaukee, and so we get trade from both cities. This is a very handy location, but, of course, we have competition from other Illinois counties, especially St. Clair county, Rock Island county, and Winnebago county. What publicity we get helps us a lot in the competition. Whenever the papers play up some prominent wedding here, there is always a rush of business afterward."

To get a more intimate idea of the justice of the peace's side of marriage, which involves considerable more competition than the monopolistic county clerk's angle, a good place to visit is the office of Waukegan's marrying J. P., Henry F. Wallenwein. As you enter his office—its door is never locked—you see first several beautiful pictures of Indian maidens hanging on the waiting room walls. Then you meet the man himself, Justice Wallenwein, who has joined some 15,000 couples. He sits before you unemotional, his sleek face almost expressionless.

2,600 Weddings a Year Give This J. P. an Edge

"I average 2,600 marriages a year," he says, which gives him a slight edge on his closest J. P. rival, Michael J. Haney, and considerable margin over the next contender, appropriately named Bert S. Love, whose business cards bear the slogan, "Let Love Unite You."

Formerly in the prize ring business, once manager of King Levinsky, and a politician in season, Wallenwein knows the meaning of competition. In the Waukegan marriage business, however, there was not much competition until Justice Haney started dropping into a certain restaurant every night at a late hour for a cup of coffee. Cab drivers soon noted his habit and would ferry likely looking passengers to the restaurant to contact him. When Haney performed a marriage as a result, the driver would take a certain percentage of the proceeds. Soon, with an energetic staf of "hustlers" working for him, several with taxis, Haney looked as if he would corner the market. Wallenwein and the rest, in self-defense, also acquired their hangers-on, and Wallenwein made the progressive move of keeping his office lighted all night. After the leading contenders all had moved their offices as close as possible to County Clerk Hendee's office, each striving to be the most accessible J. P. in Waukegan, the battle was at its height.

While worried ministers, unused to these twentieth-century business tactics, pleaded that "the justice of the peace ceremony doesn't leave enough of a lasting impression on a couple," and that therefore all people ought to be married by ministers, and while Bert Love got out his "Let Love Unite You" cards, Justice Wallenwein was making pleas of his own. Always a "close ally of Cupid," he published an offer to marry any couple free during leap year if the girl would file an affidavit that she was the one who did the proposing.

Another offer of Wallenwein's was a free wedding to any couple who would get married on the thirteenth of the month. "If they will face the number thirteen hoodoo," said he, "I am willing to be a party to it by marrying them for nothing."

Sometimes, however, Wallenwein married them for nothing when he had not calculated on it. Rubber checks are frequently handed him by the unbalanced bridegroom, he avers, and some frankly tell him that they are broke—after the knot is tied. One bridegroom said cheerily: "If you really have our best wishes at heart you'll be glad to put this marriage on the books. I'll pay you the next time."

The Nerve of It! They Try to Make a Touch

Wallenwein wearily went back to bed, wondering when "the next time" would be. Later he philosophized: "I don't mind setting up a fellow to a wedding, but I wish they'd come around during the day if they're going to bum a ceremony from me."

Occasionally couples, not content with a free wedding, actually try to panhandle money from the justice. One bridegroom bade farewell with the optimistic speech: "You'll have to wait for your money. I was able to borrow only enough to pay for the fare down here. By the way, could you lend me enough to buy car fare home?"

Recalling such horrid experiences, Wallenwein remarks, "These couples must believe that there is something in the old wise-crack that two can starve more cheaply than one." As a new economic policy he has adopted the well known "dollar down and dollar when you catch 'em" plan.

By last summer business was going so well in Waukegan that nearly all the unemployed had become "hustlers" and taxi drivers were craning out of both windows in the hunt to find the next couple. When trains came in the scene rivaled the rickshaw scramble at a Shanghai dock. "Hustlers" drove their victims to the jewelers for rings, to the doctors for a health certificate for the bridegroom (required under the Wisconsin laws), to the florists for flowers, then, after further shopping if the stores were still open, to the county clerk's office for a license, and at last to a minister or a justice of the peace. At each stopping place the "hustler" had arranged his cut, a fixed percentage of the money spent. But when the frenzied cab drivers began to drive on the left side of the street in their desperate stampedes after likely looking prospects, something had to be done. On Oct. 29, 1934, "street solicitation of bridal couples" was banned by an ordinance passed by the Waukegan city council, but the "reform" has affected business not at all. Solicitation goes on today with hardly less alacrity than during the boom days of last summer.

Another complaint frequently heard of late is that unscrupulous justices marry drunken couples, disregarding the obligations of their office in their frantic scramble for money. Other critics go farther with the idea, saying that any young blade with an edge on knows that he can take a girl, be she slightly primed or solidly plastered, to one of the marriage salons and there, after much "I do" about nothing, be married for from $5 up.

"It is not true," says County Clerk Hendee, "as far as I know. Couples can't get married without a license, and if they are married in this county they must get a license from me. I have never issued a license to a couple under the influence of liquor. It is possible that some couples get drunk after they leave me with their license, and are married drunk, but I know I never have given a license to any couple who in my opinion appeared intoxicated."

Justices Deny They Join Couples Who Are in Cups

The Waukegan justices of the peace also deny marrying any drunken couples, yet frequently in recent years brides who eloped to wake up the next morning sadder and wiser have complained about the justices' lack of scruple. One bride said she was awakened one morning after by a man beating her. When she protested, so she said, the man announced he was her husband and had a perfect right to beat her.

Another girl asked for an annulment on the ground that when she got married she "was too frightened to know what was happening." Sobbing, she revealed that her cruel husband had threatened her life "through fraud and intimidation."

All such efforts by brides to blame the marriage-mongers for their indiscretions Justice Wallenwein labels "just a cheap way of trying to get an annulment."

Even down in the more hardened and franker marriage mill town of Crown Point the justices deny ever even thinking of marrying anyone who whiffs of gin to leeward. In the solemn words of Justice Kemp, uttered under oath in 1929 in Judge Sabath's court: "I don't marry any drunks. I'm sure of that. There's a steep flight of steps up to my office without railings. If they can get up those stairs—why, they're sober, and I marry them."

Military Experts See Disaster for Italians in Ethiopia

Warn Rome Would Pay Heavily for Victory

Downfall of Mussolini a Possible Result

the vanity of a slight resemblance to the great Corsican, strives to emulate his action, the general staf futilely held up the ghastly specter of his model's ill-conceived campaign.

The Italian general staf warned that the climate and geography of Ethiopia and the character of warfare which might be expected from its people would minimize the tremendous advantage of superior training and equipment.

In the end, provided the struggle be pushed unswervingly without regard to its costs, Mussolini was told Italy was bound to be victorious. But the end has every prospect of being a struggle of years and not of the boasted months of the African mobilizations.

Whether Mussolini can survive probable temporary reverses, the groanings under a terrific national expense, and the moanings for heavy loss of life is his gamble. Whether he will push so far against these forces as to bring about his own downfall is in the realm of speculations, along with the predictions that the conflict may set the spark to another world war.

Italy's first great difficulty is the distance over which she must conduct hostilities. Massaua, the port of Eritrea, is 2,500 miles from the base of supplies by the nearest route, which is through the Suez canal. Italian Somaliland is 1,500 miles farther from Italy.

If the Ethiopians had any sort of an air force worthy of the name to patrol the narrow Red sea, along which troop and supply ships must forge their way to Eritrea, they could play havoc with Italian plans. But if Ethiopia had an air force of any strength at all, Italy probably never would have evolved her plans of conquest.

The Suez canal holds a more serious threat to Italy than those of a speculatory nature. At any time England can block the canal to the Italians. Cut off from this route, Italy would be forced to conduct her campaign around thousands of miles of African coast.

And should England persist further in a determination to halt war, she could close Gibraltar to Italian troop and supply ships, so that Italy would have no road to Abyssinia.

It must not be forgotten that England has a strong interest in Ethiopia. Lake Tana, which is the headwater for the Blue Nile and as such is contributory to the fertility of Egypt and the Sudan, is at stake in the conquest. While England can be assured that Italy will not tamper with the lake to imperil the Sudan and Egypt, because of the British navy and the control over the Suez and Gibraltar, which box Italy, England might prefer immediate action to watchful waiting.

Beyond the distant base of supplies, Italy runs into its most formidable obstacle, the geography of Ethiopia. The country, with an area of 400,000 miles, is about the size of Texas and New Mexico. It is without a port, relying on Djibouti in French Somaliland for a maritime outlet. It is hemmed in on all sides by European possessions.

On the eastern and southern fringe are almost impenetrable lowland jungles where thermometers boil at times to 135 degrees. Experts agree that it would be impossible for an army to march through the jungles without terrific waste of life. That would mean almost no hope of success.

Were it not for the fact that the jungle extends through southern Eritrea and well into eastern Ethiopia, the Italian problem would be simplified. An invading army could bend down around French Somaliland to seize the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad as an avenue for supplies and heavy artillery.

The railroad is the only one in Ethiopia. It wends 500 miles from the coast to the capital. The journey is one of two days by virtue of obsolete equipment and inferior construction; that is, two days for passengers and twelve for freight.

The jungle sweeps around the southern boundary and into Italian Somaliland. It precludes the possibility of striking from the south up into Addis Ababa. For this reason only a small portion of the troops have been sent to Italian Somaliland, where they are expected to do little in the torrid heat but patrol the border and make an occasional foray into Abyssinian territory.

Above the jungle Ethiopia rises abruptly to two plateaus, the Ethiopian in the north and the Somaliland in the south. At the center is Addis Ababa, the capital, a nomadic city of 60,000 in the rainy season.

The plateau in the north rises almost sheer to 7,000 feet. It is rich in minerals, extremely fertile, and enjoys temperatures ranging the year around between 50 and 80 degrees. This is the prize Mussolini seeks.

The plateau is fissured by deep canyons and crowned by jagged mountain ranges, which make military operations difficult. There is no road near the Italian border of Eritrea by which troops could bring artillery and tanks into the country.

Italy has a toe hold on the plateau in Eritrea, the capital of which, Asmara, is at the northern extremity of the higher ground. It is from the capital that Italy's military operations are proceeding. Already the 100,000 soldiers in the country have been transformed into workmen and are pushing four roads from the seaport, Massaua, through to the Ethiopian border.

How it is possible for Great Britain to bottle up Italy in the Mediterranean. Gibraltar and the Suez canal, as the map reveals, are England's strategic points on the road to Africa.

In establishing Asmara as the base Italy is following in the footsteps of the 1896 campaign into Ethiopia. When hostilities open it is expected that the Italians will push a railroad into the north of Abyssinia, despite the possibility of French objection. France, by virtue of the Addis Ababa-Djibouti line, holds the right to all future development of railways in the country.

To bridge the yawning chasms and precipitous mountain ranges of the plateau is a major task in a peaceful country. To carry on construction and wage a war is an undertaking which led the Italian general staf to argue against the Mussolini plan.

The staf cited the ill fate of its country's expedition in 1896. Early in that year an Italian army of 13,000 men was cut to pieces by 90,000 Ethiopians under Menelik. The Italians advanced into the country in four brigades. One of these advanced too far and was attacked by an army which seemingly rose out of the ground.

As the remaining brigades came up they were successively cut to pieces. The Italians lost 6,500 men killed and 4,000 prisoners. The battle of Aduwa still rankles in the memory of Italy.

The Italian general staf pointed out that the struggle to come would not differ as greatly from that before the turn of the century as superior training and equipment promise. The character of the country will prevent full employment of arms, and the type of warfare to be expected from its people will make such employment costly.

Ethiopia numbers about 10,000,000 inhabitants. Of these one-third constitute the ruling class of Coptic Christians. They are a fierce, proud non-Negro race of Semitic blood. Two-thirds are Moslems and pagans (some Negroes), who are mainly peasants. All will fight. Amharic is the official and national language. Arabic is widely spoken in commerce. English and French are the social languages and are employed in commerce to some extent.

The country has a standing army, drilled and well equipped, of about 15,000 men, all guards of the emperor, and a militia of about 300,000 men, who are in the employ of various tribal chiefs. The country easily can place an army of 1,000,000 men in the field, but what they will use for arms is unknown. Ten thousand men of the standing army are now in the field below Eritrea.

Until recently, and perhaps at present, the great number of arms in Ethiopia were rifles used by the French in the Franco-Prussian war. After the battle of Sedan the Germans sold to Ethiopia many of the arms taken from French prisoners. These arms already have seen service in the 1896 campaign.

It goes without saying that weapons such as those place the Ethiopians at a hopeless disadvantage. The country has a few machine guns and automatic rifles, relics of the World war.

How great the shipments of arms have been since the first threats of war has been kept a secret both by the Ethiopians and the shippers. England, France, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, and, of course, Italy, have barred shipments of arms to Ethiopia. England has, however, left British Somaliland open to shipments into Ethiopia; France is believed to be doing likewise in French Somaliland. What shipments there have been are believed to have come from Japan, which has enjoyed trading privileges in the country.

The presence of foreign army officers in Ethiopia would indicate that these shipments have been satisfactory. At the court of Haile Selassie are Belgian, Swedish, and German officers who have undertaken to instruct the Ethiopians in the art of war.

No matter how well armed they may be when the struggle breaks, the Ethiopians are not expected to place a large army in the field. For one thing, they are not prepared to provision an army for a long period. The Ethiopians cannot hope to have much more than courage and mobility and will fight a guerrilla warfare, swooping down on Italians, to dart away after inflicting damage.

Italians expect to find every natural vantage peopled with several of the indomitable race. From such concealment the Ethiopians will snipe at their enemy. Should the Italians fall into an unfortunate position they may expect to have the Ethiopians swoop down on them in force with the hope of another Aduwa ringing in their battle cries.

For the Italians to bring heavy artillery to bear against such scattered bands would be extremely costly even if heavy artillery could be brought into play at once. Even light mountain artillery, which the Italians hope to use, will be costly enough. The mountainous nature of the country makes the employment of tanks impossible. Tanks and heavy artillery cannot scale precipitous cliffs and canyons.

The more enthusiastic Italian leaders place great reliance on the Italian aircraft. In a few hours a bombing fleet can reduce Addis Ababa to crumbling ruins, they assert.

The more skeptical answer with: "After Addis Ababa, what?" There are but a few modern structures in Addis Ababa and none in the rest of the country. To bomb every native hut and every band of native guerrillas would make the cost of the war prohibitive. The conservatives declare that the chief value of the planes will lie in scouting toward prevention of another Aduwa.

The most recent demonstration of modern arms against guerrilla warfare in a disadvantageous country took place in the Riff campaigns from 1921 to 1926. In 1921 Abd El Krim led a people no more fierce and no better armed against superior troops. At Anual the Riffs defeated and massacred 19,000 Spanish soldiers. This defeat partially overthrew the Spanish government and by the establishment of the dictatorship of Primo Rivera led to the ultimate end of the Hapsburgs.

In 1925 and 1926 the Riffs encountered the French. France poured 160,000 troops and a fleet of planes against Abd El Krim. Beyond bombing an occasional village and machine-gunning bands of Riffians and scattered herds of goats, the Riff food supply, the planes were used only for scouting purposes.

In a country with less hazardous natural obstacles, the French finally subdued the Riffs, but even today rumors persist that Abd El Krim was bought off. The fact that he was sent to exile, where he is being sustained rather handsomely by the French government, rather than to prison, is cited in support of the rumors.

Ethiopia almost fell into the lap of England in the sixties when the country was awakening from what Historian Gibbon called "the sleep of centuries." A British mission was seized and held by Emperor Theodore. A punitive expedition was sent to the country under Sir Robert Napier.

Theodore died by his own hand and the government collapsed. England might have taken over the land, but she already had enough of Africa. The Napier expedition was carried on at a time when the country was torn by internal strife and the only weapons of its warriors were lances, spears, and swords.

The cost of the Italian expedition to date is more than $50,000,000. This expenditure was part of the impetus which shoved the Italian lira off the gold standard. By the end of the year it is estimated that Mussolini will have expended $160,000,000.

As the Italian army digs into the task of hauling materials to temperate Asmara through the eyebrow-crawling heat of the disease-ridden jungle from Massaua, the cost will mount by leaps and bounds. It will continue to rise through the long road-building necessary for operations before the Italians have taken an inch of Ethiopian territory.

The building of an estimated 800 miles of roadway from Asmara to Addis Ababa is the best measure of the time it will take to subdue Ethiopia. Military experts say this cannot be done in less than two years in the teeth of stubborn Ethiopian resistance and will probably take longer.

Already heat and disease have taken their toll of Italian workers and soldiers. Two thousand workers unable to bear the lowland heat of Eritrea have been returned to Italy. In a few months 70 died from heat prostration, by Italian admission. Of the troops, between 15 and 25 thousand are reported to have been stricken by dysentery.

During early days of conflict the Italians may expect reverses, according to military experts. What effect such reverses may have on the Italian as a soldier is the subject of debate. In the World war Italians wilted under reverses, to rally in the dog days of the conflict as Austria lay exhausted. Some experts believe the Italian morale will crumble under preliminary failure, heat, and disease, while others argue that the morale of the Italian has reached a new, more enduring high under the régime of the blatant Mussolini.

In this connection it is significant, according to observers, that Mussolini is keeping Italian soldiers most adapted to war in Abyssinia at home. These are the troops of the far north, accustomed to wage warfare among the eagle nests of the Alps. This is being done advisedly, as Mussolini must be prepared to meet possible aggression from Jugo-Slavia, long greedy for Italian land.

The Italian troops will go into action under General Grazioli, as General Di Bona has been recalled. Di Bona, who saw action at Aduwa as a lieutenant, is being removed presumably because of his age, although it is whispered the removal is the result of lukewarmness to the expedition.

Grazioli saw service in the subjugation of Libya. There he won a reputation for ruthlessness against the natives and for iron enforcement of discipline.

Military experts concede that in a pitched battle the Italians can expect tactical victory, but add that tactical successes, though they relieve situations, do not make a successful campaign. It is one thing to disperse Ethiopians and quite another to follow them up.

The Italian army may draw itself tense to strike a decisive blow, only to find thin air to aim at. Meanwhile disease and guerrilla bullets will work to decimate the invaders.

Mussolini has leaped his vaulting ambition over the crags of the oldest continuous kingdom of the world—a kingdom which has hitherto escaped partition due to its Christianity. Had it not been converted in the fourth century, long before European nations who divided Africa heard of the gospel, it would have been gobbled up long ago.

The fate of Mussolini's venture and the fate of his dictatorship will be determined when the smoking rains lift over the Ethiopian plateau at the end of this month.

FAVORITE POEMS

GEORGE GORDON BYRON, the sixth Baron Byron, one of England's greatest poets, was born in London on Jan. 22, 1788, and died April 19, 1824, at Missolonghi, a seaport of Greece. Death overtook him while he was on a mission the purpose of which was the liberation of Greece. Much of his childhood was spent in Scotland. He was educated at a preparatory school at Dulwich and at Trinity college, Cambridge. "Don Juan," from which the "Song of the Greek Poet" is taken, was his last and greatest work.

SONG OF THE GREEK POET

The isles of Greece, the isles of Greece!
  Where burning Sappho loved and sung,—
Where grew the arts of war and peace!—
  Where Delos rose, and Phœbus sprung!
Eternal summer gilds them yet;
But all except their sun is set.

The Scian and the Teian muse,
  The hero's harp, the lover's lute,
Have found the fame your shores refuse;
  Their place of birth alone is mute
To sounds which echo farther west
Than your sires' "Islands of the Blest."

The mountains look on Marathon,
  And Marathon looks on the sea;
And musing there an hour alone,
  I dreamed that Greece might still be free.
For, standing on the Persians' grave,
I could not deem myself a slave.

A king sat on the rocky brow
  Which looks o'er sea-born Salamis;
And ships by thousands lay below,
  And men in nations,—all were his!
He counted them at break of day,—
And when the sun set, where were they?

And where are they? and where art thou,
  My country? On thy voiceless shore
The heroic lay is tuneless now,—
  The heroic bosom beats no more!
And must thy lyre, so long divine,
Degenerate into hands like mine?

'Tis something, in the dearth of fame,
  Though linked among a fettered race,
To feel at least a patriot's shame,
  Even as I sing, suffuse my face;
For what is left the poet here?
For Greeks a blush,—for Greece a tear.

Must we but weep o'er days more blest?
  Must we but blush?—our fathers bled.
Earth! render back from out thy breast
  A remnant of our Spartan dead!
Of the three hundred, grant but three
To make a new Thermopylæ!

What, silent still? and silent all?
  Ah, no! the voices of the dead
Sound like distant torrent's fall,
  And answer, "Let one living head,
But one, arise—we come, we come!"
'Tis but the living who are dumb.

In vain,—in vain; strike other chords;
  Fill high the cup with Samian wine!
Leave battles to the Turkish hordes,
  And shed the blood of Scio's vine!
Hark! rising to the ignoble call,
How answers each bold Bacchanal!

You have the Pyrrhic dance as yet,—
  Where is the Pyrrhic phalanx gone?
Of two such lessons, why forget
  The nobler and the manlier one?
You have the letters Cadmus gave,—
Think ye he meant them for a slave?

Fill high the bowl with Samian wine!
  We will not think of themes like these!
It made Anacreon's song divine:
  He served, but served Polycrates,—
A tyrant; but our masters then
Were still at least our countrymen.

The tyrant of the Chersonese
  Was freedom's best and bravest friend;
That tyrant was Miltiades!
  O, that the present hour would lend
Another despot of the kind!
Such chains as his were sure to bind.

Fill high the bowl with Samian wine!
  On Suli's rock and Parga's shore
Exists the remnant of a line
  Such as the Doric mothers bore;
And there perhaps some seed is sown
The Heracleidan blood might own.

Trust not for freedom to the Franks,—
  They have a king who buys and sells;
In native swords, and native ranks,
  The only hope of courage dwells;
But Turkish force, and Latin fraud,
Would break your shield, however broad.

Fill high the bowl with Samian wine!
  Our virgins dance beneath the shade,—
I see their glorious black eyes shine;
  But, gazing on each glowing maid,
My own the burning tear-drop laves,
To think such breasts must suckle slaves.

Place me on Sunium's marbled steep,
  Where nothing, save the waves and I,
May hear our mutual murmurs sweep;
  There, swanlike, let me sing and die.
A land of slaves shall ne'er be mine,—
Dash down yon cup of Samian wine!

Atmosphere of Planets Bared by Astronomy

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

IT HAS become a popular thing among writers of scientific fiction, comic strip artists, and other such literati to picture the neighboring planets, especially Mars, as inhabited by manlike creatures, who are usually motivated by a strong desire to anihilate the earth's population. These beings are nearly always depicted as being quite human in appearance, except for such appendages as wings or fan-shaped ears. They are, if the writers are to be believed, remarkably advanced in their technological development, but thoroughly unneighborly in their attitude toward us.

What are the facts?

The planets, unlike the stars, appear through the telescope not as points of light but as actual spheres. Since they receive their heat from the same sun as we do, and since we know their distances from it, we can calculate the amount of solar heat that warms them, and hence their temperatures.

We can tell the following about the atmospheres of planets: We know the number of different wave lengths present in sunlight. If the reflected sunlight from a planet has certain of these wave lengths missing, particularly those in the ultra-violet, we know that the light must have had its missing part absorbed in the atmosphere of the planet. This not only indicates the existence of an atmosphere, but, since different gases absorb different wave lengths, we can actually tell of what gases it consists.

Then there is a way of calculating whether or not a planet can have an atmosphere. If we throw a ball into the air we know that gravity eventually will overcome its upward motion and bring it back to us. But since gravity decreases with distance from the earth, if the ball were thrown fast enough it might leave the gravitational field faster than it could be slowed down, and thus leave the earth forever. The speed necessary for this is about seven miles a second on the earth, and is the same for a projectile of any size. On a smaller planet, with proportionally less gravity, this necessary speed would be correspondingly less.

The air consists of molecules traveling in random directions at great speed. They are held to the earth by gravity. If they moved faster than seven miles a second they would shoot off the earth entirely. Their actual speed is of the order of several hundred yards a second at ordinary temperatures, and this increases as the temperature rises. Accordingly it is possible that a planet's gravity might be so low, or its temperature so high, or both, that it could not possibly hold an atmosphere.

Just what is necessary to support life? There are two classes of living creatures, plant and animal. Chemically both consist of a mixture of highly complex compounds of carbon and other elements, dissolved or emulsified in water. Since carbon is the element best able to form these complex compounds, there should be present some easily available liquid or gaseous compound of carbon, preferably carbon dioxide. Likewise water in its liquid state is essential, and we should not expect to find living matter, at least of the kind with which we are familiar, any place where the temperature is perpetually above the boiling or below the freezing point of water.

All life involves an expenditure of energy. Plants get this energy from sunlight and store some of it up by converting energy-poor carbon dioxide and water into energy-rich plant material and oxygen. On the other hand, animals, from the ameba to Einstein, really are nothing more than plant parasites. They get their energy by consuming oxygen and plants (or other animals that have eaten plants) and converting them back into water and carbon dioxide. Therefore we can expect plant life only where there is water and carbon dioxide (or perhaps chemically similar compounds), and animal life only where there is oxygen in addition.

The moon, being practically the same distance as the earth from the sun, probably has the same average temperature, about 60 degrees F. Yet, as everyone can see, one of the moon's days is practically equal to 29 of those on earth. As a result the day and night temperatures are not nearly so well averaged as they are on the earth, and much greater extremes are met. Noonday temperatures on the moon are close to that of boiling water, while during the lunar night they may drop to 100 degrees below zero.

Gravity on the moon is only about one-fourth as great as that on the earth. As a result of the combination of this with the high temperatures reached, the moon has long since lost whatever atmosphere it may have had. This absence is clearly shown by the fact that the surface detail of the moon is seen perfectly through a telescope.

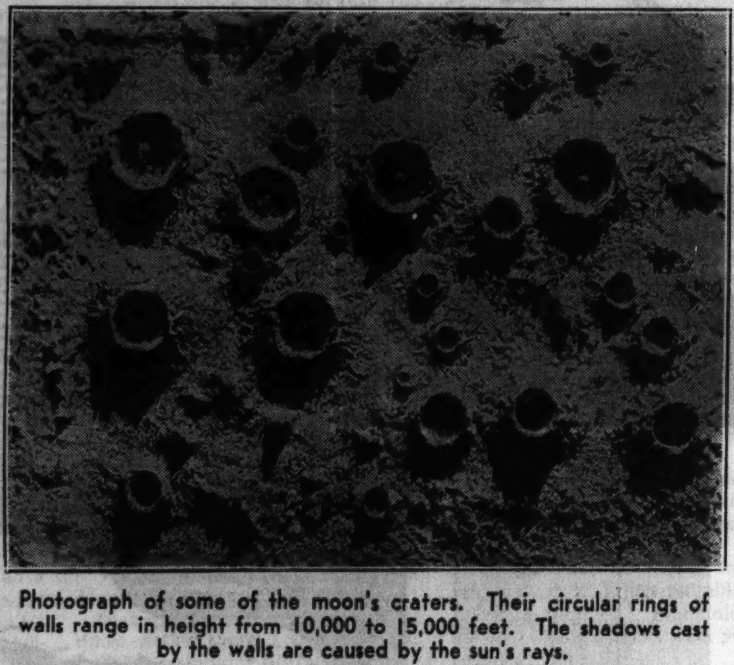
Four phases of a lunar eclipse. The earth's shadow causes the temperature of the moon to drop from 200 above to 150 degrees below zero in a few minutes. The average temperature of the moon probably is about the same as that of the earth—60 degrees—but the range is vastly greater.



Photograph of some of the moon's craters. Their circular rings of walls range in height from 10,000 to 15,000 feet. The shadows cast by the walls are caused by the sun's rays.

We must conclude, then, that the moon could hardly be considered a pleasant place to live. Devoid of atmosphere and water, alternately baked and frozen, it is inconceivable that it could support life of any kind.

Mercury, the smallest of the planets, is only 35 million miles from the sun, as compared to the earth's 93 million. As a result it receives about six times as much heat per square foot, and its average temperature must be about 350 degrees F. However, it always keeps the same side toward the sun, so that the center of this perpetually exposed face reaches 600 degrees. As a result of this heat and the planet's weak gravitational force, Mercury has no atmosphere at all. Therefore, without air or water, and with a climate like a hot stove lid, Mercury may safely be considered as devoid of life.

The planet Venus lies some 65 million miles from the sun and is roughly the same size as the earth. With an average temperature of about 150 degrees and a gravitational pull almost equal to the earth's, it should be expected to have an atmosphere. As a matter of fact, it has; too much of one to please the astronomers, since the face of the planet is perpetually hidden by clouds, apparently of water.

The evidence seems to indicate that Venus keeps the same face turned toward the sun, but the presence of a cloudy atmosphere would be expected to make the temperatures of the light and dark sides more nearly equal than is the case with Mercury. The atmosphere contains no oxygen, so we can hardly expect animals on the planet; yet it contains a lot of carbon dioxide, the food of plants. The temperature of Venus is a little too high for most mundane vegetation, yet certain plant species are known that can stand it.

We know absolutely nothing about the surface of the planet. It may be all ocean, or it may have continents. On its day side it is frightfully hot and humid and is continually being drenched with scalding rain. Perhaps it is quite dead. Perhaps it is slimy with primitive plant life, such as pond scum or bacteria.

Mars is somewhat smaller than the earth and has less gravitational force. It is about 150 million miles from the sun and therefore much colder than the earth. It revolves on its axis at practically the same speed as the earth, so that its day and night temperatures are much closer together than those of Mercury. However, it enjoys much less atmosphere than we do, which permits a more rapid heating and cooling of its surface and greater extremes than those on the earth. The average temperature on Mars is well below zero. On a summer noon in the Martian tropics the temperature is about that of a brisk autumn day in this country, but the Martian night is colder than an arctic blizzard.

The atmosphere on Mars is much rarer than that of the earth, and it contains practically no oxygen, thereby ruling out animal life. However, it probably contains enough carbon dioxide to support vegetation. There are no oceans on the planet, but there still may be enough water for life. Martian plants would have to be fairly rugged to withstand the dryness and the rigors of the arctic weather. If they exist at all they probably resemble lichens as much as anything.

The surface of Mars can be seen in some detail, and there are certain regions near the Martian equator where the color appears to change from green to brown and back with the seasons. This may be due to vegetation, or it may be merely an illusion resulting from the play of light on the rocky surface.

But what about the canals? About sixty years ago an Italian astronomer, Schiaparelli, peered long and intently through a telescope at the indistinct surface of Mars. The planet has some dark patches like those on the moon, and at that time these were thought to be oceans. Schiaparelli thought he could make out some fine, irregular lines connecting these patches, and he called them "canali," or channels. When his paper was set into English, "canali" was translated as "canals."

This caused quite a furor, since a canal implies the existence of intelligent beings to dig it. Other astronomers at once hastened to their telescopes, and, sure enough, some of them could make out the canals after looking a long time. Others, not so well endowed with good eyesight or imagination, could see nothing. The camera, which is also notoriously lacking in imagination, has never been able to photograph a Martian canal.

It might be added that at first some of the more enthusiastic of the pro-canal scientists also reported seeing canals on Venus. This idea was abandoned as soon as it was found that the visible surface of Venus consists of clouds.

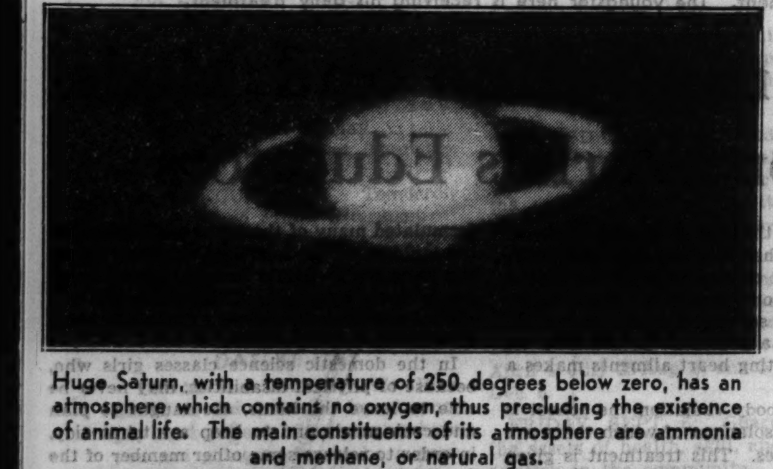
The next two planets, Jupiter and Saturn, have much in common. They are quite cold, having temperatures of —180 degrees and —250 degrees respectively. Because of this, and because of their huge size and resulting high gravitational force, they are both well equipped with atmospheres. Because of their clouds, we can tell nothing of their surfaces. But a study of their atmospheres reveals the following facts:

There is no oxygen present, thereby precluding all chance of finding animal life. Water and carbon dioxide do not appear as gases, having, if present at all on the planets, been frozen out of the atmosphere by the intense cold. The two main constituents of the two planets' atmospheres are ammonia and methane (natural gas).

Organisms containing a lot of water, like those of the earth, would be quickly frozen on these planets. Yet there are many chemical reactions taking place in liquid ammonia which are quite analogous to those taking place in water. Perhaps on Jupiter and Saturn there is life based on liquid ammonia instead of water. If so, its physiology, to say nothing of its forms, would be far beyond the scope of our imagination.

The three planets beyond Saturn —Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto—are so cold that it is unlikely they could support even this hypothetical ammoniacal life. So little is known of their atmospheric conditions that it would be foolish even to guess as to the existence of other kinds of life on them.

There is an unusual amount of uncertainty in all these speculations about other worlds. After all, suppose that all of our astronomers, along with their observatories, were transported to Mars and set to work examining the earth from that distance. They probably could see the continents and the oceans. Perhaps they might be able to make out living matter in the form of the vast tropical forests. But not a trace would they see of man or his works.



Huge Saturn, with a temperature of 250 degrees below zero, has an atmosphere which contains no oxygen, thus precluding the existence of animal life. The main constituents of its atmosphere are ammonia and methane, or natural gas.

Venus, here photographed in line of vision with the moon, is roughly the same size as the earth and has an average temperature of about 150 degrees. Nothing is known of the surface of the planet, as it is perpetually swept by clouds, apparently of water.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Here and There Among the Dogs

INASMUCH as all of us who own dogs must be interested in the problem of feeding these animals in our homes, it follows that what the veterinarians have to say about correct dog diets is bound to be worth reading.

Of course, the veterinarians do not agree on the kinds of food that are best for a dog. Therefore all of us who own dogs are sometimes a bit puzzled about the problem of arranging a diet for our pets. Recently we had occasion to read a statement by a Chicagoland veterinarian on this question. Some of the most interesting parts of it are as follows:

"Admitting this plausible theory [that the dog was a flesh-eating beast in his wild state], the question at once arises: Has domestication created or developed in him the power, which his master possesses, of accommodating himself to changes of foods and to other altered conditions and thereby rendered him capable of subsisting quite as well on a mixed diet of vegetable and animal substances as he once did on an almost exclusive diet of meat?

"Scientific reasoning and experience answer in the affirmative; yet this solution is not universally accepted, and there are many who, arguing mainly from structural peculiarities, insist that the dog is purely a flesh eater and that animal foods alone are suited to his requirements.

"Centuries have passed since the dog was redeemed [from the wild state], and in all these he has been a friend and companion of man. Sharing as he has the mixed diet of his master, he surely must have felt the force of habit, to which no animal can be insensible, and acquired at least a tolerance for vegetable foods, if not an actual need for them.

"While his [the dog's] nature is such that he must have some meat always, the quantity must be adjusted to the amount of work given him."

This line of thought is that followed by most dog breeders and owners today. And it seems sound and sensible. Put into fewer words, it means that dogs need meat to be normal and healthy. But they do digest and derive nourishment from other foods. As for the amount of meat to be given, you will notice that invariably owners of sporting dogs increase the meat ration during the hunting season, when the dog is working hard. We follow this same schedule with our hunting dogs, and we notice that owners of setters and pointers with whom we have hunted in a number of states do the same thing.

American scientists have learned a lot about dog dietetics in recent years, especially those scientists who have been interested in prepared foods for dogs. When these men develop a formula and feed it to several successive generations of dogs, and these generations are strong, normal, healthy animals with normal offspring, one must admit that this "meat plus" diet apparently is pretty sound.

So don't be afraid to give your dog meat winter and summer. Meat (plus other approved foods) is vital for the health of your dog. The dog that is fed meat, plus a certain amount of cereal and a few vegetables for their mineral qualities, should be and invariably is a healthy one. It is the sort of varied diet provided for the dogs belonging to this department. And a few Sundays ago when one of them (Mike of Barrington, a Labrador retriever) was winning best of breed at the Northbrook show, these things were noticeable: his clear eyes, sound flesh, glossy, thrifty coat, and healthy skin. You do not get these in a dog when he is fed incorrectly.

Chesapeake Bay Club President Here

A MAN every Chesapeake Bay retriever owner in Chicagoland would enjoy meeting was in Chicago recently. He is Anthony Bliss of Westbury, N. Y., the youthful but energetic president of the Chesapeake Bay Retriever Club of America, and also president of the Long Island Retriever club.

Mr. Bliss asked this department if he could meet a number of retriever owners while he was in Chicago for a few hours, so several dog fanciers that lean to Chesapeake, Labrador, and golden retrievers were on hand to greet him. He was especially interested in the coming field trial for retrievers which doubtless will be held the last Saturday and Sunday in October. Mr. Bliss promised that several of his Chesapeakes would be sent out to compete in the first field trial of this kind ever to be held in the middle west. The trial will be staged by the newly organized Midwest Field Trial club, specializing in the retriever breeds.

While he was here Mr. Bliss commented on the fact that there were many Chesapeake Bay owners in the middle west. Naturally he is much interested in futhering the interests of the breed out here, but there is not much planned effort in this section in behalf of the Chesapeakes. The east is 'way ahead of us in this respect, although there is no reason why it should be.

Some idea of how sportsman owners of retrievers here in the middle west are showing lack of interest in organized work to promote the interests of the dogs so valuable to upland game and marsh hunting can be realized when you scan the list of clubs for Chesapeakes and Labradors in the east, note their schedules for trials, and then check on the lack of these activities out here.

Mr. Bliss told us that in addition to Chesapeakes coming west for the October field trial, very likely Jay Carlisle of New York would send a large string of trained dogs (Labradors) to compete in the trial.

A. W. Harris, veteran Chicago banker, is one of the most active Chesapeake Bay breeders in the Chicago district. He conferred with Mr. Bliss the other day when the latter was in the city. Mr. Harris and David P. Scobie of Lake Forest, who is a golden retriever fancier, were honored by the Long Island Retriever club a few weeks ago by being elected honorary members of that organization. This honor and courtesy was extended because of the efforts these two men are exerting in behalf of all retriever breeds here in the middle west.

The Wood Tick Problem

THE mail bag continues to bring letters about wood ticks. Most of them ask if there is any preparation that can be put on a dog to keep ticks from boring into the skin of the animal.

This has been a difficult summer in the wood tick versus dog battle. The season is one that has been producing a bumper crop of the little vermin that bore into the skin and develop severe irritations. All of us who have spent much time in the woods have had our troubles with the ticks, just as the dogs are now being bothered by them. (We have hunted in some sections of Brazil where the major problem of each day was trying to get rid of a fresh crop of wood ticks!)

Although a mixture of alcohol and ether (four or five parts of the former to one of the latter) will quickly put a wood tick "out," so that it can be removed easily from a dog's skin, it's another story trying to find something that will prevent a tick from staying on a dog. I asked a veterinarian the other day if he could recommend a preparation that would do this trick. He said that drugs strong enough to keep ticks off a dog also were strong enough to irritate the dog's skin, so he could offer little help on this problem.

It is not difficult to appreciate the logic of this statement. Ticks are hardy parasites. They are not killed easily. Moreover, it's not very convenient to smear a dog with something that is strong enough to keep ticks away.

When removing a tick from a dog, simply dab a piece of cotton soaked in alcohol to which has been added a small amount of ether. Hold it on the tick for a second or two and then remove the parasite.

Those "New" Breeds

THE way "new" breeds pop up is a source of great interest to this department. A letter this week inquires about a "Canadian shepherd."

The writer says that the dog was sold as a Canadian shepherd and the breed originated by crossing a Pomeranian and the "true shepherd." According to the correspondent, "the general appearance of this dog leads many people to believe that he is a chow, but there is a noticeable difference in their appearance."

THE QUESTION BOX

Will you kindly send me all the material you have on chows and wire-haired terriers? I intend to breed these two breeds and would like to know more about them.—Miss B. P., Argyle street, Chicago.

This department has no free books or leaflets on breeds which can be sent you. But suggestions on books to buy are being sent you by mail. It is possible to procure very complete works on chows and wires which tell about their origin, their characteristics, etc.

I have a chance to get a ten-week-old English setter—a thoroughbred dog. Will you kindly give me some information about the English setter? Is he a good companion? Also would he be all right for a house dog? I would appreciate some information as to the feeding of the dog, and can you suggest several nice names that would be appropriate for the English setter?—Mrs. I. C., Henderson street, Chicago.

The English setter is a delightful dog—affectionate, intelligent, and good looking, too. Dogs of that breed make good companions. You need have no hesitation about one being a satisfactory home pet, although you must remember that a dog of the size and temperament of the setter requires more exercise and is a much more active dog than some of the smaller and quieter breeds. A leaflet on feeding the dog is being sent to you by mail. I am sorry I can offer you no suggestions on names. By the time I think up enough names to go around for my own dogs my stock is exhausted!

Crippled Children Taught to Forget Their Handicaps

Almost every boy is fascinated by the art of printing. These youngsters are learning how to operate a small press.

The school has a staf of eleven physiotherapists who massage and manipulate the bodies of children requiring such treatment. The youngster here is receiving his daily treatment.

How It Is Done at Chicago's Famous Spalding School

By SALLY JOY BROWN

CHICAGO is the proud possessor of the largest public school for crippled children in the United States. The Spalding school, located at Washington and Ashland boulevards, is considered one of the finest schools of its type and has been the inspiration and model for educators planning similar institutions in other cities in this country, Canada, and foreign countries.

During the most recent school year alone orthopedic surgeons, educators, and nurses from every state in the Union; from London, Berlin, Montreal, Vienna, Buenos Aires, Tokio, Shanghai, Sydney, and the British Indies, traveled to this city to inspect the building of the Spalding school, which was completed in 1928.

One of four schools provided by the Chicago board of education especially for the handicapped child, it was carefully designed and equipped with every possible convenience and accommodation for children who by reason of disease, accident, or congenital deformity could not attend a regular public school with safety and profit.

It is not merely for segregation, however, that handicapped youngsters are sent here, but for an education as well. The curriculum ranges from kindergarten through high school, and scholastic standards are exactly those of the regular Chicago public schools.

Infantile paralysis, cardiac ailments, spastic paralysis, and tuberculosis of the bone are the most prevalent causes of handicaps in pupils.

Accommodating close to one thousand pupils, the building consists of three floors, connected by gently sloping ramps, elevators, and staircases, in order that each child may have a mode of transportation suited to his needs. Classrooms are bright and airy; corridors are spacious.

The first floor includes a dining room in which each student has a warm lunch at noon, a dental office, classrooms, kindergarten and nursery school, swimming pool, physiotherapy treatment center, a hydrotherapy treatment tank and an ultraviolet ray room.

The swimming pool, large and tiled, is one of the chief sources of recreation. Children enter it deformed human beings—once in the warm, kindly water, they are transformed into normal, joyous youngsters, splashing, swimming, and diving. Boys whose handicaps were obvious and pitiful as they filed into the room became as any other group of mischievous lads in the water. Such exercise has great therapeutic value, as muscles which ordinarily refuse to obey often become willing aids in the tank, which is kept at a temperature of about 90 degrees. At one end of the pool a low table has been erected under water, where a pupil may be supported while the corrective exercises are performed with the help of an instructor.

The physiotherapy treatment center is equipped with numerous roomy booths, curtained off for individual treatments, containing adjustable tables (the law of gravity is utilized in encouraging a weak limb to perform its duties) and large lamps for baking and circulation stimulation. In these booths eleven physiotherapists massage and manipulate the bodies of children requiring such treatment. Other booths are surgical dressing stations in charge of trained nurses. Two nurses are provided for the particular care of cardiac cases, in booths lined with cushioned benches in order that the child may be under no more strain than is absolutely necessary. A Chicago board of health physician makes routine "contagion" inspection daily, as he does in all public schools; a dentist is in daily attendance, and a physician provided by an organization fighting heart ailments makes a weekly visit.

An Inspiration and Model for World's Educators

For complete body radiation the school is equipped with a solarium of which there are but two duplicates. This treatment is given on a physician's recommendation. Wearing only loin cloths, which are made and laundered by the home economics classes, and provided with goggles for eye protection, the children mount a moving platform. Standing in a portion ruled off to an equal distance between lights, the child is propelled at the recommended speed into a cabinet which contains six violet ray lamps, three on each side.

The nursery school, for pupils from two to four years old, recently was inaugurated. It is equipped with specially built tricycles and similar toys, a dolls' house, a tiny platform of stairs with protective banisters on either side for the purpose of corrective exercise, and a mirror which reflects the child's posture and shows mistakes.

On the second floor are the high school classrooms, special shops, grammar grade rooms, the art room, and library. In addition to prevocational, sight saving, deaf and hard of hearing, speech and special spastic, and remedial reading classes, training in commercial typing, shorthand, comptometry, mimeograph, pottery, basket weaving, loom weaving, printing, sheet metal, personal hygiene, photography, electricity, brace repair, cooking, laundry, and home-making are available.

In the Janeil shop, named after the late principal of the school, Miss Jane Neil, who formulated many of the plans and supervised the building of the school, is exhibited exquisite hand work—dainty dresses, purses, beautifully made by pupils. The handicrafts and similar courses provide every pupil with some medium of self-expression.

In the domestic science classes girls who, because of physical disabilities, may never be able to leave the home, are taught to plan and cook meals and to keep a kitchen tidy, in order to release some other member of the family for remunerative work.

Every child in the school has a prescribed rest period. For this purpose there are located on the third floor of the building two huge, airy rest rooms, equipped with hundreds of cots. Here in dim quiet, under supervision of a nurse or an attendant, the child must at least lie quietly—may sleep if he wishes.

Play room is provided on the roof—two huge wings are fenced in for safe recreation during recess periods. There are also two gymnasiums, equipped with balls and bats, table tennis tables, rings, and ladders for those children able to use them.

Transportation to and from the school is provided by a fleet of 23 large buses, which are backed in to a large platform at the rear of the building, where wheel chairs and braces await the boys and girls in need of them. The bus attendants are friends to these youngsters. We watched a stalwart six-foot man lift a tiny boy from a wheel chair, cradle him gently in his arms, with a grin and a greeting, "Here's my pal!" as he eased him into his place in the car.

School begins at 9 a. m., and each pupil has milk or cocoa and crackers on arrival. Many have a light lunch at recess, and those in need of it receive cod liver oil or specially prescribed diets.

THIS BOY JOE

By Booth Tarkington

Mabel's Mysterious Suitor Is Revealed, and Joe Hadley Receives a Shock—He Again Goes to See Anita Blythe

THE STORY TO DATE

Joe Hadley is a sentimental high school student of the small town of Aurora, Ind. His mother has recently died. His father is a state senator. While he is at the capital Joe's sister, Emma, tries to keep watch over Joe, as does his Uncle Milt, his mother's brother, who lives with them and on them. Joe meets Madge Alterbeck and her chum, Mabel Benns, at a roadhouse in Columbia City, where he is taken by his sporting friend, Yeastie Marshall. Yeastie is driving a new car which he tells Joe is a gift from his family. Joe falls for the cheap glamor of Madge and desires to convert her to a higher life. Ben Webster, a detective, appears at the roadhouse. Yeastie hustles Joe away, leaving the car behind. Next day he sends Joe back for the car. On the way back to Aurora Joe is followed by a man in a shabby touring car. He leaves the car on a side street for Yeastie to pick up. His father is having trouble, having gone against a crooked bill sponsored by Gus Cooper, the town boss. He returns home a broken man, to die soon after. Joe calls on Madge and proposes marriage, but she doesn't take him seriously. His sister Emma marries Edgar Morrison, a fine-principled young man. Madge sends for Joe and tells him she'll marry him as soon as he gets a job.

INSTALMENT VII.

A COUPLE on another bench were kissing each other now and and then, I'd noticed, and it made me feel like not kissing anybody, but I did. I couldn't help it. I did it more than once—I don't know how many times—then all of a sudden I stopped. I don't know all the reasons that stopped me, but one was I began to feel I wasn't kissing anyone, not kissing somebody that was in love with me, not even kissing a human being at all—because it came over me that being kissed didn't mean anything on earth to her.

I hated Madge, but more I hated myself, and right in the very instant when I stopped kissing her a most terrible picture came into my mind—the picture of Anita Blythe, cool and still and fine, with her delicate, beautiful hands on the piano keys in that lovely room where she'd played to me. It was like being struck by lightning.

Madge put her arm around me, too. "You're sure my sweetie now," she said in a soft voice. But I could hear her going on chewing a little. "Guess we better be easing back along toward home now, presh. I promised old Mittie I'd help her clean up a room for a new boarder she's got coming." She pulled me up and kept her arm around me; we walked out of the park that way, because as long as she kept her arm there I didn't see how I could take mine away.

She talked about when we'd be married and what sort of a job I was going to get—I didn't know—and I felt as if I'd jumped off the creek bank at Deep hole, where our crowd of boys used to swim, and had drowned myself.

JUST before we came to Gerling's drug store she began to talk about Mabel Benns' great friend again. "Listen, presh," Madge said, "are you honest sure you know him? Mabe wouldn't want to put in all the time she does listening to all that big talk and having to say, 'O, my, ain't you wonderful, Mr. B.?' if he's phony, see? It'd be a waste, see? I'm awful anxious to know for sure if he's the real goods, hon presh. Mabe gets kind of dizzy from rich talk and I got to look out for her sometimes. You sure about this Mr. B., presh—that he ain't just only Mr. Big-Talk-Little-Do?"

"Mr. B.?" I asked her. "You mean Mr. C.?"

"No," she said. "Mr. B."

"Mr. B.?' I said again. Had I made a mistake? Could I be going to fall down on this, too? Didn't I hold my enemy, Cooper, in the hollow of my hand after all? "You told me what he looked like. He does look like that, doesn't he?"

"Yes, of course." We'd stopped at her gate by this time. "Listen, hon presh," she went on. "I guess it's O. K. me telling you anything like this, us being engaged. I got his name on his calling card—he gave me one, and he's great on those cards of his, like he's proud of 'em and they help make him high-hat. I don't remember his full name, but you're my own boy now, and I'm going to show it to you. It's on this card, and there's more on it besides, where it shows he's in the government. I stuck it down one of those tin vases on the parlor mantelpiece. You come in a minute and I'll show it to you. Then we'll know!"

We went in the house and into the mean little parlor off the hallway. There wasn't anybody there, and Madge went to the bent metal vase of the pair that was on the mantelpiece and took out the card.

"O, yes," she said as she handed it to me, "there's something else about him I forgot to tell you. He wears a light suit lately, and it's got a black band around one arm he's kind of stuck on, too, you can see. Listen, sweetie, you can pass me some more dope on this Mr. B. now, can't you?"

I was looking at the card. The little that was left of the world for me after I'd kissed her seemed to be going 'round and 'round. I wasn't ordinarily dizzy; I was as near fainting as I ever had been. I'd never walk into Cooper's office as I had so often planned. Cooper was where he always had been and where he'd stay, on the top of the wave—no matter what he deserved for what he'd done. Worse than that, and strange, too, but looking at that card was another stroke of lightning, and in the flash I knew that I'd been out of my head about Madge Alterbeck just because she was a girl, and wild and pretty—and now I didn't care whether she was wild or not, and she wasn't even pretty any more. There was only one beautiful thing in the world to me, and that was Anita Blythe—and I was going to have to marry Madge Alterbeck. Somehow that all jumped up at me from the card I loked down upon, the card I'd expected to be Cooper's.

It wasn't. This was what it was:

MILTON POTTER BELL, ESQre.
Formerly Vice Consul
Hankow, China

Our house was dark when I got home, all except a light in the front hall that old Anna'd left when she went to bed. I carried a key now, and I let myself in, but didn't go upstairs to my room. Instead I went into the sitting room and didn't even turn on the light. I flopped down in a chair with my arms dangling down outside the chair's arms.

That was one of the meanest little times, sitting there, I ever had; but I did some thinking during it—thinking mostly made up of questions.

I'd had another birthday; I was going on nineteen, and what had I done with my life so far, and what had I done to the life I'd have to live from now on—and why? Girls! And me only yesterday a confident, high-handed young strongheart with a dangerous secret in my grasp, going to walk in on the great Gus Cooper and crush him with it!

We gave the happy travelers their bright and brisk welcome when they got home next afternoon toward evening; at any rate, Uncle Milt did. He superintended Edgar, going upstairs behind him and telling him where to put the bags Edgar was carrying, and saying what a gratification it was to add him to the household and how the old place would have new young voices in it now, all he retained for himself was his accustomed chair by the fireside, and so on.

Emma and Edgar were kind and gay. I tried to listen to what they were telling me about their trip, but before long I said I'd have to study and went up to my room—they didn't mind. I did try to study, too, because I had the last of my last exams the next day, and it was a nightmare; but I got through it—and then, all except for just the graduation exercises, which I didn't think I'd attend—there I was, out in the world! Out in the world, with nothing to do, and engaged to Madge Alterbeck—and wondering if I couldn't put off calling her up one more day.

I DID put it off. I put it off two more days; then I thought I'd just have to. I got that old man, Pop, at Gerling's on the wire and asked him if he'd go over to Mrs. Mittie Alterbeck's and call Madge for me; but he said to leave the message and she'd call me back. She didn't, though; not till the day after that—she said over the telephone Pop hadn't let her know until just a few minutes before she called me. Then she went on: "Listen, presh, I guess you want a date for another walk tonight, but honest, hon, I can't. It ain't anything like what you think. Honest! It's I and my stepmother got some relations from over at Hinesville came in on the interurb' 'safternoon and going to stay over clear till Sunday eve. So don't give me a ring till after then, presh. Make it Monday."

"Yes, Madge."

Later I went for a walk, and while strolling along I heard from behind me the old whistled signal the boys in our crowd had always used, and I'd hardly time to turn to see who it was when Yeastie Marshall whizzed up in a new looking roadster and stopped at the curb. He was dressed like New York, and beside him was one of the prettiest and most nicely dressed blonde girls I ever saw in my life, the kind you see in the newspapers and the films—just stepped out of the Follies or Hollywood. She looked jolly and friendly, too; both of them seemed smiling and gay and to be having a good time together.

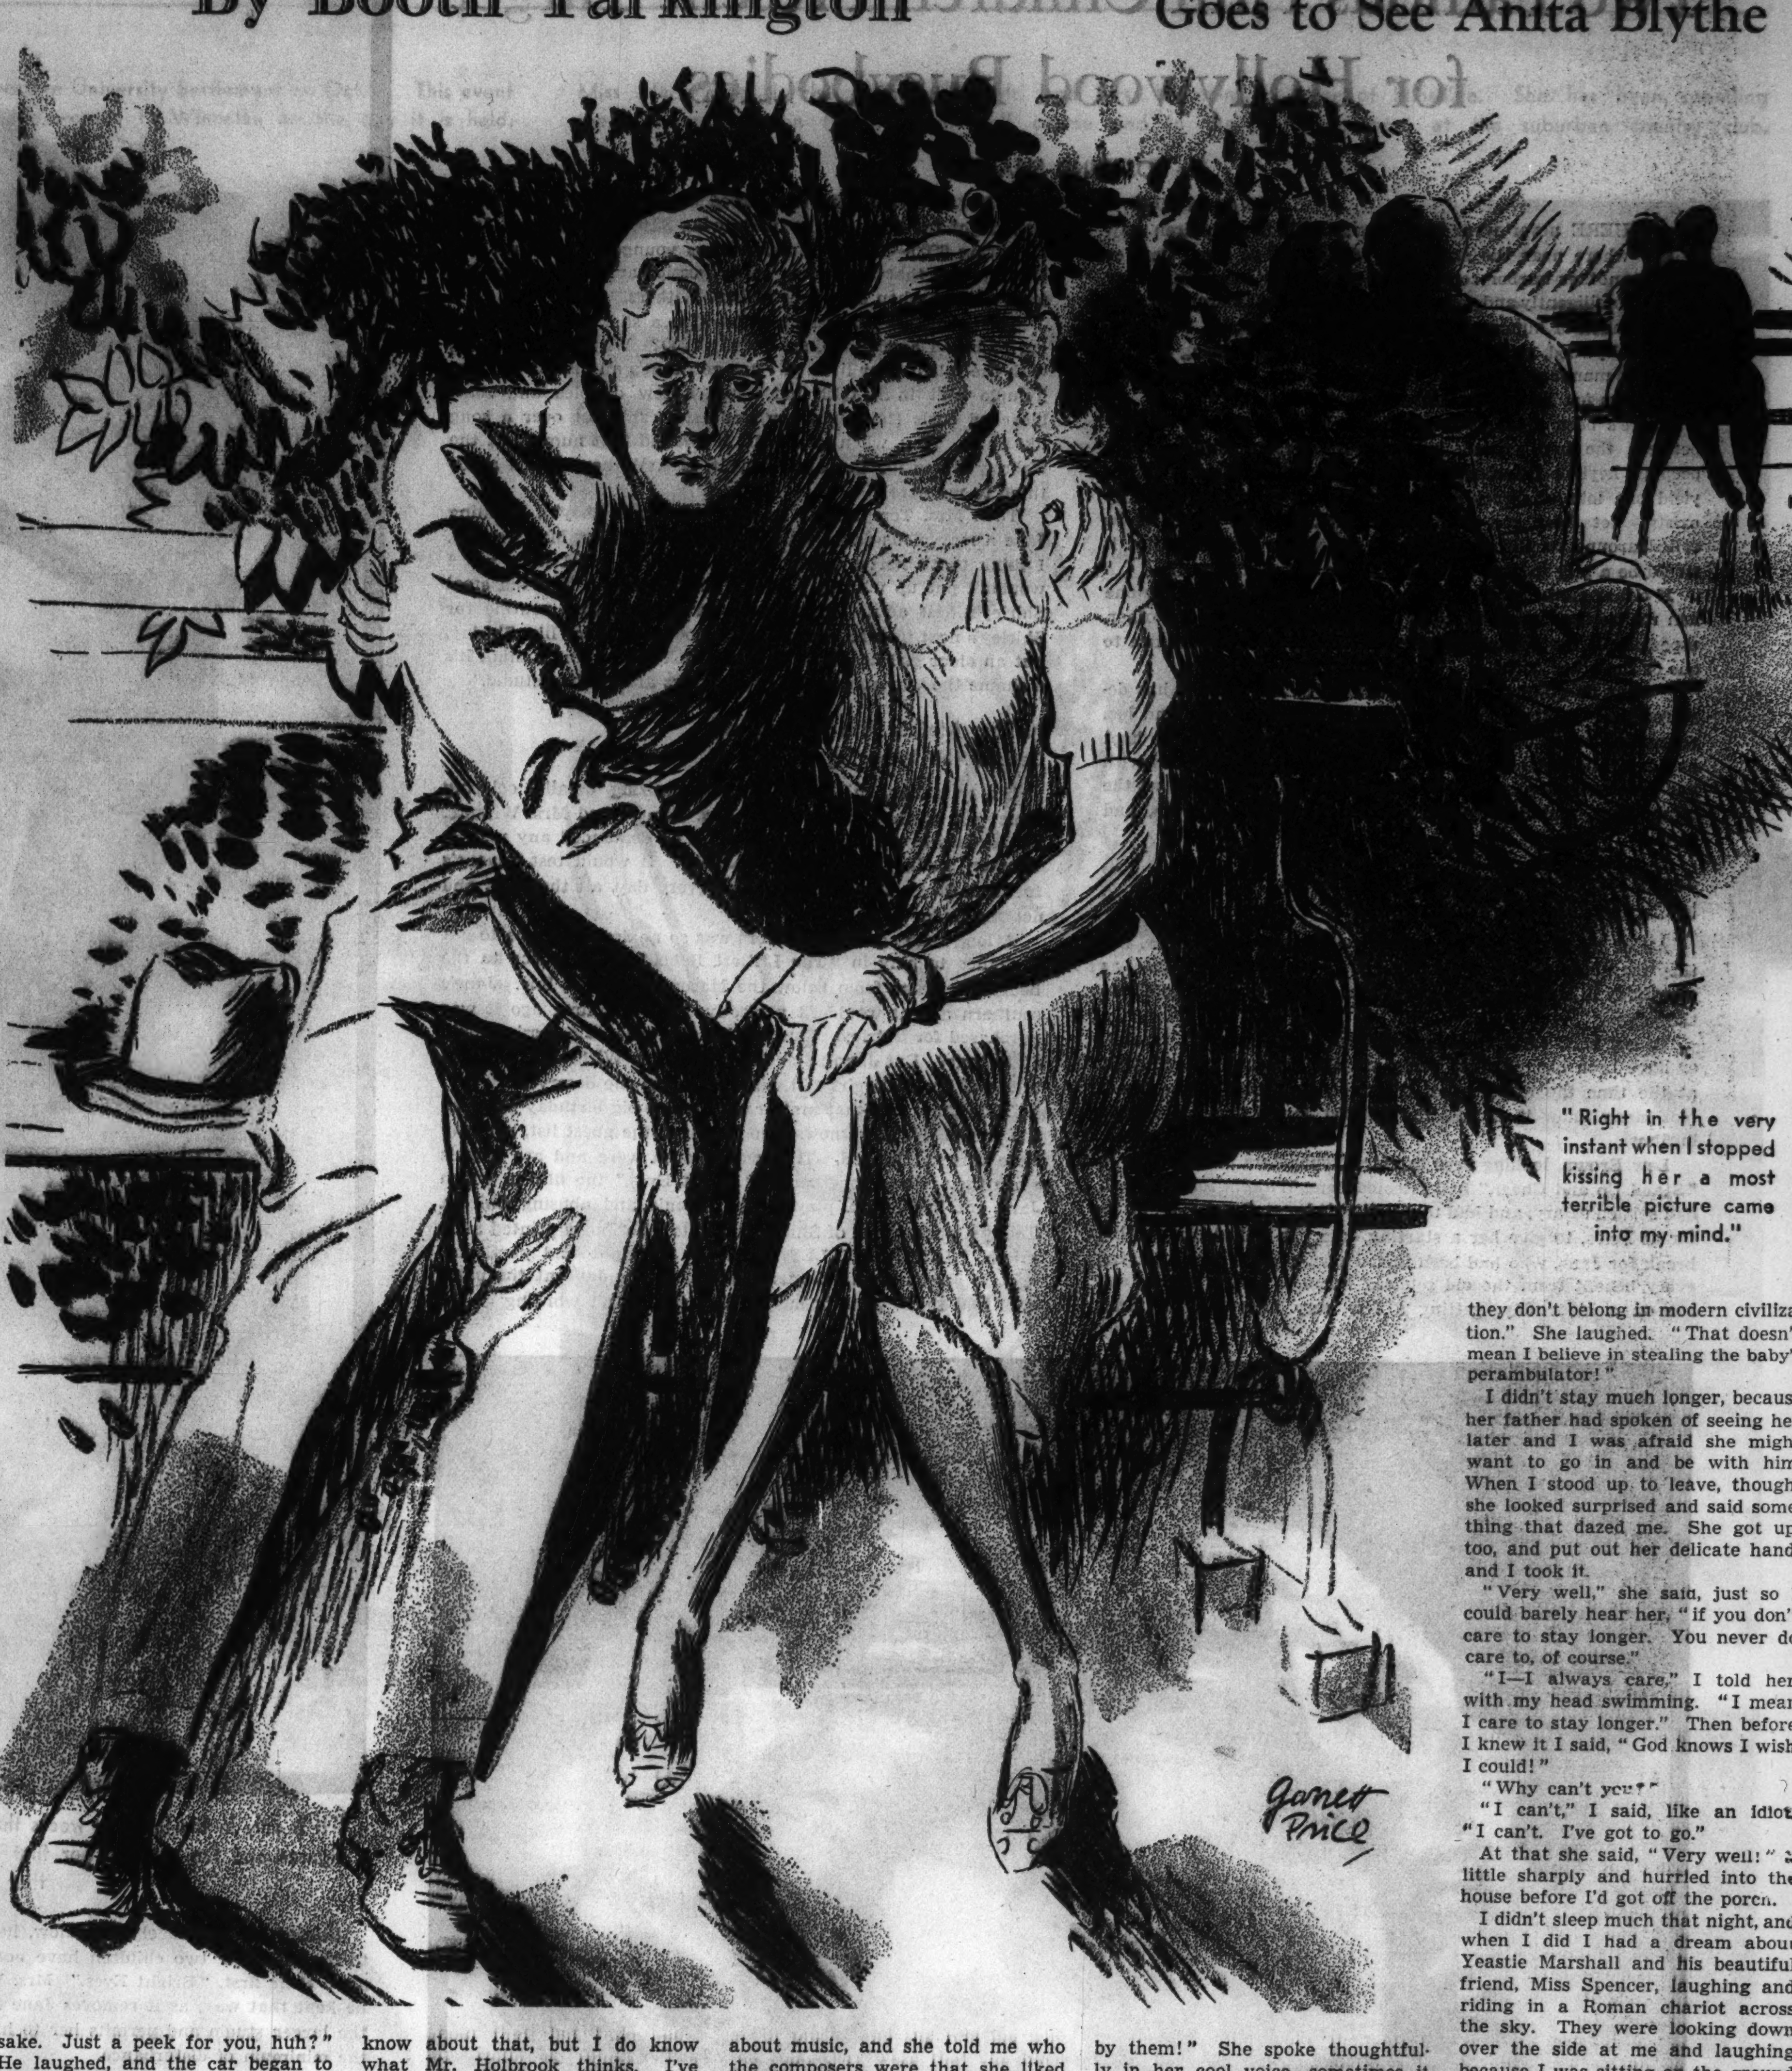
"Hello, guy!" Yeastie said, and leaned out to shake hands with me. "Meet my little friend, Miss Spencer."

She gave me her hand, too, and said, "Glad!" I just mumbled.

Yeastie laughed. "Same old bashful Joe! How's tricks with you, old berry, anyhow?"

"All right," I said.

He motioned toward her with his elbow, and his expression showed how proud of her he was. "Well, just wanted to give you a chance to lamp something, guy, for old time's sake. Just a peek for you, huh?" He laughed, and the car began to move on. "Only here for the day. Be good, guy!"



"Right in the very instant when I stopped kissing her a most terrible picture came into my mind."

That was all. Just a stop to say hello for a minute, and they swept on up the street, with Miss Spencer waving her hand out of the side to show she was cordial. So Yeastie was on the top of the wave, too, like Gus Cooper, and he'd stopped to show off to me that he was. Nobody could have looked happier than he did, and I knew he felt that way.

He was getting away with murder, or almost, and he was happy. The same thing could be said of Gus Cooper, only on a tremendously bigger scale. And, good heavens! Were they the only ones? Even Anita's father, Jackson Blythe, was getting on in the world splendidly in a way that certainly wasn't morally creditable to him, according to Edgar Morrison—and Edgar was anything but uncharitable in his opinions.

I started the next morning looking for a job, and I didn't put my preferences in the way anywhere. For that matter, I didn't have many preferences, though I tried the newspaper offices first and had some confidence that if I could get taken on as a cub reporter I could make fairly good. I'd been on the staf of the high school weekly and taken a high school course in journalism, and outside of that I'd always been trying to write, more or less. Of course, the papers turned me down, and so did everybody else; people were being let off, not taken on everywhere. There's hardly anybody in the United States doesn't know about that, naturally.

Edgar Morrison would have helped me get something if he could, but even the Holbrook plant was drawing in and having to let experienced people go. Edgar felt fairly safe himself, but only fairly, and there wasn't any chance he would work me in out there. After I'd been around town day after day, asking, I had an idea and spoke of it to him one evening.

"When a business goes into bankruptcy the receiver carries it on, doesn't he?" I asked him. "He goes on hiring and firing, doesn't he?"

Edgar understood what I was thinking of, but he frowned. "You mean you might try to get something at the Ancaster Tile company from Jackson Blythe, since he's the receiver? I don't think I'd want to if I were you, exactly."

"Why not, Edgar?"

"Well, I may be putting too fine a point on it," he said. "I don't know about that, but I do know what Mr. Holbrook thinks. I've heard him talk about it. It looks as if Blythe probably would let that company run down—on the surface. That is, he may let the deficit increase. There are a good many ways of doing that—paying high wages to untrained or inefficient employés is one of 'em—and then, when the business looks hopeless to outsiders, he might get a court order to sell it and it would go cheap. The idea seems to be that Cooper would buy it in, and after that they'd start in and build it up. Of course, Jackson Blythe would get his share, all right, and they'd make a big thing out of it before they're through, because except for the depression's hitting it the Ancaster business was good and growing."

I didn't try the Ancaster offices, but I did keep on trying everywhere else. There was hypocrisy in my feelings, too, of course, but I thought I had to show myself I was trying my best to keep my word to Madge.

I'D called her up at Gerling's, as she'd told me to, and she'd come over there to answer me, but said her relatives from Hinesville had decided to stay till Thursday of that week and for me to ring her up Thursday evening. I did, hoping her relatives had changed their minds again, but they hadn't. She met me at Gerling's, and we walked, and her hand was too warm in mine, but I couldn't help it. I tried to steer our course away from that little park with the benches, but that was no use, either. She was bound to go there and sit a while on a bench. I had to kiss her again, too—as if I was kissing something dead, and me deader than it was. Then we dragged back to Mrs. Mittie Alterbeck's, but there seemed to be a kind of party going on in the parlor, so I didn't have to go in.

I'd been keeping away from Anita Blythe's house, but I went to see her again. It was midsummer moonlight, and before I got to her gate I saw she was sitting out on the front porch in a wicker chair, and alone. Walking on toward the gate and knowing I was going to turn in there and talk to her, I felt as if I were coming closer into the presence of some silvery angel made of the brightness that came down to the earth from so high, high above.

We didn't talk about much for a while. I asked her to tell me whatever she thought I could understand about music, and she told me who the composers were that she liked the most, and why. A good deal of what she said was over my head, and I liked it that way, because I wanted to look up to her in such matters, just as I'd have given anything on earth—if I'd had anything—to have her feel rightly that I was above the average in dealing with those affairs a man ought to know more about than a woman would. But I couldn't think of any way at all in which I was her equal, and I sat there worshiping her and feeling guilty toward Madge because I was there and ashamed of talking to Anita when I was feeling guilty toward Madge.

When I'd been there about an hour a taxi drove up and her father got out and came in. He stopped on the porch to speak to us, a tall, fashionable looking, handsome man, nearly always smiling. "Well, young fellow," he said to me, "haven't seen you here for some time. Getting ready to go to college, I suppose?"

"No, sir, I'm afraid not."

"Just as well," he said. "Anybody with a modern high school education is as well off as anybody else—these days, certainly." He stepped over to Anita and kissed her on the cheek fondly, and she put her hand on his shoulder. "Sorry I couldn't get home to dinner," he told her. "I hope you weren't lonely."

She answered him in her lovely voice: "Yes, I was. I always am if you don't come. You know it."

"I hope I do," he said, and laughed affectionately. "I'll be in the study working after while if you care for a good-night cigaret." Then he touched her head softly with his hand, said to me, "Good luck, young fellow!" and went indoors.

When he went into the house now she looked after him until he'd got clear into the front doorway, and her eyes had that shining, alive look in them of hers—all the more, it seemed, in the moonlight. I knew she wouldn't ever guess it was thinking of him made me ask her the question I did, one I'd wanted a long time to ask her. "Anita," I said, "what do you think's the real truth about—about——"

"About what?"

"About everything," I said. I didn't know just how to put it. "I mean you hear more and more nowadays about everything people used to be brought up to believe being just the bunk. Do you think that's so?"

"Of course I don't," she said. "There are certain decencies in life, and I despise people who don't abide by them!" She spoke thoughtfully in her cool voice—sometimes it sounded even a little cold. "I'm modern. I'll tell you what I believe in. I believe in the strong. What I admire most is a strong man. I admire a man who sweeps old-fashioned conventionalities aside, or even old-fashioned virtues, if you will. Most of 'em were silly, and they don't belong in modern civilization." She laughed. "That doesn't mean I believe in stealing the baby's perambulator!"

I didn't stay much longer, because her father had spoken of seeing her later and I was afraid she might want to go in and be with him. When I stood up to leave, though, she looked surprised and said something that dazed me. She got up, too, and put out her delicate hand, and I took it.

"Very well," she said, just so I could barely hear her, "if you don't care to stay longer. You never do care to, of course."

"I—I always care," I told her, with my head swimming. "I mean I care to stay longer." Then before I knew it I said, "God knows I wish I could!"

"Why can't you?"

"I can't," I said, like an idiot. "I can't. I've got to go."

At that she said, "Very well!" a little sharply and hurried into the house before I'd got off the porch.

I didn't sleep much that night, and when I did I had a dream about Yeastie Marshall and his beautiful friend, Miss Spencer, laughing and riding in a Roman chariot across the sky. They were looking down over the side at me and laughing because I was sitting on the ground crying about something—I didn't know what. But I woke up miserable and might have been more so if I'd known where I was going to see Yeastie Marshall again before long, and how.

An Open Letter to Elissa Landi

ELISSA LANDI

Dear Elissa: Your writing is at least as important as your acting during the next four years, so don't neglect it. These next four years, by the way, are as strong for your success as any you have had lately, but don't take anything for granted in 1938. Your tendency then will be to leap to conclusions before they are ready to pick, judging by externals more than the deep underlying causes that make results. But now that you are warned, O. K. With best wishes,

Gossips Try to Stir Up Feud Over Shirley and Jane

Two Famous Film Children Present Target for Hollywood Busybodies

By ROSALIND SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

THERE never were two women with two children anywhere near the same age who didn't at some time or another harbor some pangs of jealousy, no matter how intelligently and generously suppressed. It's probably asking too much of human nature for it to be otherwise, especially so in Hollywood, with the mothers of our story being Shirley Temple's mamma and Jane Withers' mamma, both little girls being stars for Twentieth Century-Fox pictures.

There's been a lot of talk all over town about the "feud" between the two women, but careful eavesdropping, window-peeping, keyhole listening, and downright bribery have failed to yield one iota of direct evidence that any such feud actually exists. Yet there are so many delightful bits of gossip to be rolled around on the tongue about the whole situation that it would be a pity to shut the eager public out of all the fun.

If either mother were inclined to be ungenerous or catty one can realize the many situations that might irk one or the other, especially if the gossiping kitties who carry tales should run to one or the other with:

"What do you suppose I heard today? Mr. Zanuck has declared that Shirley's rabbits are eating too much oats and has refused to honor the feed bill; he thinks they ought to be kept at home, and not at the studio. And here's Jane Withers with her pet Australian snoop hound getting free pork chops at the commissary, and nobody kicks about that!" And so on, and so on.

Jane's First Big Opportunity in Films Is Captured by Her Younger Rival

All of these things may be small to you, gentle reader, but they may be momentous—it is a matter of prestige; in fact, as everybody in an argument always says, "It's the principle of the thing."

To get back to those situations that have happened, existed, or have been brought into being, we had better start out right at the time the life lines of the two youngsters first crossed. Not many know it, but Shirley copped Jane's first big chance in films.

Lew Brown, looking over talented youngsters for the spot in "Stand Up and Cheer," had selected Jane Withers for the part, had settled salary, and had told Phil Friedman, the casting director at Fox's, to give her a starting date. It looked like the big break for Jane, who had been in town for several years, playing every benefit from the old soldiers' home to as far as you can see on a clear day, getting a few very bitty bits in films, and trying so hard to get one chance to show what she really could do.

Brown had to make a trip to New York. J. Gorney, another executive, saw Shirley Temple, insisted on having her tested, rushed her to the office of Winfield Sheehan, and the rest is screen history. Mrs. Withers might have been quite bitter about it if she were that sort of a person, which she isn't.

"Shirley fitted the part beautifully and did it perfectly," she said. "Of course, it was hard at the time, but it's probably all for the best, for now at last Jane's getting her break and going ahead nicely." Add to that, Jane has had a couple more years of experience with which to bolster her later rise to stardom, and it is well known that is an asset.

If Mrs. Withers wanted to brood over it the financial situation might irk her. Shirley is drawing $2,000 a week and Jane is getting $200—Shirley is three years younger than Jane, too. Don't worry that the poison spray gossips are not making the most of that when they talk to Mrs. Withers.

Then there might be an agent—often a slicker only pretending to be an agent—saying: "Only $200? Why, Mrs. Withers, with the talent your little girl has got, that's an insult! Shirley Temple isn't in it with her—just a few dimples and some bleached curls [he might say], and she can't put over a song like Jane. Why, when your little kiddie did that number at the Hebrew Home for the Aged benefit, Mrs. Withers, it did something to me here!"

Then Mrs. Temple gets it: "I understand they're teaching Jane a marvelous dance routine for her next film, Mrs. Temple. I think that's nerve, aping Shirley that way. If I were you I wouldn't put up with it, the way they're letting that kid steal Shirley's best acts. They should have saved that routine for Shirley's next picture. Of course, nobody can dance like Shirley, but an older girl has more training back of her, and I think it's a shame the way some people run things around this studio."

Neither Mother Has Complained Despite the Wagging of Tongues

Sly questions, misquotes, overemphasizing details, coloring facts; yet, to the credit of both Mrs. Temple and Mrs. Withers, neither has ever made any complaint or demanded any restrictions on studio plans for the children. It would test anyone's fortitude to go through all of this every day, all the time, and not sag under it.

A long time ago Mrs. Withers was so anxious for Jane to get a chance to play in "The Littlest Rebel," a story dear to the heart of anyone from below the Mason and Dixon line. Jane's southern accent would fit perfectly, too. Not long ago it was purchased for Shirley. Can you imagine what the gossips could do to that? But Jane's star is rising. Mrs. Withers is sure the talent of her little girl will win the chance she deserves.

Then there was that matter of Shirley's big birthday party at the studio. Nobody knows who arranged the guest list, nor why Jane was not invited. The two children were and are friends since they played together in "Bright Eyes," the film in which Jane got her break, playing the meanie and abusing Shirley. Today a photograph of Shirley, with its laboriously printed autograph, "LOVE—SHIRLEY," occupies a bright and particular spot in Jane's room. Someone inquiring for Jane at the party was told that "Jane is busy." But she wasn't working at the time, a checkup revealed. One only hopes Jane herself didn't feel put out about it. Of course, though nobody knows exactly, it might have been the studio executives' idea to let Shirley be the whole show at her own party, without possibly complicating things by bringing in Jane, who, after all, is older than the majority of the children at the party. Nevertheless that omission caused no end of talk.

As things stand now, though the new régime at Twentieth Century-Fox may change all this, Jane makes her pictures under the ægis of Sol Wurtzel, who is head man at the Western avenue studio, while Shirley makes her films at the Westwood studio, formerly under Winfield Sheehan. Thus for working purposes each is queen of her own territory.

"What the world thinks of the charms of Shirley Temple is well expressed in Irvin Cobb's speech when she was given the special Academy award: 'When Santa Claus brought you down creation's chimney he brought the loveliest Christmas present that was ever given to the world.' Her recent film, 'Curly Top,' has brought acclaim from an appreciative public."

"It is only in the last few weeks that studio executives have begun to realize what a really big bet they have in Jane Withers. Box office figures and fan mail on her first starring film, 'Ginger,' have been rolling in and causing a furor around the lot. There is no doubt that Jane is going to get stories especially selected and written for her . . ."

Shirley has her lovely bungalow, her own teacher, and her work all to herself. The two children have not worked in any picture together since their first, "Bright Eyes." Mrs. Withers has preferred that things be kept that way, as it removes Jane from the tumult and confusion of the larger studio and permits her to have her studies and her rest with the minimum of disturbance.

It seems better for Jane to have the same teacher on the set and in her schoolroom, without having one tutor on the set and another teacher in the schoolroom at the studio, as it would have to be if she went to the Westwood plant to work. Mrs. Withers is insistent that Jane's education shall not be haphazard, as any set tutoring is bound to be if teachers are constantly changed. She has repeatedly said that she would prefer to take Jane out of films if it ever became a question of her welfare, especially in the matter of schooling.

"Mrs. Withers might have been quite bitter about it if she were that sort of a person, which she isn't."

It is only in the last few weeks that studio executives have begun to realize what a really big bet they have in Jane Withers. Box office figures and fan mail on her first starring film, "Ginger," have been rolling in and causing a furor around the lot. There is no doubt that Jane is going to get stories especially selected and written for her, and more consideration in every way.

Popularity Hampers Work of Jane and Police Are Unable to Help

Another eye-opener on the growing popularity of this child is the recent experience of the "This Is the Life" company, directed by Marshall Neilan, and starring Jane, which went down to the recreation pier at Ocean Park to make some scenes. It wasn't long until a throng estimated at two thousand gathered, began crowding in on the scenes, tripping over the light cords, tumbling over reflectors, and making audible comments not meant for the microphone. Police couldn't help any.

Finally Neilan made a bluff at it, packed up equipment, and had Jane get in her car and drive off. The kids weren't fooled. They sat down to wait for their Jane to come back. Neilan gave up finally, and they built a set at the studio to do the pier scenes. Other film stars repeatedly have made shots at the beach, but Jane is the new thrill and no mistake.

With Jane making strides toward screen popularity, Mrs. Temple might well worry, but second thought provides several antidotes for that. Shirley is a unique personality—it has never been known that a "second" has stolen popularity from a screen star. There has never been a second Valentino or Normand. Then Jane's personality has an entirely different appeal; she is not a pretty child, like Shirley, and depends for her success on her clever trouping.

That Mrs. Temple does do some worrying is evidenced by her reluctance to admit that Shirley has lost a tooth, due to her age, and wears a little plate when before the camera. This is the custom in films, but Mrs. Temple must see in her mind's eye that Shirley is approaching that age when girls are likely to become unlovely. Jane, on the other hand, has passed the awkward tooth-losing age. Since she makes no claim to beauty, such considerations would hold no terrors for her, anyway.

Recent newspaper reports from Hawaii record astonishing crowds flocking to see Shirley on her "vacation." Dispatches carried the story of how Shirley stood at the prow of the ship and sang "The Good Ship Lollipop" to the strains of the Royal Hawaiian orchestra on the pier below, to the delight of a throng of thousands, as the boat docked. The Temples, staying at a town hotel, have been constantly surrounded by a throng of visitors.

Previews of Shirley's films find Shirley and her mother, and perhaps her father, too, struggling bravely with the fans after the show. Studio and doctor's regulations that the baby shall be in bed at 7 every night are constantly stressed, however, in studio publicity copy.

A Talented and Valuable Child; Box Office Receipts Prove It

Mrs. Temple receives a substantial sum from the studio to care for her very talented and valuable child. That the child is valuable becomes certain indeed when one considers what she brings in at the box office, that three months after her screen debut she ranked eighth in box office draw, and that she is constantly accompanied, even on the set, by a department of justice man. Lloyd's of London have insured Shirley against accident to the tune of $25,000 liability, an enormous sum to be issued on a child and one that no United States company was willing to underwrite. Though it is constantly emphasized that Shirley is a normal, healthy child, it was formerly admitted freely that she was very nervous and in need of special care at all times.

What the world thinks of the charms of Shirley Temple is well expressed in Irvin Cobb's speech when she was given the special Academy award: "When Santa Claus brought you down creation's chimney he brought the loveliest Christmas present that was ever given to the world." Her recent film, "Curly Top," has brought acclaim from an appreciative public.

Jerusalem Goal of Cousin Eve's Vivid Sea Trip

Sails Azure Waters to the Holy City and Finds It Colossal Experience.

By Cousin Eve.

JERUSALEM

Dropping down from the thundering waterfall of Bad Gastein, through Corinthia's towering alps, we found Trieste ablaze with lights, flags flying. Jaz, played by American collegians at the chic outdoor café in the square. A soft tropical night. In the morning, at the fine quay across from the hotel was the Jerusalemme, a white, yachtlike boat on which we were to sail for Palestine.

Several boatloads of soldiers in new blue-gray uniforms went by. In the banks and various offices of travel, women were replacing men withdrawn for war service in Abyssinia.

From the start everything was charming. Pretty ship in pale colors, electric fans going, snowy decks, tempting tropical fruits and fishes, officers and sailors in white duck, and here and there, interesting passengers; merchants of Bagdad, Arabs on their honeymoons with sloe eyed ladies in European dress. Quite a few Americans from St. Louis, unafraid of Palestinian heat. A priest or two in long white and black skirts and high black chapeau.

The tourist class has some prosperous looking Jews, and a little synagogue is set up on Saturday.

War Vessels Speed Silently South from Pola.

The Adriatic at night is beautiful, a deep clear blue. A luxurious cobalt sky is hung with flaming red stars. One of these fiery planets hangs over Pola on the eastern shore, an Italian naval base. Here are brilliant lights, and, in the dusk, shapes of two war vessels speeding silently southward into the night. Next day at four we touch at Brindisi, take on thirty passengers, and are off. Divine days of perfect sun and sea, and nights when we dine late and go to movies a la belle étoile. A big screen is fastened to a mast, the passengers group themselves. And ships people, engineers, sailors, cooks, stewards in clean linens, come up to see the show. Also a few pet cats.

The air is divinely soft. A yellow moon pours gold over the waters. Magical night. We slip through the Ionian sea near the arid Peloponnesian coast, by Greek islands, north of quarrelsome Crete and into the Mediterranean, which treats us rough. Bold blue waves, white capped, whipped by strong winds. We round Rhodes, remembering that Augustus Cæsar rested here after the battle of Actium, and that King Herod followed him there, being a good politician, and renewed his crown.

Swarthy Othellos Offer Their Services.

We arrive at Laruaca, on Cyprus, birthplace of Othello, on a Sunday. And fifty swarthy Othellos stormed the ship looking for somebody to do. Also coming on board were good looking Englishmen returning to Palestine from a vacation spot established by the British in the Todos mountains. Here they have golf, riding, tennis, high above the sea at Cyprus, also British.

That night I heard agitating news. My return boat to Brindisi, the Helonan, had been taken over for the Abyssinian service. And the Mediterranean again kicks up its heels, so that the chances are against landing at Jaffa.

This port, the Joppa of the Bible, was in olden times the only port of Palestine. Ancient emperors and kings set sail from there. Peter, too, and Paul. Cleopatra arriving in beguiling mood to receive from Herod her estates at Jericho. And battering at Joppa, Pompey, Saladin, Napoleon Bonaparte. King Solomon, first great Jewish financier, brought down magnificent cedars from Lebanon to build his temple. And they were floated down the sea to Joppa.

I have had wild landings in Venice from a ship to a gondola. But nothing will ever equal that affair of Jaffa. The Jerusalemme anchored far out and was surrounded by a vast fleet of small boats, from which scrambled Arab porters of all shapes, sizes, and colors. It was a cool, sparkling day, with, on the left, the new Jewish city of Tel-Aviv in silhouette against the rising run; on the right, Jaffa, gray, venerable.

The British are making a great success of the Palestine mandate. Latterly they have become severe about passports. All Jews have to be doubly photographed, and tourist visas are short, sweet, and not renewable.

In spite of this there is a tremendous bootlegging of Jews, who get into the country somehow, somewhere.

The passport people were nice to me, picking me out a fat Arab porter in plus fourteens and a fez, also a tall, slim Arab policeman. And then began the terrific ordeal of leaving the boat by two long, shaky gangways, and being hurled into the air by one set of Arab boatmen and caught by another set waiting in the motor boat. Soon we were rushing toward the shore, and I was remembering that here happened my pet Bible story of Jonah and the whale. In these very waters. Just then we seemed all set to be shipwrecked on the same jagged rocks, a huge, ragged reef, with smashing surf. But again the accomplished Arabs saved our lives with boathooks. We were safe in a little harbor.

Landing at Jaffa a Wild and Perilous Affair.

At 9 o'clock, with all my luggage and family, I was rolling through Tel-Aviv in an American car on the way to Jerusalem. More building is going on there than in London town. One hundred thousand Jews are living in the pretty place, which has parks and cinemas, little rows of pink houses with cypress trees, large shops in style moderne, small shops of every kind. In fact, a turmoil of bargaining and buying, building and selling. Such a rush of prosperity have the Jews brought to Palestine that one hears there was a recent governmental surplus of four and a half million pounds.

Tel-Aviv was stimulating. Soon we were racing due east and our young Arab driver was demonstrating his skill on hairpin turns. The English mandate has brought superb roads to this country. For twenty miles the one we traveled lay between orchards of glossy orange and lemon trees. Camels stride by, and herds of little black goats. Delightfully cool breezes, a bright sun, and, way ahead, the line of mountains gray against the sky, where lies the Holy City. "Jerusalem the golden, with milk and honey blest," says the old missionary hymn. All the time we are on higher ground, bare golden hills, with rosy shadows. The British mandate is planting thousands of trees among these hills; cypresses, oleanders, willows. There are great pipes which will bring one day soon "sweet water," says our Arab, to the old Jerusalem, which has only its ancient wells and cisterns, and water from the fountains of Solomon and Hebron. Solomon drove early in the morning to these three basins, says an old chronicler. "A pleasant place, setting high in his chariot made of wood-of-Lebanon lined with gold, and canopied with Syrian silk upheld by silver pillars. Attending Solomon, a band of tall young men with long hair sparkling with gold dust sprinkled daily."

Entry Into Jerusalem a Moment of Tense Emotion.

On we go, and it seems as if never shall we see Jerusalem. Hills and more hills, shadows violet and rose. Our Arab finally points to a scattering of rosy buildings on a russet hilltop far away: "Jerusalem," he says. An emotional moment, almost embarrassing, so much does one expect of the place and of one's reactions.

Enchanting country of beauty—spiritual home of billions of earth born. Every step of the way is significant. O! to have given more time to the Bible and less to biographies!

Here, too, is a tremendous tumult and stir of life. Everywhere are dark skinned, fiery people. But everywhere also are good looking English doing early marketing, tearing round in sport cars. British mounted police in smart gray uniforms, on gray horses, have dotted the way from Joppa. Here there are Arab trafic cops, bawling out wrongdoers. We land at a noted German hotel. Just outside the square cut, crenelated masses of the Jaffa gate. Through this gate walked afoot in all humility Gen. Allenby, the first to pass in fifteen hundred years this hallowed gate by which Jesus first entered Jerusalem, riding on an ass.

Stone Floors and Oriental Rugs Give Hotel Distinctive Air.

Our hotel has stone floors and great oriental rugs of much beauty. The literati all come here, and the military. Across the narrow street is a convent where I hear nuns singing vespers.

My first hop was to the steamship office where I found that all my plans were in the scrap basket. No trip whatever to Istanbul, where there were nice plans. A noble boat will carry me to Egypt, and instead of seeing Saint Sophia and the beauties of the Bosphorus again I shall have to be contented with a run to Cairo and the pyramids. Such are the fortunes of war with Abyssinia.

Also the high commissioner of Palestine, Lieut. Gen. Sir Arthur Grenfell Wanchope, flew to England on leave three days ago, and will not return while we are here. A Scotchman, a high officer of the noted Black Watch and a bachelor, he occupies, as governor of Palestine and Transjordania, an imposing palace outside the city walls. My first walk to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. Through the Jaffa gate, down King David street, a narrow thoroughfare of steps and shops where a guide adopted us.

It was a marvelous day, cool, sunny, and I was enjoying life to the uttermost until the guide appeared. What he did to the holy places, and indeed to all the holy city was appalling.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre was almost shaken down by earthquake and still has cracks and fissures. It is a dark, cavernous place of many forms of worship: Copts, Armenians, Catholics, Moslems, Abyssinians have crypts and chapels built all over Calvary and the Sepulchre itself. So overlaid are the sacred stones and places with gold and silver and brass and copper and marble and other kinds of roccoco ornamentation that the mind gropes in a daze for something simple and true. It was in the small chapel in which is the holy sepulchre, a stone tomb covered with marble, three feet high, six feet in length, that a priest in charge asked me for a gift of money. I gave him a handful of loose change which he counted carefully. Then, standing not three inches from this most sacred and thrice holy tomb, the strange little bearded man told me it was not enough.

It was the same story on the high marble platform erected over Golgotha, actual place of the crucifixion. Here were several gorgeously bedecked altars, and a tall, menacing priest who exacted money for the upkeep of the shrines. This man sent a fat Arab in a red fez to tell me my gift was not sufficiently important for the place and to demand more. I felt that perhaps a little earthquake would improve this sanctuary, if it did away with these sectarians who have clamped on to the holy places of Palestine with their rackets.

Abraham Lies in City of King David.

Singular are the old pavements of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre; some from the crusaders, some from the time of Helena, wife of Constanstine, who is credited with finding the three corpses in a cavern near Calvary, three hundred years after the crucifixion.

To be in the city of King David is a thrill in itself. Down the street near one of the gates is the self-same tower where David, walking about at sunset with a roving eye, saw Bathsheba, the fair one. It was not long before her inconvenient husband was fighting in the front lines.

Tomorrow morning early I am going down to the burial place of Abraham, where, with those of Sarah. Leah, and Isaac, his bones lie in a cave, neatly sealed over by crusaders near Hebron.

The next day, maybe it will be a bathe in the Dead sea, lying so blue by the mountains of Moab and covering, say the archæologists, on its easterly banks, those rare old cities of the plain, Sodom and Gomorrah.

This must go by air mail to Egypt, then London.

Peculiarities of English Are Lecture Theme

Briton Addresses Group of Foreigners on the Subject of Mannerisms.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON

"How to understand the English" was the theme of a lecture by Sir Denison Ross, addressed to 250 foreign students from twenty-four different countries assembled for the annual holiday course for foreigners at the University of London.

Sir Denison said that there were certain peculiarities about the English which frequently embarrassed and sometimes pained foreigners. One of their peculiarities, he said, was their apparent coldness to strangers.

Apparent Coldness Not Reserved Expressly for Foreigners Alone.

"I confess," he said, "this is just as much a mystery to the English as it is to foreigners. I confess I myself never have been able to understand it. But the point to notice is that the English behave to each other exactly as they behave to foreigners; in fact, they usually have far less reserve to foreigners than they do toward their own countrymen."

He went on to say that "English insularity is entirely unaffected by the wireless or by aviation." This insularity was the more curious because it had no roots in a racial mythology.

"England has no mythology of her own," he continued. "English people begin their education with the Bible stories and go on to anecdotal bits of English history. Nursery rimes, although seldom repeated after a person is five years old, take a great part in English conversation. To understand the English language it probably is more important to know 'Alice in Wonderland' than it is to know Shakespeare."

On the subject of English manners, he remarked that while the essence of good manners was the same all over the world the English had a few peculiarities, certain points of etiquet which are not observed.

Shaking Hands and Tipping of Hats Not So Common in Britain.

"For example, the English do not shake hands as frequently as do foreigners, and the men do not tip their hats to each other."

He might have added that they do not remove their hats in elevators when women are present. There are, so far as I know, only two office buildings in London in which one ever sees men remove their hats in the "lifts." One is Australia House, for the Australians are most punctilious about this bit of etiquet, and the other is Bush House, which is a hive of American business firms. Those Americans who have been in London only a short time still preserve the American practice. Those who have been here for years seem to have abandoned the struggle and they keep their hats on as do the English.

A Vanderbilt Will Wed—New York Atwitter

Marriage of George to Lucille Parsons to Rival Astor-French Nuptials.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK

The day a Vanderbilt scion takes a bride is always a red letter one for the Four Hundred. That's why there's a conspicuous circle around Friday, Sept. 6, on every calendar along Park avenue.

By 3 p. m. on Friday, there'll be a fine parade of expensive cars through the Holland tunnel, all headed for Llewellyn park, that exclusive suburb in West Orange, N. J., for the wedding of 21 year old George Vanderbilt and curly haired, vivacious Lucille Parsons.

And unless we miss our guess, this marriage of the second son of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and the Parsons heiress will create just as much of a social furore as the John Jacob Astor-Ellen Tuck French wedding in Newport a year ago last June.

For in every respect, the youngest son of Mrs. Margaret Emerson is as eligible a bachelor as was the Astor scion when he joined the ranks of the benedicts. When he comes into the first portion of his inheritance this month, George probably will be in command of more millions than 23 year old Jack Astor. And when he receives his full share of the Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt estate at the age of 35, young Mr. Vanderbilt will be a far wealthier man than the Astor lad.

Bride's Sister, Groom's Brother Will Be Attendants.

As was to be expected, Lucille has chosen her sister, Mrs. William C. Ridgway Jr., the former Emily Parsons and a bride of July, to be her matron of honor, and George has asked his older brother, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, to be his best man.

Lucille has chosen her best friend, Kathryn Bragaw, as maid of honor and the six bridesmaids will include George's ravishingly beautiful subdeb half sister, Gloria Baker. The other bridesmaids will be Shirley Henderson, Mrs. Marshall Posey, Mrs. Joseph Lester Parsons Jr., Lucille's sister-in-law and a bride of April; Mrs. Harold Thornton of Montreal, Canada, and Anne Perin of Washington, D. C.

Young Winkie [David] Brooks, who has been Gloria's best beau all summer, is among the ushers. So is Lucille's brother, who calls himself Joseph L. Parsons Jr., to distinguish himself from his father, J. Lester Parsons Sr.

The other ushers are Prince George Scherbatoff, Samuel R. Jones III., William C. Ridgway Jr., James Breckenridge, and Horace Kelland.

Like the wedding of Sister Emily and Bill Ridgway last month, that of Lucille and George is to be at Broadacre, the home of Lucille's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lester Parsons, in Llewellyn park.

This eliminates the possibility of a mob scene at the church should the Jerseyites decide that the Vanderbilt scion and his bride are as well worth a look as were Jack Astor and his bride.

The Rev. Luke White will read the service, and a large reception will follow in the picturesque gardens of Broadacre.

Tucky Astor's Father Once Cab Driver.

As Bailey's beach becomes an increasingly friendly spot to Enzo Fiermonte, stepfather of Jack Astor, it becomes a less and less familiar one to Francis Ormond French, father of Mrs. Jack Astor.

Mr. French is in, but decidedly not of, Newport. Born to the purple as a member of the French family of Boston, Newport, and Tuxedo Park, he alienated the sympathy of his family and of society when he rolled up his sleeves and drove a taxi in New York City after Wall street cleaned him out in 1923.

Society had all but forgotten Mr. French's existence until the spring of 1934, when Tucky's engagement to John Jacob Astor III. was announced. Then it was discovered she had a father, plump, jovial, and voluable, who lived in Dedham, Mass., in a small cottage and sold life insurance to support himself and the second Mrs. French, a pleasant person like himself.

Once more, Mr. French had his brief moment in the sun. He was permitted to give his daughter in marriage, even if he wasn't invited to any of the parties that preceded the ceremony in Trinity church, Newport.

A few months after the French-Astor wedding, Mr. French and his wife gave up the Dedham cottage and moved to Newport.

London Stirred When General's Air Talk on Russia Is Stopped

LONDON

The British Broadcasting corporation has refused to permit Brig. Gen. W. H. H. Waters to broadcast his impressions of soviet Russia, and quite a rumpus is being made about it by the intelligentsia. Gen. Waters, a professional soldier of the old school, was British military attaché at St. Petersburg during the life of the czar, whom he knew well and liked enormously. The general speaks Russian and he was recently persuaded to go back to Russia and study the country as it is today. Apparently no effort was made to steer him down any special channels and with his knowledge of the language he was free to go where he liked. He was dumfounded at the changes he saw—although sentimentally missing the old fashionable St. Petersburg which he used to enjoy—and has come back to England downright and blunt in his approval of the new Russia.

Apparently somebody persuaded the B. B. C. to invite him to speak on what he had seen, but the general's manuscript caused an upheaval in broadcasting house and the general was told that his address was not wanted. It is freely stated that the official censorship of broadcasting in this country has been tightened up the last year or so.

Mrs. Lehman's Club Career Rich in Service

MRS. EDWARD J. LEHMAN.

No matter how much Mrs. Edward J. Lehman devotes herself to school budgets and club conferences, she'll never lose her girlish thrill in acquiring a new dress or an autumn hat. When a board meeting, a speech, or any other public appearance is on her schedule she spends days, even weeks, in preparation; but she also devotes a few special hours to her wardrobe, finding the proper hat for a new suit or a pair of slippers for an evening gown.

Perhaps it is this pleasant combination of the serious and the frivolous that has made her the new head, by an overwhelming majority, of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

Succeeding Mrs. William Franklin Farrell upon her retirement last May, Mrs. Lehman has reached one of the topmost rungs of the proverbial ladder of success, and she hasn't missed any of the rungs along the way. In short, she's devoted the major part of her life to public service in connection with club, church, and school.

Most of this service has been rendered down in Champaign county, where she lives. Philo was her birthplace, and Sidney has been her home town since she was 5 years old.

After her early education her parents, J. W. Bocock and the late Mrs. Bocock, sent her to Chicago to the Columbia College of Expression, training that stands her in good stead in her present capacity. For ten years she was a teacher of expression, a dramatic coach, and a public reader.

Then she married and since then, without children of her own, she has found the greatest pleasure in doing things for others. A Sunday school class in the Presbyterian church is proof of this. So are sixteen years on the Sidney school board. Seven of these sixteen years were served in the presidency.

Her club career began in her home organization. She was the second president of the Sidney Woman's club after she had completed terms as vice president, secretary, treasurer, and parliamentarian. From chairman of club institutes in her district, the 19th, she climbed to parliamentarian, corresponding secretary, recording secretary, and president. The presidency of the Champaign County Federation came next. It was in this office that she organized the Alta M. Babb memorial district scholarship fund in recognition of the service of her great friend, Alta Babb, as the first 19th district president.

On the state federation board of directors Mrs. Lehman has served as district president, vice president of the central region, member of the executive committee, historian, and vice chairman of the press and publicity department.

With her good judgment, willingness to seek and accept advice, broad intelligence, and diplomacy Mrs. Lehman should carry the federation forward through the coming triennial term . . . without doubt one of the momentous in the federation's forty-one years.

World to Join in Jane Addams Memorial Event

Principal Services to Be Held in Grant Park on Next Friday Afternoon.

By Ruth De Young.

IN the course of the new club year launched this September first there probably will be no event more inspiring than the memorial service next Friday afternoon for the late Jane Addams.

AMELIA SEARS.

It's to be a world affair, with the emphasis in Chicago, however, since it was here at Hull house that Miss Addams did the wonderful work that became known to all peoples. Next Friday has been selected as the time for the service, for Sept. 6 is the birthday anniversary of the great humanitarian. It will begin at 4:30 o'clock in Grant park just south of the Lincoln statue at Van Buren street.

America and Switzerland are to Exchange Memorial Broadcasts.

Over an international radio hookup, some of America's program between 5 and 5:15 will be heard in Geneva, Switzerland. A return broadcast will come here between 5:15 and 5:30 from Geneva.

Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke college and official delegate to the world disarmament conference, is coming from the east to be one of the speakers in Chicago. Others who will pay tribute to Miss Addams here are Judge Florence Allen of Ohio, a member of the federal court; Heywood Broun of New York City; Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, and Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

Miss Louise Wier of Washington, D. C., representative of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, which is sponsoring the memorial on a world basis, has explained that the occasion also will mark the circulation of an anti-war mandate. Miss Wier, who now is in Chicago, says that every effort will be made to obtain 50,000,000 signatures to the mandate. Then it will be presented by an international commission to the heads of governments in a plea for world peace. A movement of this type was approved by Miss Addams before her death.

Miss Amelia Sears Chairman of Chicago Memorial Services.

Miss Amelia Sears has accepted the chairmanship of the Chicago memorial service, with the assistance of such leading women as Miss Harriet Vittum, Miss Mary McDowell, Mrs. Kenneth F. Rich, Miss Agnes Nestor, Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, Mrs. Mark P. Mears, Mrs. Emil Levy, Mrs. Albert George, Mrs. Charles S. Clark, Miss Alice Boynton, and Mrs. James Forstall. Instead of having services of their own, Milwaukee and Madison will send delegations to Chicago.

Others who have indicated their interest in the memorial include Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Barnes and their daughter, Lilace; the Rev. Norman B. Barr, superintendent of Olivet institute; Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mrs. Hermon Beardsley Butler, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale, Mrs. William Gold Hibbard, Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hull Ewing, the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Clayton Morrison, Joel D. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Lorado Taft, and Prof. and Mrs. Paul H. Douglas.

Women Hold 75 Per Cent of the Nation's Wealth, Quarter of Jobs.

Women hold three-quarters of America's wealth and one-quarter of its jobs. Yet they initiate much of the country's public spending and eagerly urge the adoption of policies of foreign countries where women enjoy little, if any, of the social and economic freedom that this country has afforded them.

This is the ringing challenge of Cathrine Curtis in an article in the September issue of "Nation's Business," publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Miss Curtiss, national director of Women Investors in America, has entitled her story "When the Women Wake Up!"

She says in part: "Women own three-quarters of America's wealth, and hold one-quarter of its jobs. This is a pretty good showing, and women some day will realize that their favorable position did not 'just happen,' that geography had nothing to do with it. As they assume greater interest, and power, in political affairs some day, it is to be hoped, they will have a clearer and better understanding of the real reasons why they have fared inconceivably better than their sisters in any other lands.

"When, and if, such understanding comes, it is my guess that they will not furnish the incubator for so many public spending plans with their attendant tax pay rollers. Nor will they be so receptive to the foreign ideas and 'isms' now promoted here, policies of countries where women enjoy little, if any, of the social and economic freedom which the United States has given them. When, as, and if, they wake up.

Men Also Fail to Realize Stake of Women in Nation.

"Men, not alone the women, fail to realize the stake the women have in this country. A recent survey made by the organization, Women Investors In America, Inc., reveals that women are the beneficiaries of 80 per cent of the 65,000,000 life insurance policies now outstanding, aggregating more than $100,000,000,000. That is the face value. Their actual assets today in cash turn-in value is $25,000,000,000.

"The survey reveals that 65 per cent of savings accounts, in the amount of $14,242,800,000, are in women's names. They hold 48 per cent of the stock of all railroad corporations in the aggregate of $4,800,000,000. Forty-four per cent of public utility securities is in the names of women, and the titles to 40 per cent of all real estate, homes and farms, are held by women."

In conclusion, Miss Curtis asks the question: "If capitalism should be destroyed, would our American women be as happy?" She answers the question in the negative, pointing out that American women are the greatest capitalists and have profited the most from American capitalism.

When the United Confederate Veterans meet in Amarillo, Tex., the end of this week, for their 45th annual reunion, the occasion may mark the dissolution of the once mighty organization of soldiers who followed the stars and stripes in the war between the states.

Recent years have taken a heavy toll in the ranks of these men. Many, of course, are too feeble to attend the gathering, which opens in Amarillo Tuesday to continue through Friday. Gen. Harry R. Lee of Nashville, Tenn., commander of the veterans, expects an attendance of 1,000, including the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the children of confederate veterans.

The United States military band is being sent to Amarillo for the event and many state delegations will bring state and college bands. An old fashioned rodeo, with Texas cowboys taking part, will be one of the extra attractions.

Many Debs Will Make Bows in Next Fortnight

But School for Some Will Interrupt Arduous Job of Being a Butterfly.

By Judith Cass.

The first two weeks of September will be one of the gayest fortnights of the 1935-36 season for the young women who are making their formal bows to society during this season, for there will be many debut parties during the next two weeks.

Not one of these sweet young things would admit that the hectic, mad whirl of dashing from party to party, never catching up on sleep, is anything but unadulterated joy. Their mothers and fathers know that such a round of gayety takes its toll, however, so many of the young women who will make their debuts early this month will be off for college soon after Sept. 15.

It is fortunate that the first week at college is mainly a matter of registration and the like and not of intensive study, for those who are combining debutante and college activities probably will not be in the best of condition for serious work when they first enter college. Their months of academic activity, however, will make them appreciate their Christmas holiday gayety more, perhaps, than their sister debs who will be at home for the entire season and who by mid-December may be a bit weary.

Teas Will Be Occasion of Most Presentations.

Miss Julie Walcott, daughter of the Chester Howe Walcotts of Winnetka, will be the first official debutante of the season, for she is being presented at a tea at home, 594 Elm street, on Wednesday of this week. The next day will mark the presentation of another of the many Winnetka buds, Miss Katherine Bulger, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Bulger, will give a tea for her at their home on Sheridan road.

On Friday Miss Dorelle Moulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Arthur Moulton of Kenilworth, will make her debut at a tea-dance at the Skokie Country club, and on Saturday six young women will make their bows to society. Miss Mary Armstrong, daughter of the Horace White Armstrongs of Winnetka; Miss Mary Lou Laird, daughter of the Robert S. Lairds of Winnetka; Miss Barbara Barnhart, daughter of the Eugene M. Barnharts of East Walton place; Miss Elizabeth and Miss Esther Buchen, daughters of the Walter Buchens of Winnetka, and Miss Katharine Armstrong, daughter of the Julian Armstrongs of Lake Bluff are the six. All will be introduced at teas, except Miss Katharine Armstrong for whom a dance is being given at the Armstrongs' lovely home on Moffett road.

Miss Elsie Earle, daughter of the S. Edwin Earles of Winnetka, will make her debut at a dinner-dance on Thursday of this week. Her mother's cousin, Mrs. Frank R. Fuller, will be the hostess. The party will be at the Onwentsia club. On Monday of next week, Sept. 9, Mrs. Dwight Green of Winnetka will entertain at luncheon at the Indian Hill club for Miss Earle.

On Thursday, Sept. 12, Mrs. William Ogden Green of Winnetka and her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter of Chicago, are giving a luncheon at the former's spacious home on Locust road for Miss Mary Jean Bartelme, who will make her debut the day before. Miss Bartelme's aunt, Mrs. Dorothy Bartelme, and her grandmother, Mrs. Ferdinand Eugene Bartelme, will introduce her at a tea at their home in Westmoor road, Winnetka. Miss Frances Glore, daughter of the Charles F. Glores, will have her debut tea the same afternoon, but hers will be in the handsome Lake Forest home of her parents. Sept. 11 is the Glores' twentieth wedding anniversary, so there was a special reason for their choosing that date upon which to introduce their attractive only daughter to their friends.

Kemper Debut in Afternoon, Burton in Evening of Sept. 12.

On Thursday, Sept. 12, the Oliver Milton Burtons of Winnetka are giving a dinner-dance at the Indian Hill club for their debutante daughter, Babbs Anne. That afternoon the debutante crowd will be in Wennetka for the debut tea-dance of Miss Rosemary Kemper, which is to be given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Kemper, at their Sheridan road home.

Saturday, Sept. 14, is the date chosen by Miss Ruth Brown, Miss Frances Price, Miss Marjorie Truesdale, and Miss Clarice Hamill for making their bows to adult society. Miss Brown, daughter of the William Bruce Browns of Wheaton, and Miss Price, daughter of the Edwin S. Prices of Winnetka, will be given teas at home by their parents. Miss Truesdale will be presented at a tea-dance at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Truesdale, in Winnetka. Miss Hamill's presentation will take the form of a supper-dance at The Centaurs, the Lake Forest home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill. Preceding the Hamills' party, the Ralph H. Pooles and their sub-deb daughter, Nancy, will give a dinner party at their home.

Miss Sperry Wed in Time Honored Chapel at Oxford

LONDON The provost of Queen's college, Oxford, Canon B. H. Streeter, officiated at the wedding of the daughter of the dean of Harvard university in the same chapel and with the same service as he officiated in 1907 at the wedding of the bride's mother and the dean himself.

The bride, Miss Henrietta Sperry of Francis avenue, Cambridge, Mass., was, until recently, a student at one of the girls' colleges at Oxford, and the groom, Roy M. Wilson, formerly was at Balliol college, Oxford, and now is a barrister in the Temple.

Dean Willard L. Sperry and Mrs. Sperry were married in the Queen's College chapel by Canon Streeter just after the present dean was a student at Queen's. It was a natural thing, therefore, that after the ceremony the reception should be held in the lovely Old Fellow's garden of Queen's.

SOON OFF TO SCHOOL

Miss Nancy Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. V. L. Brown of Winnetka, is still much a part of the debutante crowd, although she was presented to society last year. Much to the disappointment of her friends, she will be off soon for her sophomore year at Smith college. Right now she is devoting a good deal of her time to playing tennis at the Indian Hill club.

INTEREST IS MUSIC

Miss Marion Bard, who will return to Sarah Lawrence college in the fall for her second and final year, has been studying music while at home this summer. Miss Bard, who is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Norwood Bard of Highland Park, is specializing in composition at Sarah Lawrence, and her interest in music far exceeds her interest in social affairs, so she has decided not to make a debut, as her older sister, Miss Dorothy Bard, did three years ago this fall.

Air Line Cuts Flying Time to Pacific Coast

ANOTHER reduction in the flying time between Chicago and the Pacific coast was announced yesterday by the United Air lines. The change goes into effect today.

Under the new schedules, the elapsed time between this city and Los Angeles will be 13½ hours—a half hour shorter than under the present time tables. A similar cut will be made on the run to Seattle, while the flying time to San Francisco is to be shortened by 52 minutes. A passenger leaving here at 3:20 a. m., Chicago daylight saving time, will reach Los Angeles at 1:50 p. m., Pacific time, or San Francisco at 2:02 p. m., or Seattle at 4:20 p. m. A passenger leaving here at 1:45 p. m. will be on the coast by midnight. If he elects to go at 8:45 in the evening, he will be there early the following morning.

Officials of the lines related that they had just completed installation of $1,000,000 worth of new equipment. Their Boeing planes now have a top speed of 202 miles an hour, and a cruising speed of 189 miles an hour at altitudes of from 8,000 to 10,000 feet. Their new coast to coast service, they said, is the fastest ever developed.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

TRIPPERS to Turkey this fall and winter will find a new and highly individualistic land, breaking away from the oldest and most deep-seated of traditions. The despotic head of the family no longer exists. The cold wall of formality between father and family has been removed. Women have forsaken the latticed window for every known activity; they are the factory hands, the typists, and the salespeople of today. Turkey is a new woman's world in transition. Feminine encouragement is dominant in the New Deal.

The Arabic Koran is being relegated in favor of books on social science. The cloistered harem tradition has been abolished by official order, with a supplementary order making the reverse compulsory. Literacy has increased enormously in the last ten years. Even the smallest towns now have People's clubs, attended by both sexes.

● As Douglas Malcolm, authority on travel matters, points out, only by comparing the past with the present can one realize the completeness of the change.

"The average American seldom hears of Anatolian progress," says Mr. Malcolm. "The rapid process of westernization seeps through only in publicized decrees. One reads of mandatory adoption of surnames, which must be both serious and decorative, and how no one in Turkey may call himself the equivalent of the English Mr. Major, Mr. Judge, or Mr. French. These changes have come with the breaking up of all clans which constituted the Turkey of the caliphs. The decrees are merely unconnected items in the great uniting pattern of a new nationalism, forging its links in a vast and neglected country."

● While New Turkey is rising, ghostlike, from the past, there are being lifted many mystery veils which for years have hung in a dense orientalism over Asia Minor. Minarets and palaces recalling the glories of the sultans are being opened up to tourists. New rail and bus service is taking visitors to places never before traversed by outsiders. A recently organized bureau encourages investigation of former hidden areas. From the new capital of Ankara two and three day itineraries include the once barred exoticism of Arabic Turkey. Istanbul is astonishing students of human behavior by the achievements of its youth.

Harems are being turned into hotels. The young republic is getting ready to receive its guests. Cherished objects, gathered through the ages by the sultans, are being shown and sold for the first time. It is a new and far different land lying beneath the shadow of the crescent.

Lake Steamers End Season Tomorrow

CHICAGO'S three daily excursion steamers, the Theodore Roosevelt, the City of Grand Rapids, and the Missouri, will end their summer season following Labor day runs.

"This season has marked a definite return to Lake Michigan as a vacation and outing place," Walter K. Greenbaum, manager of the Roosevelt Lines, said yesterday. "Chicagoans are beginning to realize that at their front door lies a small ocean offering all the facilities for rest, recreation, and adventure that are offered by the high seas. And they are now taking advantage of their opportunity."

Following its final trip to Benton Harbor and St. Joseph Monday, the Roosevelt will return to its dry dock in Manitowoc, Wis. The City of Grand Rapids will make its last Milwaukee run the same day, and leave on Tuesday for Benton Harbor, where it lays up for the winter. The Missouri, plying between Chicago and Muskegon, will go back to Milwaukee Tuesday.

Following the Labor day cruises of the North American and the South American to Mackinac Island the former will go on a "mystery" trip Tuesday to two ports not announced in advance.

Social Whirl Spins Gayly at Smart Resorts

Dinners, Dances Break Traditional Vacation Routine in White Mountains.

social affairs at Bretton Woods, where they are visiting for several weeks. On Thursday evening they attended the annual charity vaudeville show for the benefit of the employés' emergency sick fund. Mrs. B. L. Atwater of Chicago, in company of Mrs. O. C. Sleeper of the same city, and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Rodway of New York arrived this week to spend a few days here. They are on a tour of the New England resorts.

The first of Mrs. John R. Winterbotham's subscription supper dances at the playhouse on her Franconia estate was held on Friday evening. It was one of the smartest affairs of the season. Groups of cottagers with their week-end house guests attended. Preceding it were several dinner parties. Mrs. John G. M. Glessner, at whose home is held the annual meeting of the women's auxiliary board of the Littleton hospital, was one of the patronesses. The affair for the benefit of this hospital, which serves a large summer community, brought in a generous sum. Another dance will be held this week on Friday for the same charity.

Ernest Pooles Renting House to St. Mary's School.

Mrs. Winterbotham's daughter, Mrs. Ernest Poole, and Mr. Poole attended with Miss Betty Poole and Miss Barbara Buchanan, a guest there; Mr. and Mrs. William Poole of New York, who are visiting the Pooles, and Nicholas Poole. The Pooles have rented their large house for the winter to St. Mary's school, which is moving from Concord, N. H., to the White mountains in order that the girls may enjoy outdoor life and winter sports there under ideal conditions. Sugar Hill in general, with Franconia and Littleton, have come to be renowned as among the world's greatest winter sports centers. This winter reservations there include not a few Chicago society folk.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Harn of Chicago are on Sugar Hill for August. Mrs. Harn as "Merry Harn" has given delightful costume recitals of songs in the 18th century manner at White mountain resorts.

Miss Emily Glessner of Chicago and Littleton, N. H., gave a dinner party this week preceding a charity recital which the party attended there.

John A. Morrissey of River Forest is among arrivals at Bretton Woods. He will be there for a short stay.

Bradford Wells Joins Golfers at Jefferson.

Miss Beatrice McManus of Chicago is at Crawford Notch, where, on Saturday, the annual horse show was given, attracting a large gathering.

An annual visitor at Jefferson from Chicago is Bradford Wells, who arrived there for his usual visit this week and at once joined the golfers for the Saturday handicap event. He attended the ball there that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac H. May Jr. of Chicago and Glencoe have been among arrivals at Crawford Notch. They are spending a few days there before continuing their tour. Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Wood of Chicago also are there this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDougal of Chicago have arrived at Sugar Hill, taking a cottage there for the late season and enjoying their renewal of former aquaintances in this smart cottage colony.

Lawn Obstacle Golf Tourneys Attract Chicago Vacationists.

Miss Helen Wadsworth of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adams Lynde of Winnetka, who are spending the summer in Whitefield, have been among those attending the Saturday lawn obstacle golf tournament and community tea. They have also participated in many other activities.

Visitors at Bretton Woods this week included Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Dresser of Wheaton and Miss Anna B. Touse and Mark Touse Daly of Chicago.

Miss Bertha Erminger returned from a house party at Esquam lake, Holderness, N. H., this week to join Mrs. Howell B. Erminger at Whitefield on Friday. They attended the obstacle putting match and community tea there on Saturday and will participate this week in a duplicate bridge tournament, one of a series.

Mrs. F. R. Cooper of Cooper's Corner, Whitefield, and Chicago gave a dinner at Whitefield on Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Wylie and Miss Virginia Wylie of Rogers Rock, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Copley of Aurora arrived on Saturday for a short sojourn.

Beatties Conclude Stay at Franconia.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beattie of Evanston are concluding this week a two weeks sojourn at Franconia. There from Chicago for a holiday are Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Read.

Mrs. Eloise Arms Clark and Mrs. H. C. Arms of Evanston arrived on Sugar Hill in company of friends for a two weeks' sojourn at Franconia. Notch and Crawford Notch

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Jenks of Winnetka were visitors this week at Sugar Hill, on a tour of the principal mountain resorts.

Mrs. Noble T. Macfarlane of Winnetka with Mrs. Charles S. Braningham of Rockland and Mrs. B. E. Hamilton of Evanston have arrived at Franconia on a motor tour.

SPENDS HOURS AT SWIMMING AND TENNIS

Miss Betty Longstaff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Longstaff of Lake Forest, is finished with schooling, but she has no plans for a debut. This attractive picture of her was taken at the Knollwood club, where she spends many hours swimming and playing tennis.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 1, 1886.

DEAR JULIA: Je prends ma plume dans la main. . . . No, I haven't gone insane. I'm just practicing French on you. It recalls our school days in Pittsfield, doesn't it? Do you remember how stupid I was and how our French teacher nearly had apoplexy over my accent? It was so bad it was positively unique.

I can laugh now about the embarrassment I felt during lesson hour, but at the time I had such an awful, sinking sensation in the locality my Aunt Hester referred to as "the pit of her stomach" when I couldn't remember the proper responses to questions. Particularly do I recall my terrible faux pas when, bowing with Gallic grace, M. Farvard addressed me with the remark: "Je suis charmé de faire votre connaissance." My head swam. What ever was the proper reply to these words? Then behind me I heard a whispered word. It was Mary Brewster, conning over some other part of the lesson, but I thought she was giving me a cue and, clutching desperately at a straw, I murmured: "Je sors par la porte."

The whole class exploded with laughter and I grew red as a lobster. It sounded like a deadly insult . . . my announced intention to go out of the door when he had just expressed pleasure in making my acquaintance. I'm sure he always thought me a most ill bred young lady.

This struggle with French long ago came back to me when I attended a session of the Club Français at the home of Mrs. M. H. Knowles on Warren avenue last evening. Mrs. Knowles is perhaps Chicago's foremost French scholar. Her father, J. H. Davis, was a musician, a flutist who played with the New York Philharmonic orchestra. You may have heard him there. His profession took him abroad often and his family sometimes accompanied him. So Mrs. Knowles early learned to speak French. She was married in 1869 in New York and immediately came out here, her husband being a well known tea merchant. She has always employed in her family an educated French teacher for her children and they speak the language without an accent. Some years ago she began to hold "French evenings" in her home with talks and short plays for entertainment and these evenings have become highly popular. Guests are requested to speak only French and those who use English aren't invited a second time.

She believes in making French a living and intimate language and is a wonderful teacher. She has originated many illustrated card games to help with French conversation and last evening we played one of these. . . . Si Nous Dinions." Another jolly game was "Jeu des Grands Personages. I enjoyed it so much I intend to go again. If I could have had such a teacher in my young days even I might have mastered the difficult language. When I hear her talk I am all for plunging into the study of it. Mrs. Knowles' ambition is to make Chicago a center of French culture, where French art and literature shall be loved and appreciated and her life is devoted to this object.

Mrs. M. H. Knowles, educator, who was a leader in promoting interest in the French language.

Well, my dear, don't be surprised when you visit us next to hear me refer to Will's easy chair as a fauteuil or else a chaise. With all the zeal of a convert I go about repeating French phrases, trying to "think in French," as Mrs. Knowles does. Some one said last evening that one has mastered French when one dreams in that language, but I fear I shall never arrive at that point. I do want you to meet Mrs. Knowles. We must have a party when you come and she will plan charades for us.

And now, dear Julia, I must bid you au revoir. Yours ever,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES

Mrs. M. H. Knowles, whom Martha met in 1886, founded the Club Français de Chicago and was its president for twenty-seven years. She died in 1926. The French evenings, with their charades and short plays, developed into the French theater, which flourished here beginning in 1903. The Club Français later merged with the Alliance Française of Chicago. Mrs. Knowles was not only an educator but frequently entertained prominent French visitors to Chicago. In 1903 she was decorated by the French government for her services in behalf of France. A daughter, Mrs. Katherine Knowles Robbins, continues her mothers' work in Chicago. Another daughter is Miss Grace Knowles. A grandson, John K. Robbins, also an authority on the French language, is to speak at the Chicago Woman's club on Wednesday, Sept. 4, on "French and American Newspapers."

Old Chicago Hearthstones.

16 East Ontario Street.

The Henry Field home, with its ivy clad English gables of old brick and gray granite, its beautiful entrance, and its enormous windows, across the sixty foot frontage, was one of Chicago's stateliest residences. The great library, its timbered ceilings and paneled walls of English oak, each piece prepared and borders carved in England; its recessed fireplace, fourteen feet in width, where great logs burned; its dark oaken shelves, from floor to ceiling, was a restful spot in this restless city. The dining room was built to accommodate Mr. Field's collection of modern French paintings, now installed as his memorial in the Art institute.

In 1900, a few years after Mr. Field's death, his widow (then Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page) sold the house to David S. Wegg, who maintained it as his residence for seventeen years. Its spacious rooms were well adapted for housing his large collection of antique furnishings, which were on English and American lines. Mr. Wegg caused electric service to be brought into Ontario street for the first time and had the house wired for more than 400 lights. He also added a fine billiard room, its great chimney piece decorated with racks of antiques, of antique weapons, guns, swords, knives, and daggers.

Encroachments of business destroyed the home atmosphere of this old aristocratic neighborhood and made a change of residence desirable. In 1917 the house was acquired by the Knights of Pythias.

Shinkman-Benn Nuptials Engage London Interest

One of the marriages of the late season was that of Paul Alfred Shinkman, son of the late

LONDON

Joseph Shinkman of 222 Henry avenue, Grand Rapids, Mich., to Miss Elizabeth Benn, daughter of Sir Ernest and Lady Benn of Blunt house, Oxted. The master of the temple and Canon J. O. Hannay officiated at the ceremony, which took place at the village church of Tandridge, near Oxted.

The bride was given away by her father, the distinguished publisher. She wore a gown of ivory faille in the Elizabethan style and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her veil was a simple square of net dating from 1873, which was worn by her mother and her grandmother at their weddings.

The bride's train was carried by four child attendants, who wore replicas of the bride's dress in white muslin and carried baskets of flowers. There also were four grownup bridesmaids, who wore simple dresses of cream, self-checked voile, with a design of field flowers in their natural colorings, and their headdresses carried out the same floral idea in poppies, daisies, and cornflowers.

The ceremony was made singularly beautiful by the singing of the boys from the Temple choir.

The American consul general was represented by Consul Frank C. Gowen.

Sir Ernest and Lady Benn held a reception at Blunt house afterwards, and later Mr. and Mrs. Shinkman left for Paris, where they spent their honeymoon.

Loan Galleries in Spotlight at Art Institute

Strong Old Masters and Vivid Moderns in East Wing Until October

By Eleanor Jewett.

TWO of the important galleries in the Art institute this summer are the little ones at the end of the east wing galleries where are installed the paintings loaned from various private Chicago collections. The room devoted to more or less modern work is charming in its challenge, and the second room, hung with old masters—and some of them, like Winslow Homer, not so old but none the less superb painters—is no less fascinating. A number of historical details flavored with scandal center about the intriguing portrait of Mrs. Margaret O'Neill Eaton by Henry Inman. She was known during President Jackson's administration as Peggy O'Neill. She was a famous beauty and wit. Her career as a beauty was sensational in that the election of a President of the United States was influenced by the stories she started.

The fine portrait of a gentleman, "The Honorable John Douglas" by John Hoppner, lent by Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, and "Rachel Fane, Countess of Bath and Middlesex" by Peter Lely [lent by Mr. and Mrs. William C. Whitcomb] are two other most interesting canvases.

Corot Represented by "Lake Nemi."

Corot is represented by a large painting, "Lake Nemi," from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick. It is a beautiful landscape with a delightful nymph, in Corot's inimitable manner, emerging picturesquely from the water. The "Pond in the Woods" by Diaz is a gem.

Mrs. John A. Spoor has lent one of the most effective and distinguished of the paintings in this gallery. It is "Lost on the Grand Banks" by Winslow Homer, a dramatic and powerful piece of work. It ranks as one of the finest Winslow Homers in existence and would support in any company his right to be considered one of the greatest painters America has produced. The "Herring Net," another example of Homer's superb mastery of his craft, is a second reason for prolonging one's visit to this gallery.

A Beg Your Pardon to Peterpaul Ott.

Nothing is more irritating than to have memory play one false, make a mistake of it and blazon it to the world, and then have to wait seven days to retract the error and eat humble pie with a whopping big spoon! This is directed to Peterpaul Ott, the sculptor exhibiting at the Art institute this summer, and refers to his 1934 prize winning piece of sculpture, "The Dancer, Harold Kreutzberg" [awarded the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize of $500 in the Chicago Artists exhibition in February]. By an unparalleled flight of the imagination and lapse of memory we confused this with the portrait bust of magnificent size that either Ott or Edouard Chassaing executed. The mental muddle to sort out this work, which made a distinct impression upon all those who saw it, gives way today to despair, and like any tyro we simply admit the confusion of last week's statement and give the correct title of Mr. Ott's sculpture.

This prize winning conception, "The Dancer, Harold Kreutzberg," is an important feature of Peterpaul Ott's current one man exhibit in the Art institute. Some of his figures are in bronze, others in ceramics, with gun metal or chromium finish, but in whatever medium they are they are arresting for their quality of form and line. In speaking of his work the sculptor says:

"Modern? Yes, but not what every one is calling modernistic. Modern, but classical in style!"

"Electra" Fine Example of Modern-Classic Technique.

The "Electra" is a striking example of his modern-classic technique. A modern treatment of the head emphasizes the beautiful flowing line of the figure, Grecian in its rhythm. The "Defender" is a bronze depicting the muscular development of a thoroughly masculine figure.

Peterpaul Ott is an Austrian by birth and American by adoption. He received his training at the former Royal Academy of Art in Dresden and later with Archipenko in New York. In 1931 he came to Chicago as private instructor to Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr. Since then he has lived in Evanston, where his studio now is.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

Pauline Palmer writes from Provincetown that the annual exhibit there was of an unusually high standard and attracted much favorable comment. Mrs. Palmer is returning to her Chicago studio the first of September, a good month earlier than is her custom, because she has been asked to paint the portrait of a little 3 year old girl, a lovely child. Mrs. Palmer has made a national reputation for herself as a painter of children though her genius is by no means restricted to this one kind of painting. She paints landscapes and still life and she paints character studies which are fairly bubbling with vitality and humor. Her "The Gem," the portrait of her colored maid, will live long in the memories of those who saw and enjoyed it when it was shown in town a year or so ago.

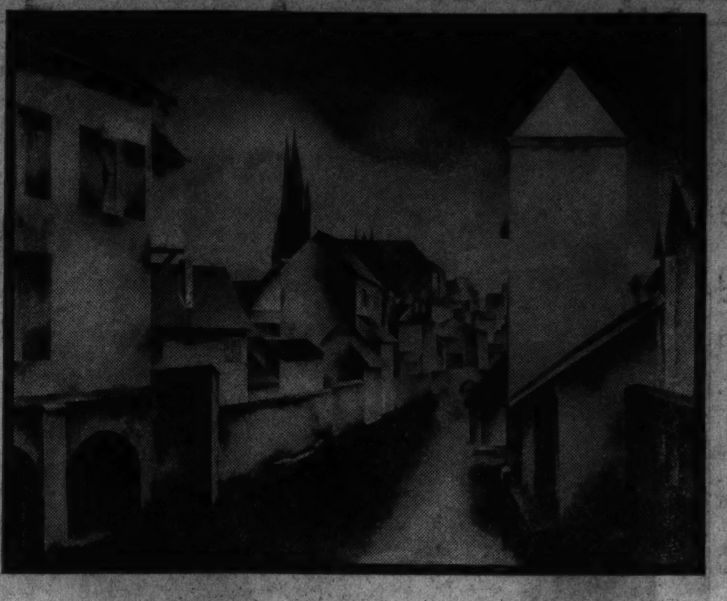
Lane K. Newberry, the artist whose chief concern is historic spots of Illinois and who is rendering Illinois a great service in painting them, has a busy fall of exhibit engagements. During August his paintings were seen in Carthage and Nauvoo. In September they will be on view in Fort Madison and in October they will be hung in the Chicago Woman's club. A complete showing of his entire collection is scheduled for the Drake hotel in November, under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, and in January a group of the pictures will be sent to Quincy.

"Sunshine on the Sea," by Frederick J. Waugh, N. A., has been selected through popular vote by the members of the Buck Hill Art association as their Purchase Prize canvas of 1935.

The Field Museum of Natural History has an unusually beautiful "calendar screen" on exhibition among the Chinese collections. The decorative pictures are made of bird feathers intricately cut and pieced together; there are twelve panels. In each panel are floral decorations corresponding to the plants and flowers which would bloom in the month that panel represents in the calendar. The designs are made with kingfisher feathers cut in the desired shape and gummed to thin plates of wood.

It is not as cruel a practice as one might think, this making a large screen of feathers. The kingfishers are caught alive, the trappers attracting them by imitating their sound and then carefully snaring them in small nets laid over the water. Some of the plumage is plucked from each bird and then the bird is released, unharmed, and he soon grows new feathers to replace those that "art" has despoiled him of.

The screen on exhibit was made about the end of the 18th century. It was obtained on a museum expedition.



A CONTEMPORARY'S FRANCE

"Chartres," by Mouillot, purchased by Carter H. Harrison for Oscar Mayer, who is lending it this summer to the Chicago Art institute. It is one of the most fascinating canvases in the Loan Gallery of Modern Art. The exhibit continues to Oct. 13.

Romance Recalls British Officer's Fight for Career

Announcement of the engagement of Lord Gough to Miss Bettine

LONDON

Maryon-Wilson, Sir Spencer Maryon-Wilson's only daughter, has brought forth a crop of stories about the courage and perseverance displayed by that distinguished ex-officer. It was just 21 years ago that his arm was amputated, and he was forced to "start life over again." He remained in the army and only last year retired from command of the Irish Guards. By incessant practice he learned to do everything with precision, including that difficult parade ground detail, returning his sword unerringly to its scabbard. After the war he rode jumping horses at shows and then progressed to the rough and tumble jumping at hunts. He also learned to be a remarkable shot. An aristocrat making good in his own world.

Wales Adds to Joie de Vivre of Riviera Crowd

Presence of Prince Gives Extra Fillip to Gayety of Society on Holiday.

By May Birkhead.

That stretch of the Riviera which includes Cannes, Juan-les-Pins, and Cap d'Antibes is one of the brightest playgrounds in France. This season the social activity there has been given a special fillip by the presence of the prince of Wales, who has accepted the hospitality of Lord Cholmondeley for the latter's villa, Le Roc. Then Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gould have been busy introducing the sport of water-skiing, and recently they arranged, at the Club de Ski Nautique, a tournament for this diversion, which is having a big vogue this season on the Riviera. After demonstrating, with the aid of French and other experts, its possibilities with speedboats drawing the skiers over the jumps at the rate of 40 miles an hour, the Goulds gave a big cocktail party, and there will be an international water-ski competition at Juan-les-Pins at the end of this month.

Diplomats, artists, globe trotters take part in the merriment that rules at Juan-les-Pins and vicinity. The coast is bold and rocky, the Mediterranean a rich sapphire, and the crowd as full of wit and fun as could be wished. Lots of stage and movie stars go there to get a rich tan, and to forget the hard work of entertaining the public. Among those leading in the high jinks, carnival, and burlesque this year is Elsa Maxwell, famous for her parties in many resorts and capitals. The other night, when she started to play a new tango on the piano, the dancer, Anton Dolin, improvised steps to it.

Juan-les-Pins Wins Favor with Prince by Ignoring Him.

Word has gone around this season at Juan-les-Pins that no special notice is to be taken, in any way, of the presence of the prince of Wales. That is one reason why in the past he has so often favored Le Touquet and Biarritz—there is no staring at him, no pointing out of him to your companion, or being in any way aware that a celebrity, and a royal celebrity at that, is at your elbow.

Ira Nelson Morris gave a dinner party the other night at the Casino at Juan-les-Pins, and among his guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Burton, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kaufman, and Ira V. Morris. Mrs. Morris is taking the cure at Bad Schwalbach.

Mrs. Jacob Baur, who has been much in Paris recently in connection, among other things, with the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, was the guest the other day, along with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde of Chicago, of the Herman Gades. The party had lunch at Mesnil-St. Denis.

Mrs. Jacob Baur Visits Salzburg.

A few days later the rôles of guest and host were reversed at a luncheon in Paris. Mrs. Baur and Mrs. Charles W. Chadwick had for several seasons the château de la Garoupe, picturesquely situated at Cap d'Antibes, with a superb view over the Mediterranean. Mrs. Baur is going to Salzburg for the music festival, and then returns late in the month to Paris, and will sail for the United States about Sept. 6, while Mr. and Mrs. Hinde are sailing for home within a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake of Chicago have been visiting Col. and Mrs. Langhorne these days at Eze, also on the Riviera, overlooking Beaulieu.

The Lawrence Armours have been sojourning in France these days, while Mrs. Shearson has gone to Scotland for the grouse shooting, which opened on Aug. 12, as usual.

MEN say of her, "Good looking. Good company. Nice Girl. But please excuse me."

Why?

There is just one reason. She's careless about herself! She has never learned that soap and water cannot protect her from that ugly odor of underarm perspiration which makes people avoid her.

She has nobody to blame but herself. For it's so easy, these days, to keep the underarms fresh, free from odor all day long. With Mum!

It takes just half a minute to use Mum. And you can use it any time—before dressing or afterwards. Mum is harmless to clothing, you know.

It's soothing to the skin, too. You can use it right after shaving the underarms.

Few things are more essential to growing children than body-building milk proteins and milk minerals. The new Wonder Bread has this benefit in extra quantity and brings your children far more of it than any ordinary bread could.

You actually see that the new Wonder Bread is better than any you have previously served. Only the choicest ingredients, slo-baked, could produce such a perfect creamy-smooth texture. We pay 17% extra for these ingredients alone.

You probably know that there are many different kinds of flour to choose from . . . actually there are 24. Only one of these is best for children, and we use only that one. It's the flour that comes from the very heart of the wheat berry. Experts agree that it is richest in energy, highest in food value.

Children need food that's easy to digest. This is why every loaf of Wonder Bread is slo-baked. Laboratory tests prove that slo-baked Wonder Bread is easier for tiny stomachs to digest than fast-baked bread. Young bodies get the full benefit from Wonder Bread, and get it quicker!

Remember this the next time you see your grocer! A million mothers agree that Wonder Bread is best for children.
